BACKDOWN PLEASES LONDON

Soviet Says It Acts in Interest of World's Peace and Welfare.

PRESS ASSAILS LABOR PARTY

POLES TO SHIFT PARLEY

Unable to Communicate Freely with Envoys at Minsk, They Will Select Another City.

LONDON, Aug. 26 (Associated Press). —M. Tchitcherin, the Russian Soviet Foreign Minister, has sent a note to Mr. Balfour replying to the Italo-British ultimatum respecting changes in the peace terms offered to Poland. The Soviet Government accepts the British proposals.

The note opens with a comment on the unusual tone of the Anglo-Italian Governments' communication, which, it says does not tend to help permanent good relations and world peace.

It calls attention to the action of those Governments which had so often accused the Russian Government of interfering in the internal affairs of other States, and charges that, in this communication "they have issued peace propaganda directed against our institutions, which constitutes an act of interference in Russian affairs sufficient to justify corresponding action by us."

M. Tchitcherin says, however, that despite natural resentment the Soviet Government has decided not to insist upon this point, but to meet fully the wishes of the Anglo-Italian Governments in the interest of the establishment of permanent good-will.

Expressing surprise that the question of the interpretation of principle should have caused such difficulty, M. Tchitcherin proceeds to argue that after the limitation of Poland's army to 50,000 was recognized by the British Government as a just peace term, it was a concession on the part of Russia to admit the formation of civil militia, which, he asserts, "is, in fact, a supplementary armed force," and adds: "We, therefore, find it astonishing that this should arouse the British Government's indignation.

"Seeing that Great Britain declares peace through Eastern Europe to be its aim, we can point to the fact that the workers in Poland for a long time have been the one force steadfastly opposed to the Polish Government policy, and have in repeated resolutions demanded peace with Russia. If, nevertheless, the British Government so forcibly opposes strengthening this fundamental pillar of peace, it clearly shows with what distrust it regards the workers.

"If the British Government indeed thinks that the workers by nature are animated by the doctrine of Bolshevism, such a point of view will undoubtedly be welcomed by those who look forward to spreading Bolshevism in Great Britain."

The Proposed Civic Militia.

Alluding to the proposed civic militia, he says:

"Although our interpretation of this point in our peace terms is thoroughly justified, we nevertheless are willing to remove this, the only point of divergency, in order to establish a full understanding between us and the above Governments.

"As to the terms of peace with Poland, we first of all declare we never considered our terms as an ultimatum and are still, as we have been all the time, willing to discuss them with the Polish Government with whom alone we are treating for peace. Any undertakings we may give thereanent will, therefore, be given to Poland alone.

"In view, nevertheless, of our earnest desire to obtain important results for the world's welfare and peace arising from a peace with Great Britain, we are willing to inform the British Government that the Russian Government is resolved to make a concession on this point. It will not insist upon the clause referring to the arming in Poland of a workers' civic militia, thus securing full agreement with Great Britain as to all the terms of peace with Poland."

The Soviet Foreign Minister continues: "It is not the custom of the Russian Government to mix practical business transactions with theoretical politics and discussions of principles. The British Government, however, has launched against the Soviet régime the strange accusation of being an oligarchy."

The note then enters into a disquisition to the effect that all States whose form of government differs from the Soviet are obviously true oligarchies because they are States in which the immense majority toil for a privileged few while in Soviet Russia the whole nation works for the whole nation's benefit.

Lauds Soviet System.

M. Tchitcherin contends that the system of local workers' councils, in whose hands rests control of the whole Soviet fabric, gives the masses much more power than the parliamentary system, and concludes, that, being a truly popu-

Poland's Reply to Colby Called "Not Disappointing"; Washington May Make Full Details Public Today

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26. — The Government of Poland has made reply to Secretary Colby's communication of Saturday, Aug. 21, in which the hope was expressed that Poland would find it agreeable to issue a declaration of its intention to abstain from any territorial aggression against Russia, and asking Poland to state its purpose to remain within the ethnic boundaries indicated by the Paris Peace Conference, pending an agreement as to its eastern frontier.

It was stated that the Polish communication has not yet been fully transmitted over the wires and that, therefore, it was impossible to make official comment concerning it. The statement was authorized, however, that the note, as far as could be ascertained, did not appear to contain anything that might be construed as disappointing to this Government. Full information regarding the reply will probably be disclosed tomorrow.

It is known to have been anticipated by this Government that Poland would accept the admonition of the United States, forwarded last Saturday, in friendly spirit. It is felt, therefore, from the statement that the Polish reply appears to contain nothing which would be disappointing to this Government, that the Polish Government has accepted the suggestion conveyed in the American communication.

POLES FOLLOW UP PURSUIT OF REDS

REPORT BUDENNY WOUNDED

Germans at Frontier Fire on Russians and Drive Many Back Into Poland.

WARSAW, Aug. 26 (Associated Press) —Ossowetz, the fortress northeast of Lomza, was taken by the Poles Tuesday afternoon, according to a communication issued today. There are no details. The communication adds that the centre army is continuing its progress beyond Ostrolenka.

The Polish cavalry on the southern front, after a short hand-to-hand fight, wiped out the 72d Bolshevist Brigade and made prisoners of many of the men, including the brigade Chief of Staff.

A Bolshevist brigade of 4,000 which crossed the Dniester River before Herodenka and reached the Sereth River was surrounded and surrendered to the reinforced Polish that are clearing out the region south of the Dniester and the left bank of the Bug on the Galician front.

The Bolsheviki no longer are grouped on a continuous front, but isolated fighting is continuing. Groups that reach the right bank of the Dniester are driven back or surrounded and captured. These Red detachments are said to be composed largely of Caucasians or Turkestans. It is reported that they have done much pillaging but have not displayed ardor in fighting for the Soviets.

Remnants of the 4th Bolshevist Army, which were cut off by the Polish advance in the region of Kolno, succeeded in cutting their way through to the eastward after a battle lasting ten hours, an official statement issued here last night reported. The Soviet troops carried out a regrouping manoeuvre and succeeded in making their way out of the trap which had closed upon them, but were surrounded by more numerous forces of the 4th Polish Army.

The 5th Polish Army continues its work of rounding up detachments of Bolsheviki in the region west of the railroad running from Novo Georgievsk to Mlawa.

On the central front the Poles have carried out a flanking movement to the north and occupied Knyszyn, fifteen miles northwest of Bialystok, and Stawiski, twelve miles northeast of Lomza. Occupation of these towns, with the capture of Kolno, completed the work of forging a ring around the Fifteenth Bolshevist Army. Other Soviet forces have reassembled at various places and are making repeated attacks in their attempts to break the Polish cordon. Nine attacks were made in the region of Kolno, but all are said to have been repulsed with enormous losses. Among the captives is the commander of a Bolshevist division.

Russians Bringing Up Reserves.

Fresh Bolshevist forces released from the Finnish frontier have been rushed toward Grodno in an endeavor to head off the Polish advances and, if possible, to rescue thousands of the Red army hemmed in by the Poles. Owing to the Soviet-Finnish peace treaty thousands of Reds, it is reported, are being transferred to the Polish front. The Poles are expected to reoccupy Grodno at an early date.

The Bolsheviki who have escaped the Polish armies are overrunning the East Prussian frontier to such an extent that the German military authorities are said to have called out extra border forces to guard the scattered points and prevent further crossing. It is estimated here that between 25,000 and 30,000 Reds have sought refuge in Prussia. At several places the Germans, it is asserted, fired on the Reds, driving them back into Poland, where thousands are gradually being surrounded by the Poles in their northern sweep.

The official communiqué issued tonight says that the Bolshevist committee from

Says Civil War Will Cease When They Are Able to Form the Government.

HIS NAVY NOW ORGANIZED

Forces on All Fronts Well Equipped—Take Novorossisk and Donetz Coal Basin.

SEBASTOPOL, Crimea, Aug. 23 (Associated Press).—Civil war in Russia would cease immediately if the Russian people were free to organize a government according to their own wishes, General Baron Wrangel, who was recognized as head of the South Russian Government by France a few days ago, declared here yesterday. They are not able to do this at present, however, because of the domination of the Soviet leaders, and the fight must go on until Russians are free to take matters in their own hands, he continued.

General Wrangel expressed the gratification he felt over the note sent to Italy by the United States Government relative to the Russian situation and declared recognition of the South Russian Government by France was the "just expression of one ally's appreciation of another's sacrifice in the common cause." He asserted that his forces on all fronts were well equipped, and that the naval arm of the service was at last able to assist in the struggle against the Bolsheviki.

General Wrangel, who leaves tomorrow to personally direct the organization of forces rallying against the Bolsheviki, received the correspondent of The Associated Press at his home in this city and gave him an exclusive interview.

Bolshevism Hateful to Cossacks.

"Ever since the South Russian Army honored me by placing itself under my command, leaders of various Cossack organizations have been urging us to send expeditions into the Caucasus and Kuban regions to assist in throwing off the tyranny of the Bolsheviki," he said. "Soviet domination has always been hateful to the Cossacks, but it was not until the last fortnight that it was possible to meet their appeals. We have been too busy organizing here and establishing our northern fronts to do anything else.

"Various Cossack expeditions we have sent to Yeisk and other points in Kuban and the Don territory are advancing eastward, being heartily supported and joined by local Cossacks. Our navy is now restored to a point where it can effectively support our troops in any possible sea action, and, consequently, the time is propitious for giving the Don, Kuban, Astrakhan and Terek Cossacks the organization needed for utilizing their unlimited resources against their oppressors.

"The Cossacks have men, foodstuffs and animals sufficient for a long fight, and the spirit with which they have joined the expeditions sent to help them indicates they will soon hold all important ports and railways to the Georgian border."

"What effect will recognition by France have on the Crimean Government?" he was asked.

General Wrangel's eyes brightened as he responded promptly: "The note of France was a chivalrous and just expression of one ally's recognition of another's self-sacrifice in the common cause.

"I cannot conceal my surprise," he continued after a momeht's hesitation, "that other allies have not given the same generous recognition of the blood shed, not for Russia alone, but to protect the entire civilized world against plunder, murder and despotism. It is not only Russia's battle which is being fought in South Russia."

"May I ask," said the correspondent, "what impression the American note to Italy on the attitude of the United States toward Bolshevism created?"

"It was most favorable," he replied. "It was very gratifying to me personally, and I am sure to all right-minded Russians, that the United States should thus officially have expressed its

Edward R. Stettinius, member of J. P. Morgan & Co., was operated upon for appendicitis last night in Roosevelt Hospital. According to the operating surgeons, Mr. Stettinius rallied at once from the operation and late last night he was reported to be progressing favorably.

Mr. Stettinius was purchasing agent in America for the Allies before this country entered the war. In that capacity Mr. Stettinius was said to have spent more than five billion dollars, principally for Great Britain, his purchases running to $100,000,000 a month at certain times. When the United States entered the war the banker was appointed Surveyor General of Supplies, became a member of the War Council and bought everything the army acquired.

The banker, who lives at 1,021 Park Avenue, has been spending the Summer at his country place near Oyster Bay, L. I. He came to the city yesterday morning at his usual hour and when he arrived at the Morgan offices apparently was in the best of health. A short time after he began his work, however, he experienced severe pains in the stomach. Mr. Stettinius thought at the time that he merely had an attack of acute indigestion. The pain, however, grew steadily more severe, and finally the banker, on the advice of his physician, consented to go to Roosevelt Hospital.

After an examination at the hospital his illness was diagnosed as appendicitis and an operation was regarded as imperative. The banker's preparation for the ordeal was begun at once and at 7 o'clock he was placed on the operating table. Dr. James I. Russell and Dr. Henry Cave performed the incision, which, they declared, had been successful in every respect.

Mr. Stettinius, a St. Louisan, is 55 years old. He was graduated from St. Louis University, and for his first five years in business was a stock broker. He developed a talent for organization and became Director and Vice President of the Babcock & Wilcox Company and President and organizer of the Diamond Match Company. He became a Morgan partner on Jan. 1, 1916.

LORD MAYOR DYING; REPORT IRISH CRISIS

FIERCE FIGHTING IN BELFAST

Some Killed, Many Wounded and Scores of Incendiary Fires Mark New Outbreaks.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—It is stated tonight that King George has consulted with responsible Ministers, but that the policy of the Government remains unchanged with regard to Lord Mayor MacSweney, now dying from hunger strike in Brixton Prison.

Redmond Howard sent another long appeal to the King, complaining that the Home Secretary had refused to see him today.

When told of King George's telegram replying to the appeal of Redmond Howard, nephew of the late John Redmond, Father Dominic, the Lord Mayor's private chaplain, said: "I am glad, but I am afraid it is too late to hope for the Lord Mayor's recovery now. He is resigned to his fate."

Father Dominic, interviewed by the Press Association, said that Mr. Howard was acting without any authority from the Irish Republican Party. The party, he declared, did not agree with Mr. Howard's statement in his telegram to the King that murders were being committed in Ireland. The Republicans did not admit that any murders whatever had been committed.

Mary MacSweney, the Lord Mayor's sister, today replied to the telegram which Premier Lloyd George sent her yesterday from Lucerne. She said:

"I made no appeal to you for exceptional treatment for my brother. I warned you of your responsibility in event of his death. He and his comrades demand their freedom as a right.

"If my brother or any of his comrades must die to win that freedom, they do so willingly, and we are proud of them, but their death lies on you and your Government. Self-determination, for which you say England went to war, is as much Ireland's right as Poland's. We claim it and will have it, even if you have decided that my brother is to die."

Suffers Collapse During Night.

Lord Mayor MacSweney, despite two serious collapses during the night, was brighter today when visited by Father Dominic, his private chaplain. He was too weak to speak more than a few words, however.

Mayor MacSweney's visitors also included his two sisters and Bishop Cohalan of Cork.

It was officially stated today that thirteen policemen were injured, none seriously, during last night's disturbances outside Brixton Prison, when a crowd engaged in a free fight with the police.

Extra large forces of police cordoned Brixton Prison tonight to prevent a repetition of disorderly demonstrations. Relatives visited the Lord Mayor this evening and found his condition without change since this morning, when he suffered two brief collapses.

The Evening Standard's Dublin correspondent says:

"Divisions of opinion between the Irish Executive and the Cabinet have reached an acute stage, culminating in Sir Hamar Greenwood's visit to Premier Lloyd George at Lucerne. The Viceroy's position, as well as that of the responsible members of the executive, is in the balance, and it is stated here that the next few days will bring definite announcement of a more liberal ameliorative policy in Ireland or resignations that must wholly alter the personnel of the Irish administration.

"The fact is that MacSweney and other hunger strikers have been more or less the cause of precipitating the present crisis, but the situation has been ripening for months.

"Viscount French and his counsellors frankly oppose the policy of drastic repression, and while fully prepared to enforce law and order they hold that conciliatory measures should immediately be given a more particular trial than hitherto.

"While Sir Hamar Greenwood sympathizes with this view, and is prepared to support it, he feels that his share in the Irish administration must necessarily take its direction from the Cabinet."

COLBY PROCLAIMS WOMAN SUFFRAGE

MILITANTS VEXED AT PRIVACY

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—The half-century struggle for woman suffrage in the United States reached its climax at 8 o'clock this morning, when Bainbridge Colby, as Secretary of State, issued his proclamation announcing that the Nineteenth Amendment had become a part of the Constitution of the United States.

The signing of the proclamation took place at that hour at Secretary Colby's residence, 1,507 K Street Northwest, without ceremony of any kind, and the issuance of the proclamation was unaccompanied by the taking of movies or other pictures, despite the fact that the National Woman's Party, or militant branch of the general suffrage movement, had been anxious to be represented by a delegation of women and to have the historic event filmed for public display and permanent record.

Secretary Colby did not act with undue haste in signing the proclamation, but only after he had given careful study to the packet which arrived by mail during the early morning hours containing the certificate of the Governor of Tennessee that that State's Legislature had ratified the Congressional resolution submitting the amendment to the States for action.

No Suffrage Leaders See Signing.

None of the leaders of the woman suffrage movement was present when the proclamation was signed.

"It was quite tragic," declared Mrs. Abby Scott Baker of the National Woman's Party. "This was the final culmination of the women's fight, and, women, irrespective of factions, should have been allowed to be present when the proclamation was signed. However, the women of America have fought a big fight and nothing can take from them their triumph."

Leaders of both branches of the woman's movement—the militants, headed by Miss Alice Paul, and the conservatives, led by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt—some of whom had been on watch nearly all night for the arrival of the Tennessee Governor's certification, visited the State Department, and the militants sought to have Secretary Colby go through a duplication of the signing scene in the presence of movie cameras. This Mr. Colby declined to do, on the ground that it was not necessary to detract from the dignity and importance of the signing of the proclamation by staging a scene in imitation of the actual signing of the proclamation.

In informal conversation with newspaper men late this afternoon Secretary Colby said that "effectuating suffrage through proclamation of its ratification by the necessary thirty-six States was more important than feeding the movie cameras."

At the same time Mr. Colby congratulated the women of the country on the successful culmination of their efforts in the face of discouragements, and declared the day "marks the opening of a great and new era in the political life of the nation."

"I confidently believe," said the Secretary, "that every salutary, forward and upward force in our public life will receive fresh vigor and reinforcement from the enfranchisement of the women of America. To the leaders of this great movement I tender my sincere congratulations. To every one, from the President, who uttered the call to duty, whenever the cause seemed to falter, to the humblest worker in this great reform, the praise not only of this generation but of posterity will be freely given."

Reads Message from President.

Speaking tonight at the woman's suffrage meeting in Poli's Theatre, Secretary Colby made the following references to President Wilson:

"There never was a man more deeply or profoundly convinced of the justice of the suffrage cause than Woodrow Wilson. And there never was a party leader who held his party with more stern, austere and unbending insistence to the performance of a duty dictated by high principle:

"The President called me on the telephone this morning. It is a private wire

HARDING RECEIVES MESSAGE FROM ROOT

PREPARE CAMPAIGN ISSUE

Senator, in Talk to Teachers, Says America Will Do Its Share if Republicans Win.

Special to The New York Times.

MARION, Ohio, Aug. 26.—Elihu Root's return from Europe, where he has been organizing an International Court of Justice, will be followed by an "announcement of very important accomplishments that will go far toward clarifying the entire international situation," Myron T. Herrick, former Ambassador to France, said today.

Asked whether the results of Mr. Root's work will have any bearing on the Presidential campaign, Mr. Herrick replied that he anticipated they would be of "very great political significance."

It is generally believed here that Mr. Herrick, who saw Mr. Root in Paris, brought to Senator Harding either a message from Mr. Root or an outline of the organization of the international court. Only last week Senator Harding intimated that the Root court plan might play a big part in Republican attacks on the League of Nations.

The Senator has announced that Saturday's speech will define clearly his foreign policies; that he will clear up all doubts then as to whether he stands for an "association of nations," adopting or rejecting some of the provisions of the League of Nations.

Today in an extemporaneous speech to a delegation of school teachers from Marion County, Senator Harding said that the foreign policies he contemplated did not propose that America should remain aloof from international affairs, but rather that this country should remain free to act in accordance with American instead of international principles.

Opponents of the Treaty of Versailles, the Senator concluded his talk today, were anxious for America to play her part in the world. But they maintained that the greatest service this country could perform was by maintaining freedom of action and standing before the world as an example of popular representative Government.

Root Court as League Substitute.

In speeches and in interviews since his notification, Senator Harding has centred his opposition to the League of Nations upon the executive and legislative features of the covenant. In his acceptance speech he proposed an association of nations based on justice and moral ties alone, and this declaration, in view of Senator Harding's intimations regarding the political significance of the Root court, is regarded here as leading up to a proposal for the nations of the world to give up the League and unite upon an international tribunal of justice.

Further evidence to support the belief that the principles of the Root court will be found embodied in Senator Harding's speech next Saturday, was found in the fact that Mr. Herrick, only back in this country four days,

HAYS TO DISCLOSE FUND TO KENYON

"Governor Cox Will Have to Prove His Case There," Chairman Declares.

SAYS HE WILL BARE NAMES

And Wants to Know Democratic Sources of Revenue—Blair's List Called Tentative.

Will H. Hays, chairman of the Republican National Committee, declined to comment directly last night upon Governor Cox's speech at Pittsburgh, in which the Democratic nominee declared that he offered proofs of his charge that "sinister influences had contributed millions to buy an underhold on the Presidency."

Mr. Hays had made it clear earlier in the evening that he did not intend to reply to the speech of Governor Cox offhand. When told that Governor Cox had promised to make public evidence to corroborate his charge that the Republicans were raising a campaign fund of $15,000,000, Mr. Hays said:

"It does not make any difference what Candidate Cox may say at Pittsburgs relative to campaign contributions. I hope he divulges the source of the funds received by the Democratic National Committee and by other agencies to be used in an effort to elect him. Every activity of the Republican National Committee in connection with the raising and spending of money will be shown by us with real satisfaction next week before the Senate Investigating Committee of which Senator Kenyon is Chairman. Incidentally, Mr. Cox will have an opportunity to do likewise.

"He has charged that millions have been paid into the Republican National Committee by sinister influences to corrupt the electorate. That charge he will have to prove. It is an insult to the thousands of good citizens all over the country who are contributing to the Republican Party. The name of every single contributor of every single dollar will be given to the Senate Committee next week, and the quality of the citizenship which constitutes that list will be such a condemnation of the veracity and judgment of Cox that the whole country will know him."

Fred W. Upham, Treasurer of the Republican National Committee, was said at Republican headquarters to have left for Chicago last night. Mr. Upham has been treasurer of the committee since the 1916 campaign, and the details of the money-raising plans were said to have been within his jurisdiction rather than that of the Chairman.

Harry M. Blair, assistant to Mr. Upham, mentioned in Governor Cox's speech as having prepared the quota list for fifty-one cities, upon which Governor Cox largely based corroboration of his charge, was originally from Cleveland, Ohio. He was formerly Secretary to the Roosevelt Memorial Association, and was said to have had great success in money-raising campaigns for the Y. M. C. A. and the War Camp Community Service. He is now attached to the Chicago headquarters of the Republican National Committee.

Well-informed Republicans said, after learning details of Governor Cox's speech, that all his information, with one exception, seemed to have been ob-

NEW YORK ON FOR $2,000,000

SOME OVERSUBSCRIPTIONS

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 26.—Quoting from official documents of the Republican Party organization, Governor James M. Cox placed before the people at a great mass meeting here tonight some of the evidence which he offers in substantiation of his charge that a campaign fund of not less than $15,000,000 is being raised by the Republicans, most of it from business interests, with which to attempt to "buy the Presidency."

Governor Cox produced a typewritten sheet giving, he said, quotas assessed at a meeting of the Ways and Means Committee of the Republican National Committee on fifty-one cities in twenty-six States. The total assessment for these cities alone, he said, was $8,145,000. The sheet of paper which he held in his hand, Governor Cox declared, was one of several which had been distributed to the Republican leaders who attended the meeting. He asserted that Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, was present and had addressed the gathering.

Statements of this kind were received with great applause by the crowd in the hall where the meeting was staged.

Developing his charges, Governor Cox quoted several extracts from pamphlets labeled "Official Bulletin, Treasurer's Office, Republican National Committee," and bearing the name of Fred W. Upham, Treasurer of the committee. In these bulletins it was stated that many communities which had not been mentioned in the list of quotas had subscribed or oversubscribed their amounts.

There were also many quotations from "official bulletins" concerning the manner in which the workers were exhorted to get out and do their duty, which caused laughter and applause on the part of the big crowd. As a climax to his charges Governor Cox quoted from a letter written for an issue of the bulletin by Senator Harding in which the Senator gave thanks and indorsement.

Gives New York Quota as $2,000,000.

On the sheet of paper produced by Governor Cox, New York City was put down for an assessment of $2,000,000; Chicago for $750,000, and Philadelphia for $500,000. The Governor called attention to the fact that these assessments had been made in financial and industrial centres and offered this as substantiation of his charges that big banking and financial interests were prepared to subscribe heavily in order to have the Republican Party under financial obligation should Senator Harding be elected.

Governor Cox, after his speech tonight, said that he "intended to pass this evidence" on to the Senate subcommittee investigating campaign expenditures, which reopens its hearing at Chicago Monday morning.

Governor Cox said that, according to The Wall Street Journal, Mark Hanna spent $16,500,000 in 1896. "Nothing approaching it" he added, "has been attempted until now."

He contended that his charge that the Harding campaign fund would reach $15,000,000 was a modest one. In concluding his address, Governor Cox quoted Will H. Hays as having said, when the charges of a great campaign fund were under discussion: "If, at the instance of our adversaries, this campaign is finally resolved into a question of personal characters, we know of no reason aside from natural distaste why we should not meet that issue as readily as any other."

"I renew the charges and accept the challenge," Governor Cox declared, and the crowd cheered.

There was a big parade upon the arrival of Governor Cox here. Thousands turned out to meet him.

Speech of Governor Cox.

In producing his evidence Governor Cox said:

"I have charged the leaders who have taken over the official affairs of the Republican Party organization with raising a stupendous campaign fund, so stupendous as to exceed the realm of legitimate expense, which means but one thing, imminent danger of an odious and corrupt campaign.

"In order that the present situation might be properly placed in the public understanding, we should be reminded that the contribution of large sums of money by business interests began in the Newberry Senatorial contest in Michigan. When accusations were made, general denial was forthcoming, and yet in a Republican State, in a Republican community, by a Republican Grand Jury, by a Republican petit jury, and before a Republican United States Judge, the accused, now a member of the Senatorial oligarchy, was convicted of fraudulent and corrupt practices.

"One would have thought that this experience would have had its restraining influence on subsequent events, but the resolve of certain interests to take over the affairs of our Government amounts apparently to a mania. Unaffected by the Newberry episode, money was spent after it had been collected from business interests in the pre-convention campaign in such sums that the whole country was shocked by the scandal.

"Millions of dollars admittedly were expended in behalf of its candidates. The Newberry affair and the preliminaries to the Republican National Convention are now admitted public facts. They are recounted as first symptoms of an iniquitous contagion that continues. Judging the future by the past, the people themselves must bring it to an end. Nothing, apparently, except the stiff shock of expressed public condemnation at the polls will be effective.

"The Newberry lesson went unheeded by the interests behind Presidential candidates in the Spring and Early Summer of 1920, and the admonition which the multiplied circumstances of the very recent past would ordinarily carry to the normal mind is insufficient to stay the hand of greed, of conspiracy, and corruption, which it is now my duty to expose.

Submits Republican Evidence.

"To be specific, I charged that a campaign fund of not less than $15,000,000 would be used by the Republican leaders in furtherance of the campaign in behalf of the Senatorial oligarchy. Mr. Hays denies it. In proof I shall submit nothing except Republican evidence.

"I shall depend wholly, for the purpose of making proof conclusive, upon the official documents which came from Republican headquarters.

"At the outset, however, let me call your attention to the fact that when Mr. Hays denied my charge he said that the fund would be $3,000,000. That was less than a week ago. This morning papers carry a statement from Fred W. Upham, National Treasurer of the Republican Committee, in which he admits that the total will be approximately $7,500,000. In short, Mr. Upham has multiplied Mr. Hays's figures by two.

"From the evidence which we shall submit I think you will agree that we are justified in multiplying Mr. Upham's figures by two.

"Business Man's Movement."

"In December of last year the Republican National Committee organized during its session in Washington, D. C., what was known as the Ways and Means Committee. As the term implies, it was to lay out the course of campaign and supply the means to support it. The work was vigorously pushed from the very first. Business men, in most instances very wealthy men, were selected as loca1 chairmen. For the purpose of local illustration I am advised that Mr. Mollen is Chairman of the Pittsburgh Republican Ways and Means Committee. That it was intended as the affair of a class is shown by a letter written by Mr. John Kirby, Jr., Chairman of the Dayton, Ohio, committee, under date of Feb. 7, 1920, which said:

"'This is purely a business man's movement.'

"It took on the impetus of a commercial enthusiasm. The philosophy running through all the literature is emphasized by the recurrent terms of salesmanship. The plan was not only to organize every State, but every county in the United States. Definite quotas were established in precisely the same manner as the Liberty Loan campaigns were conducted; population and bank deposits apparently being the base of calculations. In addition to the local Chairman, State managers were engaged, traveling representatives operated between them and the community organizations; salaries running as high as $500 a week and expenses have been paid in order to create and maintain enthusiasm and morale. An official document was published, intended, as will later be shown, for the eyes exclusively of the men and corporations who are a part of the movement.

"I present first, a copy of the first edition of the paper. It is entitled 'Official Bulletin, Treasurer's Office. Republican National Committee, Fred W. Upham, Treasurer, 455 Conway Building, Chicago; 10 West 44th Street, New York City,' and published July 17, 1920. The first line in its first issue says:

"'This bulletin is official.'

"This was followed by another striking phrase, which ran as follows:

"'Nobody is going to have anything to do with this bulletin who has not had actual experience in digging up money in the field.'

"And then going from general to concrete terms, we find this language:

"'If you don't read it, you may not miss any delectable diction, but you may miss something that those in charge think is a part of your job to help elect Harding President of the United States.'

"There appears a personal letter from Mr. Upham himself, in which it says:

"'Our job from now until Senator Harding's election involves just a few of the simplest principles of salesmanship. Knowledge in our goods. Faith in our goods. Energy and tact in presenting our goods. Pride in the dignity of the constructive work.'

"These fixed terms of the creed related to the exchange of plausible representation for money. The bulletin itself shows that the sole purpose of this specific movement was the gathering together of money, and as Mr. Upham himself announced, no one but 'money diggers' were to be a part of it.

"Mr. Upham's staff of headquarters assistants are: Marry M. Blair, assistant to the Treasurer; Edward L. Quarles, assistant to Mr. Blair; C. W. Lee, director eastern division; Henry B. Owen, director central division; Charles A. McKeand, director western division; E. G. Fitzgerald, office manager.

Quotes from Blair Letter.

"Mr. Blair also inserted a letter in the publication in which he said:

"'Fund-raising efforts for forty-one States will go directed from headquarters at 355 Conway Building, Chicago. For the present our efforts will be directed primarily toward producing the quotas of the larger cities. This does not mean that present State and county organizations will be disturbed or retarded in their activities. It is simply an effort to concentrate upon the sources which would naturally be expected to produce money most quickly and in comparatively large amounts. We need the money now.'

"The quota which Mr. Blair had in mind was very soon thereafter announced. The meeting was held in Chicago. Mr. Hays addressed it and spoke his blessings. Typewritten sheets were distributed to those assembled. I produce herewith one of these sheets which carries quotas as indicated. [Here Governor Cox produced the list which is published in another column.]

"This total which Mr. Blair announced could be gathered together quickly is $8,145,000. The population of these cities in round numbers is 25,000,000. Apportioning this on a per capita base, it would amount to 31 cents on every man, woman and child in fifty-one cities. We now have the base of the plan approved by Chairman Hays and Treasurer Upham, but it received endorsement from a higher source. I hold in my hand a copy of the bulletin of Aug. 5, 1920, which carries the following from the Republican nominee for President. It is headed 'Senator Harding's message.'

Reads Harding Message.

"The message is addressed from Marion, under date of July 29, to 'My dear Upham,' and says:

"'Allow me to express through the official bulletin of the Treasurer's office my gratitude for the enthusiasm shown by all associated with your office in raising our national campaign fund for 1920.'

"That Senator Harding is acquainted even with the details of the enterprise is evidenced by a subsequent passage from his message, which is as follows:

"'Through the fine work of your organization we are nearing that form of national patriotism which expresses itself in support from every county, every State. Therefore, I want all members of your organization to feel that their efforts are essential to our success in planning for national enlightenment, and are all deeply appreciated by me.'

"The sum of $8,145,000 is to come not from twenty-seven States, but from the largest cities in twenty-seven States New York State is represented by only four places, New York City, Buffalo, Rochester and Albany, and yet the Hon. Franklin D. Roosevelt announces that the County of Dutchess, a suburban and rural community, was assessed $32,000.

"But let us see whether the quotas placed upon the larger cities were exceeded. Again we come for proof to the official bulletin, which under date of Aug. 10, says:

"'Boston, Mass., had a 90 per cent. attendance at an organization meeting on Aug. 4. This is an excellent record for a hot day. Real interest was aroused. Senator Weeks inspired them with an understanding of the situation and they agreed to produce.'

"That they did produce is proved by the bulletin of Aug. 10, 1920, when telegrams received that day were published. Among others we see the following:

Says Boston Over-Subscribed.

"'Metropolitan Boston will contribute more than 250 per cent. of its original quota.'

"Which would turn the Boston fund from $300,000 to $750,000. The Columbus quota is $100,000, and yet in the bulletin of Aug. 10 a telegram from Columbus is inserted, carrying these reassuring words:

"'Then, too, then end is not yet, for it is probable the sum of $150,000 for the State and national treasury will stand to the credit of Columbus by the first day of September.'

"Then a little color was given to the story. Proud of achievements, Henry E. Owen, the divisional director, who sent the telegram, evidenced his pride in how things were going by submitting details as to just how it was accomplished. Mr. Owen said:

"'This is how it was done: We busy men gave two hours a day for ten consecutive days in interviewing and soliciting, and they turned the trick.'

"That this was intended as a hint to the 'money diggers' is shown by the concluding paragraph in Mr. Owen's telegram, which says:

"'Every State director, every city director, can do like Kelly did—get the right man to see the right people. Do it quickly and systematically.'

"The bulletin of Aug. 10 says that Flint (Mich.) business men decided to make their campaign short and snappy and finish by Aug. 15 and that the Grand Rapids (Mich.) committee of large business men is working enthusiastically to bring the compaign to a speedy conclusion.

"The bulletin of Aug. 16 says:

"'Campaign in Pontiac, Saginaw, Alma, Bay City, Ann Arbor and Jackson, Battle Creek, Grand Rapids and Grand Haven started during the last week. Forty counties in Michigan are now campaigning.'

"In Wisconsin only Milwaukee is named, and yet the bulletin of Aug. 10 says:

"'Kenosha, Wis., has raised its full quota. Other Wisconsin counties organizing now.'

"The bulletin of Aug. 16 says:

"'Wisconsin has every day since the adjournment of the convention recorded itself on the cash register at headquarters with substantial sums. Milwaukee organized a moving forward with big men behind it.'

Reports on Work in Arizona.

"Let us go to the State of Arizona, which is not mentioned at all, but the bulletin of Aug. 10 shows what is going on by this dispatch:

"'Arizona—When the thermometer registers 110 in the shade every day, few men usually respond to campaign work, but the Soliciting Committee is working daily in Phoenix, Tucson, Douglas and Yuma. Considering conditions, they are showing remarkable results in securing subscriptions. Many large contributors are absent on vacation. Phoenix raised one-third of its quota in a week. Tucson expects to report oversubscription Tuesday night. The Norgales committee states start Monday night.'

"This dispatch is signed by Albert Weigel of Yuma, Ariz., and dated Aug. 7.

"The money diggers struck pay dirt in Florida. C. C. Duhen of Eaugallie, under date of Aug. 7, wired the bulletin as follows:

"'Many counties of Florida organizing. Dade and Palm Beach counties very strongly lined up. Key West shows much interest, also Fort Pierce.'

"Speaking of Florida, the bulletin carries this paragraph under date of Aug. 10:

"Maine is not found in the king row, and yet under date of Aug. 16 the bulletin places her in the list with these words:

"With this contribution, Maine, the Pine Tree State, made a record of which she can be truly proud. In the past practically no subscriptions to the National Committee fund were ever received from this State. Starting July 18, the first organization of the State Ways and Means Committee was perfected and on Aug. 15 the quota had been oversubscribed $5,000.

Reads Reports on Ohio.

"Coming to Ohio, we find, according to the Bulletin of Aug. 16, that Cincinnati business men have underwritten quota to be delivered by Sept. 1. By that we are to understand that a group of business men produced the money and will do their collecting later. The point is, however, that the cash has gone to the treasury.

"Middletown, Ohio, is not in the $8,000,000 column and yet the Bulletin under date of July 17, quotes Mr. George M. Verity as saying that the quota of $15,000 for Butler County will be met. Dealing in literal terms, Mr. Verity says:

"'It would be worth while for the Republicans of Butler County to be first to provide their quota of the sinews of war.'

"Portsmouth is not in the Ohio list, yet the bulletin of August says:

"'Portsmouth raised its quota at one meeting.'

"New Hampshire is not named and yet the bulletin of Aug. 16 says:

"'New Hampshire money is being sent every day to the Eastern treasury. Chairman hopes to complete entire State's quota by this week.'

"Only one city in Colorado, Denver, is mentioned yet the bulletin of Aug. 16 says: 'Colorado, Shamlin State chairman, reports northern counties in Colorado have practically raised their quotas. He guarantees State's quota by Sept. 1.'

"Even South Dakota reports to the Bulletin of date Aug. 10, that Sioux Falls had an enthusiastic meeting Aug. 4 and promises its quota by Aug. 15. It is not in the $8,000,000 list. The Bulletin of Aug. 16 says:

"'Mitchell, S. D. has completed quota.'

"That remote places in Illinois are in the pay territory is evidence by a line in the Bulletin of Aug. 16, which runs into these words:

"'Illinois—Will and Boone counties have practically completed quotas.'

Garbles Campaign Slogans.

"I am sure the country will be interested in some of the methods that were adopted that kept things going. In the Bulletin of Aug. 16, Harry H. Blair, Mr. Upham's first assistant, under his own signature, contributed an article entitled, 'Step On It.' These are his slogans:

"'Harding and Coolidge have the confidence of the people, but, boys, get the money.'

"'The weather is hot, the men are on vacations, meetings are hard to get, but boys, get the money.'

"'There are hills to climb, but if you want to make a hill at the same speed you have been running where the road was level you have got to give it more power. Give her the gas: Step on it.'

Says $8,000,000 Was Exceeded.

"That the $8,000,000 fund is not to be the final total in the country at large has already been clearly proved by the statement of Mr. Blair himself. Further information is supplied by official Republican documents. For instance, the bulletin under date Aug. 5 announces:

"Only one of these cities is in the $8,000,000 list. Memphis is assigned $25,000. The bulletin of Aug. 16 announces:

"'Chattanooga oversubscribed its quota this week. The balance of the Tennessee citizens are being carefully canvassed.'

"Not a city in Arkansas is listed in the $8,000,000 class; only one city in Louisiana, New Orleans; only one city in Georgia, Atlanta; not a single city in North Carolina, and yet David H. Blair wired the bulletin as follows:

"'Why not urge the rest of the United States to emulate the example of Arkansas, Louisiana, Georgia and North Carolina, which are all over the top? North Carolina went over on the 27th of July, and the end is not yet.'

"The plan was to keep the spirit moving from one end of the line to the other. This is revealed in a paragraph which deals with the Chicago campaign, which says:

"'Chicago campaign is to be conducted by four full-time divisions, and a fifth reserve division which will swing into action for the last three days on the public movement, functioning as a mop-up battalion.'

"Evidently the 'mop-up' battalion saved the day, as Mr. Upham admits that $700,000 has already been received in Chicago. Evidently the 'money diggers' were molded into some sort of a secret society because what was going on was not to be revealed to the public. The bulletin of Aug. 5 says:

Subscriptions to be Kept Secret.

"'The names and amounts subscribed by donors should not be made public locally.'

"I hereby give it wide and non-exclusive publicity. But why was the publication to be only the organ of the secret society? Why were the names of local contributors not to be made known? Was it because each contribution would carry its own meaning to the voters in the local communities or, if secrecy were guaranteed in the communities, were Mr. Hays and Mr. Upham to do the same thing in submitting their return on box office receipts? Certainly there is some reason. What is it? The public is entitled to know.

"If Mr. Hays and Mr. Upham do not come forward with the information, the Republican National Committee ought to remove them both and install upon a clean bill of health. Furthermore, there should be some explanation of this being made purely a business affair, participated in by business men and business men only. Unexplained, it carries its own condemnation and exposes the purpose of the whole shameful business. It means that the quota is to be assigned against those who are to benefit and that the captains of industry who have answered Mr. Hays's roll call are submitting to taxation with the understanding that they will have representation. Otherwise, it is charged, a planned assault on the electorate. It cannot be hidden. The hosts are marshaled. The money ammunition is prepared, but it will not succeed. The net is spread in sight of the quary. What is the game except to becloud the public mind on the subject of the League of Nations issue and world peace.

Repeats His Charges.

"'The normalcy' voiced by their candidate as visioned by his masters is the bayonet at the factory door, profiteering at the gates of the farm, the burden of government on shoulders other than their own and the Federal Reserve System an annex to big business. When the American people fully grasp the sinister menace hanging over them they will shun it as a plague.

"Truly the Senatorial oligarchy and their candidates are harking back to the days of Mark Hanna. The Wall Street Journal in giving a list of expenditures in campaigns since 1860 shows that in 1896 Mark Hanna spent $16,500,000. Nothing approaching it has been attempted until now. It was this foul thing which Theodore Roosevelt brought to an end when he reformed the Republican Party. When Lewis was doing it Warren G. Harding branded him as an Aaron Burr.

"When my charge of a corruption fund was first made Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, made a distinct threat in these words:

"'If, at the instance of our adversaries, this campaign is finally resolved into a question of personal characters, we know of no reason aside from natural distaste why we should not meet that issue as readily as any other.'

"I renew the charges and accept the challenge."

Thousands Greet Nominee.

Governor Cox's appearance here tonight was marked by a series of unusual demonstrations. The Auditorium in which he spoke was jammed to suffocation and a crowd of perhaps 15,000 collected in the streets outside. The police were helpless to control the crowd, which fought to get into the hall. Order was restored only when Governor Cox delivered an address to an overflow meeting.

Governor Cox jumped right into his evidence to prove his charge of a $15,000,000 Republican campaign fund. He read from manuscript after announcing that "the charges are grave and I want to be accurate." But the Governor made frequent interpolations which caused laughter and applause.

After reading the list of quotas Governor Cox referred to the assessment as "the easy money" and the "money which could be obtained quickly." He pounded away on this point, charging that this was the money which big business turned over quickly. He charged that the original list of quotas was made upon that basis.

The meeting was in an uproar almost continuously from the time Governor Cox began to speak.

Quotations which he read from the bulletin were greeted with jeers, laughter and applause.

When Cox said that Dayton, his home city, had been assessed $60,000 there was laughter. "But they can't buy Dayton with sixty times $60,000," Cox said.

To Give Evidence to Senators.

Governor Cox announced that he intended to place his evidence before the Senatorial sub-committee investigating campaign contributions.

"I say this," he said, "because I do not want any doubters."

There was applause when Cox said that the Republican National Committee should remove Chairman Hays and Treasurer Upham if they could not give a clean bill of health.

Governor Cox challenged Hays and Upham to deny that the paper from which he read the quotas was official.

The meeting was in an uproar when Governor Cox announced that he renewed the charges and accepted Mr. Hayes's challenge. The great crowd was up and cheering and the address was interrupted for about two minutes.

Governor Cox asked if any one was not convinced of the guilt of the Republican Party. A man in the gallery shouted "yes." There were shouts of "Put him out," but Governor Cox insisted on giving him a hearing.

"You have not named a corporation that has contributed a cent," the man shouted.

"My friend," replied Governor Cox, "the Chairman of the Senate committee is a Republican. I have given him the lead, he can call in the men now who can produce the names of the contributors, and if they don't do it I shall continue to ask questions until Nov. 2."

Across the back of the stage from which Governor Cox spoke was a great banner bearing these words:

"Senator Harding said in 1912 Roosevelt is utterly without conscience and regard for truth and the greatest faker of his time."

The declaration by Governor Cox that many of the men who contributed to the Republican campaign fund were trying to use the bayonet to settle strikes brought cheers and the speech was held up. There was the same scene when he declared that no shots were fired in settling labor disputes in Ohio while he was Governor.

There were men and women of almost every walk of life in the audience in the hall, many hundreds of them workers from the great mills who had fought for seats in order to hear the Governor. Old-time observers of things political said the meeting tonight compared in enthusiasm with anything of the kind held here in years.

JUDGE MILLER URGES HELP TO FARMERS

Calls for Co-operation by State, Producer and Consumer for the Benefit of All.

WEEDSPORT, N. Y., Aug. 26.—True cooperation by the State government, the farmer who produces food and the consumer, all on the basis of a square deal for each, was urged in an address here today by ex-Judge Nathan L. Miller, Republican organization candidate for the nomination for Governor, as the only way to stimulate food production.

The speech, delivered at a farmers' picnic here, while not strictly a political address, was Mr. Miller's first public utterance since his selection as the choice of the delegates to the unofficial Republican State Convention at Saratoga Springs last month.

"In whatever we do we must promote the spirit of cooperation and good will," Mr. Miller said.

"The consumer must understand that his interests lie in giving the producer a sufficient profit to stimulate production. The producer must understand that the right to cooperate involves the obligation not to oppress, which the State must enforce. Both must adhere to the principles of the square deal."

A proper balance must be restored and maintained between farm and factory, the speaker said, "or we shall find ourselves dependent upon imports for food, a condition which is unthinkable with our vast acres. The farmer can no longer cope singly with modern conditions. He cannot compete with the factory for labor, and the boys and girls have been drawn from the farms by the opportunities and attractions of the city.

"Improvements in living and working conditions on the farm ought to make farm life more attractive, and yet we have an acute housing problem on our hands in the cities and untenanted dwellings dotting our hillsides. With a tenth of the population of the nation within the boundaries of our State, affording the best market within easy reach of the farm, thousands of acres of farm land are untilled and unused and that acreage is increasing.

"The farmer may find some consolation in the thought that he is the bone and sinew of the nation, a truth of which he is always reminded just before election, but unless agriculture is to continue to languish, the farmer's problem must be treated by action and not merely by fair words, and when I say farmer's problem I mean the problem of every consumer in the State."

The solution, Mr. Miller said, lay in "making the farm more profitable and more attractive, to encourage the farmer to till his acres, employ labor, and plant, cultivate, harvest and market his crops."

He attacked the practice of price fixing by the Government.

"We have had a sufficient object lesson in price fixing to know that interference with natural laws will defeat its purpose. I do not say that it was unnecessary, but I do say that a free people will not and ought not to submit to price fixing in normal times.

"The function of the State is limited to assuring every individual a fair field and an equal chance, to preserving that individual liberty and equality of opportunity which has thus far prevented the stratification of society in this country and which, if maintained, will preserve us from the dangers of Bolshevism and all the other isms."

ASKS ABELES TO QUIT TO BEAT SOCIALISTS

Demand for Withdrawal Made Upon Bronx Republican by Security League.

FUSION IN FIVE DISTRICTS

Senator Refuses to Efface Himself as Candidate in Fight to Defeat Radicals.

With fusion assured against the five ousted Socialists running for re-election to the Assembly at the special elections on Sept. 15, the National Security League yesterday made a formal demand upon State Senator Peter A. Abeles, Republican candidate for renomination in the Twenty-second Senatorial District, the Bronx, to withdraw and permit fusion on some other Republican to prevent the possibility of the election of a Socialist as State Senator at the November election.

The Republicans have withdrawn their candidates for the Assembly in the Third and Fourth Districts and indorsed the Democratic candidates in order to complete fusion against Samuel Orr and Samuel A. DeWitt, Socialists, for both the special and general elections, and also will withdraw their candidate and indorse the Democratic candidate at the general election in the Fifth Assembly District. The organization Democrats, headed by Arthur H. Murphy, have refused to indorse Senator Abeles because of his vote for ratification of the prohibition amendment, but have expressed willingness to indorse any other Republican.

In its letter to Senator Abeles the National Security League said it did not wish to go into the points at issue in Senator Abeles's candidacy, but asked his withdrawal upon the "broad principle of the necessity of personal and party sacrifice to defeat the common enemy." The letter follows:

"We are particularly anxious to prevent the Socialist Party, which in its present status is distinctly an anti-American party, from being represented in any of our legislative bodies, and we have thus far been absolutely successful, only with the exception of your district.

"It is our understanding that the Democrats in your district are willing to indorse any Republican candidate except yourself. We also have reason to believe that the State and county leaders of your party would be only too glad to have you withdraw for the sake of achieving a patriotic purpose.

"We wish to urge you to forget personality and to give the voters of your district, who are anxious to defeat the Socialist candidate, an opportunity to combine and emphatically register their votes against the candidate of an unpatriotic party.

"Surely, to withdraw your name from an office to which under prevailing conditions you could probably not be elected anyway should be much more satisfactory to your good self, especially if by withdrawing you would be of substantial service to your district as well as to the country at large."

Senator Abeles said last night that he had no intention of withdrawing. Asked if he had any reason to believe the Democrats would finally recede from their position and indorse him before the expiration of the period of filing declinations tonight, he said he had not. "Despite the failure of the Democrats to indorse me," he said, "I will be elected."

Jacob A. Livingston, Brooklyn Republican leader, notified the National Security League yesterday that the Republicans would not run a candidate of their own in the Twenty-third Brooklyn District but would indorse the Democratic candidate against Charles Solomon, Socialist, who only lacked 150 of a majority against both Democratic and Republican candidates for the Assembly last year.

Fusion was accomplished in the Eighth and Seventeenth Manhattan districts against Louis Waldman and August Claessens, respectively, before the time ended for filing nominating petitions. Waldman, Claessens, Orr and DeWitt were elected against fusion in their districts last year.

MRS. E. A. BOOLE REMINDS PAYNE SHE'S IN RACE

Frank Munsey in Signed Editorial Comes Out for Wadsworth for Senate.

Mrs. Ella A. Boole, President of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, who is running for the Republican nomination for United States Senator, said yesterday that George Henry Payne, also a candidate for the same nomination, had apparently overlooked her when he said there was no other candidate than himself against Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr.

"Mr. Payne evidently is uninformed or perverts purposely," Mrs. Boole said. "I am an enrolled Republican. I have second place on the ticket for the Republican primary for United States Senator and I have the support of practically all the organizations that are supporting Senator Wadsworth. My candidacy represents certain definite principles for which Senator Wadsworth has refused to stand, and in addition a constructive program which not only means standing by the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead act, but lays emphasis upon the woman viewpoint in child welfare, education and citizenship."

Mr. Payne in a speech at Ellenville, Ulster County, offered to withdraw in favor of Charles E. Hughes or Frank A. Munsey, or any candidate whom they might select. In a signed editorial in The Sun and New York Herald yesterday, however, Mr. Munsey announced his support of Senator Wadsworth, as "a man of fine lineage, liberally educated, of delightful personality and of wide experience in legislation."

Mr. Munsey said that obviously Senator Wadsworth was sincere in his opposition to woman suffrage, but declared that woman suffrage is now an accomplished fact and is no longer an issue. Incidentally, Mr. Munsey disclosed that Mr. Payne called upon him recently and tried unsuccessfully to get Mr. Munsey to run for the nomination.

CLAIMS WEST FOR HARDING.

Poindexter Says Cox's WIlsonian Policy Will Not Win Votes There.

Special to The New York Times.

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 26.—Senator Miles Poindexter, Chairman of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee, passing through here today on his way to the Middle West, said:

"I do not believe that Cox's Wilsonian policy concerning the League will gain many votes for him west of the Rockies. People here are too broad minded to vote for a man who will embroil them once more in European affairs. Furthermore, I find that very many Democrats out here will not vote the Democratic ticket this year. They are tired of the Democratic Administration and, in view of Cox's declarations that he expects to carry out Wilson's policy immediately, will play shy of such a party. A large element of the entire Democratic Party will vote for Harding.

"Of course, personally, I am just as interested in the Senatorial campaign. We are sure that the Pacific and Rocky Mountain States are for our national ticket. We are particularly interested in making gains for the Senate in this territory. Oregon is a very strong Republican State normally, even though Chamberlain was elected. We think, however, that we can put Robert Stanfield in his place next November.

"We believe we have gained a Senator in Idaho. We also expect to win in Colorado. In Oregon, Colorado, Idaho, Nevada, and Arizona there are now Democratic Senators in the Senate. We are hoping to gain some of these places for the Republicans.

"Washington is almost certain Republican. There the Non-Partisan League will put up a ticket of its own. It is not strong and although closely affiliated with the Farmer-Labor Party will draw more Democrats than Republicans. In South Dakota we will make a gain as well."

He asked about his future movements, he added:

"I am going East to superintend the work in doubtful Senatorial districts such as Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky and Maryland."

Socialist Asks Cox to Debate Sept. 6

tained from the "Republican Bulletin," a pamphlet published irregularly at Chicago Republican headquarters and sent out broadcast to Republican State and local committees and to members of the Ways and Means Committee of the Republican National Committee.

Say Blair's List Was Tentative.

The exception was said to be the list of quotas for fifty-one cities, upon which Governor Cox apparently placed great stress. It was explained that this quota list, which was said to be merely tentative and never acted upon, was prepared by Mr. Blair at a time when subscriptions to the Republican cause were not coming in well from the rural districts. Mr. Blair was said to have prepared four copies. How one of these copies came into the possession of Governor Cox none of the Republican leaders in this city was able to explain.

It was learned earlier in the day at Republican headquarters that Chairman Hays and the other Republican leaders intend to carry the fight to the Democrats in the Senate investigation at Chicago next week, and will insist upon a rigid investigation of the Democratic campaign fund. It was intimated that the Republican Chairman would probably be able to furnish the committee with some leads to follow.

Mr. Hays refused to go into details on the facts which he would present regarding Democratic funds. He intimated, however, that he would compare the expenditures of the two parties since 1916 to the advantage of the Republicans.

"Governor Cox has brought up the campaign fund issue and we have no alternative but to meet him on the ground he has chosen," he said. "Our own skirts are clear and we are not afraid for the public to make a comparison."

George White, Democratic National Chairman, said he had no comment to make on a published report that the failure of the Democratic Party to gain financial support from quarters upon which it had counted precipitated Governor Cox's attack upon the Republican methods of raising money.

"I don't know anything about it," Mr. White said.

came immediately to Marion after having seen Mr. Root in Paris. Also, Col. George Harvey, whose opposition to the League is well known, is still here.

There is every indication here that the Republican campaign will not deal solely with attacks upon the Wilson covenant, and that instead Senator Harding will come forward, if not Saturday, then later in the campaign, with a concrete, definite scheme of international relations which a Republican Administration would propose to submit to the nations of the world in place of the League of Nations.

Senator Harding, it was learned today, will not complete his speech to the Indianapolis delegation coming here Saturday until late tonight or tomorrow morning.

Herrick Cites European View.

"The people of Europe," said Mr. Herrick, "believed that President Wilson really represented the United States in demanding his program, and they did not want to interfere. They knew how vital was the sympathy, co-operation and understanding of America. They did not understand our governmental system, did not realize that it was possible for the head of our State to be out of harmony with both the Congress and the people.

"Even when, in November, 1918, President Wilson was rebuked by more than a million electoral majority they still failed entirely to realize what it meant. Of course, at that point, they were largely deprived of the privilege of understanding American events, because the censorship kept news from this country, imposed by President Wilson, made it impossible for the truth to get to the people of France and Europe.

"If President Wilson had sent a peace commission of properly equipped delegates and they had made the bases of a sound peace, say in January of 1919, Europe would have agreed readily and could have returned to its task of production and rehabilitation. Its economic basis would have been secure.

"For the tragic failure to accomplish this, the President alone was responsible, and all Europe now knows it. I have just returned from Europe, where I have talked with very many of the foremost statesmen, and I know that this statement reflects their attitude.

Reservations No Bar, Ex-Ambassador Says.

"They persistently inquire why we did not submit to them the reservations adopted by the Senate. Without exception, they insist that, if these had been submitted to them, they would instantly have acquiesced in them. I have explained, time and again, that the Senate has no channel through which it can communicate, save the head of the President, with foreign Governments. The long and short of it was that the Senate could not, and President Wilson would not, inform Europe of the real facts about American sentiment and attitudes.

"It is incomprehensible that the President should thus have interposed himself against the one procedure that would have insured quick and stable peace. The reservations would have protected American interests and their adoption would have insured prompt peace. But he was unwilling to make any concession whatever, and so the world drifted into the chaos that now prevails.

"As to the military alliance provided under Article X of the League Covenant, the Russo-Polish war has been complete proof of its utter inefficacy. Poland has been the complete test of the league, and the complete proof of its impracticability.

"England could not send troops because of domestic political conditions in England. We could not send them; France was not able to furnish the necessary force. At the first test, the military alliance proved a complete failure," concluded the former Ambassador, "and all the statesmen and publicists of France acknowledge the fact."

Harding Talks to Teachers.

Senator Harding, in his extemporaneous speech to school teachers of Marion County, who called on him at his front porch, recalled his experiences as a district school teacher in his youth.

"My mind runs back to something like thirty-eight years ago," Senator Harding said, "when I was myself in attendance as a teacher at a Marion County institute. I had only come from college the year before, and did what was very much the practice of that time—turned to teaching in my abundant fullness of knowledge, merely as a temporary occupation. If I only knew as much now as I thought I knew then, I would be abundantly capable of fulfilling the office for which I have been named.

"In our modern life we have shifted some of the responsibility which I think should accrue to parenthood over to the teachers in our public schools. So you have much to do with making the citizenship in this Republic of ours, and I believe that our teachers should be compensated as liberally, if not more liberally, than any other profession.

"I do not try to give you the impression that the Federal Government can do that; but we do have a Federal Department of Education, which has only a relative influence on educational work. Some day we may have a much larger and more important department of education, but in any event the Federal Government can exert its influence in behalf of a becoming recognition of the teaching profession.

"If the enterprise in which we are now engaged succeeds, as I believe it will, you are going to have a friend of the teaching profession in a position of influence in the United States.

"May I revert for the moment to

United States Battle Fleet Will Continue to be Superior in 1923.

TOKIO HAS BIG PROGRAM ON

It Calls for Construction of Eight Superdreadnoughts and Eight Battle Cruisers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Much interest has been aroused in this country over the Japanese naval building program which calls for the construction of eight superdreadnoughts and eight battle cruisers—the eight-eight program, as it is termed. Information at hand shows that the battle cruisers of the Akagi and the Amagi type, are to be smaller by more than 3,000 tons than the American dreadnought battle cruiser Saratoga and her class.

The Akagi and the Amagi are in a class of four under construction, the others being the Atago and the Atako. Four similar vessels are projected. Figures obtainable show the following comparative measurements of the Akagi class with the Saratoga class:

Akagi class—full load displacement, 40,000 tons; speed, 30 knots per hour; main battery, eight 16-inch guns; shaft horsepower not definitely known. One report is that the shaft horsepower is 250,000, but this is not believed, as the larger vessels of the Saratoga class are to be faster than the Akagi class with much less horsepower than 250,000.

Saratoga class—full load displacement, 43,500 tons; speed, 33.25 knots per hour; main battery, eight 16-inch guns; shaft horsepower, 180,000.

The Japanese dreadnoughts Negato and Mutsu are compared with the ships of the American Colorado class in that they are of the same classification and almost of a size. The Japanese vessels will have a slight advantage over the Colorado class in displacement and more than two knots better speed. The comparison follows:

Negato and Mutsu—Full load displacement, 33,800; speed, 23.5; main battery, eight 16-inch guns.

The Japanese vessels are supposed to be four-turbine ships. Te Negato was launched on Nov. 16, 1919. The Mutsu was launched on May 31, 1920. The material for two other vessels of this class is being assembled. Four others are scheduled for completion in 1923. Of the battle cruisers of the eight-eight program two are being built to be completed by 1923, two others have been authorized and four are projected. These last mentioned six should be completed by 1927.

A comparison of the United States and Japanese battle fleets in 1923 will show the following:

Battle cruisers, 6; 14-inch guns, 32; 16-inch guns, 16.

In the seventeen battleships of the American fleet, built and building, are six vessels of more than 40,000 tons displacement. All are included in the program to be completed by 1923. In addition to these the United States is building four battleships of more than 43,000 tons.

All the new super-dreadnoughts of more than 33,000 tons and more than 43,000 tons will carry batteries of 16-inch guns, the four ships of the Colorado class having eight each and the six ships of the South Dakota class having twelve each.

The Saratoga class of battle cruisers, which the Navy Department hopes to complete by 1923, comprises six vessels. The American navy has no battle cruisers in commission.

Under the intensive Japanese building program, eight battleships and six battle cruisers are to be completed by 1923 and it is expected that the rest of the Japanese program for capital vessels—those capable of going into the first battle line—will be completed in 1927 with twelve battleships and twelve battle cruisers added to the fleet. In addition, the Japanese program calls for eight high speed cruisers of 6,000 tons, twenty-four light cruisers of 5,000 tons, thirty-two destroyers of 1,300 tons, thirty-two destroyers of 850 tons, twenty-four submarines of 1,800 tons, forty submarines of 800 tons, and twelve special duty ships of about 12,000 tons.

MRS. SKEFFINGTON A JUDGE.

Appointed by Sinn Fein 'Parliament' to 'Supreme Court of Ireland.'

Mrs. Hannah Sheehy Skeffington, whose husband died in the Easter rebellion, has been appointed a Justice of the "Supreme Court of Ireland," by the Sinn Fein "Parliament," according to a cablegram received here yesterday from Mrs. Skeffington. The message was addressed to Mrs. Cathleen O'Brennan at the Hotel Ansonia.

"Will the newly enfranchised American women," Mrs. Skeffington asked in her message, "show their love of freedom and justice by asking their Government to prove its good faith to the democracy of the world by stopping the murder of Mayor MacSweney?"

Mrs. O'Brennan announced last night that Mrs. Gertrude Corliss, who was one of the British Embassy pickets a short time ago, would head a delegation to Washington today to interview Secretary of State Colby on the Justice's suggestion. Miss Helen Pinkerton of Tacoma, Wash., will start East at the same time for the same purpose.

While Washington is being besought, the pickets at the British Consulate, 44 Whitehall Street, will be continuing their exercise.

Tonight a mass meeting to show indignation against the treatment accorded MacSweney will be held in the Lexington Theatre.

NUGENT WINS IN PRIMARY.

Idaho Democrats Renominate Senator—Republicans for Gooding.

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho, Aug. 26.—United States Senator John F. Nugent of Idaho was renominated for that office Wednesday at the Idaho State Democratic Convention. T. A. Walters, of Caldwell, was unanimously nominated for Governor.

Mrs. Nell K. Irions, of Sand Point, nominated for Congress from the First District is the first woman to be named for a Congress in the State. Mayor W. F. Whitaker, of Pocatello, was nominated for Congress from the Second District.

Mrs. Sarah E. Melvin, of Lemlin County was nominated for State Treasurer.

POCATELLO, Idaho, Aug. 25.—F. R. Gooding of Gooding, Idaho, won the nomination for United States Senator in the State Republican Convention today. Congressman Burton L. French, of the First District and Addison T. Smith, Second District, were renominated, as was Governor E. W. Davis.

De Valera to Talk on MacSweney.

Circumstances surrounding the arrest, trial and hunger strike of Terence MacSweney, Lord Mayor of Cork, whom Premier Lloyd George has declined to free from his prison cell in Brixton, will be described at a public meeting here tonight by Eamonn de Valera, "president of the Irish Republic," and three members of the Irish "parliament." Addresses will be made to acquaint the American public with "the facts in the case," it was announced. The meetings, to be held under the auspices of the American Committee on Irish Independence, was called by Frank P. Walsh, Chairman.

that connects the office of the Secretary of State with he library of the President. And he asked me if I had been invited to address this meeting tonight. He expressed his pleasure when I told him that I had, and said: 'I hope you will let nothing interfere with your attendance.' He said:

"'Will you take the opportunity to say to my fellow citizens that I deem it one of the greatest honors of my life that this great event, the ratification of this amendment, should have occurred during the period of my administration.'

"And he said, further:

"'Please say also that nothing has given me more pleasure than the privilege that has been mine to do what I could to advance the cause of ratification, and to hasten the day when the womanhood of America would be recognized by the nation on the equal footing of citizenship that it deserves.'"

Present Memorial to Wilson.

Late this afternoon Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, head of the National American Woman's Suffrage Association, and Mrs. Helen H. Gardiner, another active worker in that organization, were received at the White House by President and Mrs. Wilson. The National Woman's Party, known as the militants, and a rival organization to that headed by Mrs. Catt, was not represented.

Mrs. Catt and Mrs. Gardiner presented to the President a memorial of appreciation in the form of a bound volume, a page coming from each State, for the work he did for suffrage. They had expected to receive from the President a written message to be read tonight at the big mass meeting and jubilee at Poli's Theatre over the ratification of the amendment, but the President informed them he had handed it to Secretary Colby and that the latter would include it in his remarks to the women at the mass meeting.

One page of the volume presented to the President is taken up with the tribute from the New York organization, the first paragraph of which reads:

"Dear Mr. President: The women of this organization of a million and a quarter enrolled members have a special reason for loyalty and gratitude. Your stalwart advocacy of our campaign last year contributed materially to our victory in New York State."

This is signed:

"New York State Woman Suffrage Party, Harriet Burton Laidlaw, Mary Garret Hay, Laura J. Starke Belknap, Narcissa Cox Vanderlip, Muriel Rosalie Edge, Katrina Ely Tiffany."

The mass meeting was attended by women from every section of the country and a number of officials of the administration, including members of the Cabinet, were present.

Factions Dispute Over Ceremony.

Differences between the rival organizations of suffragists as to who should be present at the signing of the proclamation developed yesterday, and as no agreement could be brought about between them, it is believed that Secretary Colby decided to sign the proclamation in his own home to avoid a clash at his offices.

"It was decided," said the Secretary in a statement this afternoon, "not to accompany this simple ministerial action on my part with any ceremony or setting. This secondary aspect of the subject has regretfully been the source of considerable contention as to who shall participate in it and who shall not. Inasmuch as I am not interested in the aftermath of any of the friction or collisions which may have been developed in the long struggle for the ratification of the amendment, I have contented myself with the performance in the simplest manner of the duty devolving upon me under the law."

Representatives of both factions visited the State Department this morning. Mrs. Catt and members of her party were photographed by movie operators as they left the State Department. Miss Alice Paul and her associates of the militant wing of the suffragists waited in the corridor of the State Department to be seen by the Secretary of State, who sent word he would receive them, but at this moment the Spanish Ambassador arrived and took precedence over the delegation of militants.

As time wore on the militant delegation thinned and finally left the department without having an audience with the Secretary of State.

Secretary Colby late this afternoon was asked by newspaper men to picture the scene that took place at his home when the final chapter of the story of ratification was reached.

Colby Describes the Signing.

"The package containing the certified record of the action of the Legislature of the State of Tennessee," said Mr. Colby, "came in on a train which reached Washington some time during the early morning hours. I was awakened by Charles L. Cooke of the State Department at about a quarter to 4 o'clock this morning, who said that the packet from the Governor of Tennessee had arrived. I told him to bring it to me."

Secretary Colby was then asked whether Mr. Cooke brought the packet to him forthwith.

"He brought it to me in about ten minutes," replied the Secretary. "There were some legal matters connected with the ratification that I wished to have examined by the chief law officer of the State Department, so I sent the papers to F. K. Nielsen, the solicitor of the State Department, with instructions to bring the papers to me at my home at 8 o'clock this morning.

"I had received a large number of messages asking me to act on the amendment with insistent promptitude. Fear was strong in some minds that the 'antis' would effect some sort of injunction from the courts to interfere with my proclamation of the completion of the act of ratification. While it was not my opinion that it would be becoming for me to resort to undue eagerness to avoid an opportunity for judicial interference, I saw no reason whatever why I should conspicuously loiter.

"I confess to a disinclination to signing it in the wee morning hours of the night, believing that would not be conducive to a dignifed function of so important a character, and thought that 8 o'clock in the morning would be a fair hour for action in the matter."

Secretary Colby was asked whether he had eaten breakfast before he signed the proclamation.

"Breakfast is an unimportant function with me," replied the Secretary with a smile. "I may say that I had time to partake of about one and one-half cups of coffee before I signed the proclamation."

Paraphrases Dewey at Manila.

"You remember," he continued, "the simple way in which the late Admiral Dewey went about the opening of his battle at Manila Bay, how he waited until morning to enter Manila Bay, went up on deck, wiped the egg stains of breakfast from his moustache, observed the disposition of the enemy's ships and of his own, which had crossed the mines during the night, and then taking out a cigar, turned to one of his Captains and said: 'When you are ready, you may fire, Gridley.' So I turn to the women of America and say: 'You may now fire when you are ready. You have been enfranchised.'"

Secretary Colby in response to other questions said that he had used no golden pen prepared for the occasion, but an ordinary steel pen, in signing the proclamation. It was one of his regular pens, he explains, and when asked to whom it would be given, replied: "I have promised it to dozens of persons."

Asked whether he would give the pen to the National American Woman's Suffrage Association, the National Woman's Party, or send it to the Smithsonian Institution, Secretary Colby said with a smile, "I should not be surprised if it found its way there."

Immediately after the announcement that Secretary Colby had signed the proclamation, Alice Paul said:

"August 26th will be remembered as one of the great days in the history of the women of the world and in the history of this republic.

"All women must feel a great sense of triumph and of unmeasurable relief at the successful conclusion of a long and exhausting struggle.

"The suffrage amendment is now safe beyond all reasonable expectation of legal attack. This opinion was secured from high legal authorities by officers of the National Woman's Party, who devoted their efforts after the signing of the ratification proclamation to discover what further steps, if any, would be necessary to protect the amendment.

"Pending injunction cases were automatically thrown out of court by the signing of the proclamation according to the consensus of legal opinion. The only possible legal attack is now through a taxpayers' suit to prevent the women in an individual State from voting."

National headquarters of the Woman's Party will be maintained. A national convention of its members will be called to decide upon the party's future policy. Alice Paul will go to New York probably on Saturday en route to hold a meeting of the Executive Committee to discuss plans and a date for the convention, it was said.

McAdoo Sends Congratulations.

William G. McAdoo was one of the first to congratulate the Woman's Party on the signing of the proclamation in a message to Mrs. Abby Scott Baker, political Chairman of the party. He said:

"I know how justly elated you and all the splendid women who have been working so devotedly with you are today over the consummation of the great thing for which you and they have fought. You have had a conspicuously influential part in the triumphs of woman's suffrage. I know with what intelligence and courage you have gone at the task. I am rejoiced not alone for you, but for all the women of America, at this colossal achievement for humanity and civilization."

Francis J. Heney of Los Angeles wired Mrs. Abby Scott Baker:

"Hearty congratulations on success which is yours. The victory is due to the inconquerable fighting spirit of your little band of irreconcilables. More power to all of you."

"There is absolutely nothing that can be done now to upset or nullify the ratification of suffrage by the Tennessee Legislature," said Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton, Vice Chairman of the Republican National Executive Committee, and President of the Ohio Suffrage Association. "I regard the suffrage victory in Tennessee as perfectly safe right now and nothing can undo it. Otherwise Mrs. Catt and I would never have left Nashville and come to Washington.

"And right here I want to publicly give credit to those stalwart mountaineer Republicans of the Tennessee Legislature who stood pat on suffrage from start to finish and who made suffrage possible. Had it not been for their faithfulness and their devotion to what they believed was right suffrage would never have won out in Tennessee. You can quote me on that and make it as I really believe."

Mrs. Upton, accompanied by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, President of the International Suffrage Association, came to Washington from Nashville to confer with Secretary Colby and with officials of the Department of Justice and also to attend the suffrage jubilee held here tonight.

SAYS STATE DID NOT RATIFY.

Speaker of Tennessee Wires Colby House Vote Was Nullified.

Special to The New York Times.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 26.—With the exception of a telegram to Secretary of State Colby from Speaker Seth M. Walker of the Tennessee House of Representatives, there have been no new developments in the fight for the ratification of the Susan B. Anthony Suffrage Amendment in the Tennessee Legislature today.

Suffrage workers regard the proclamation of Secretary of State Colby as final and are content to leave the matter of ratification to the decision of the courts.

Speaker Walker's telegram to Secretary Colby follows:

"Tennessee has not ratified Nineteenth Amendment. Motion to reconsider House vote was duly entered on journal, and no quorum was present under Constitution of Tennessee on Aug. 21, 1920, when motion to reconsider was attempted to be acted upon.

"Under decision of Judge Lurton in 87 Tennessee reports, 167, effect of motion to reconsider was to nullify prior vote until said motion was acted on by Constitutional quorum of 66 members. This has not been done. Legislature acting as Parliamentary body under provision of Tennessee Constitution, see Haire vs. Rice 204, United States 291.

"This Legislature has no power to act and, furthermore, has not acted. The Governor's certificate in effect leaves these two questions up to you to decide, which you can lawfully do.

(Signed) "SETH M. WALKER.
"Speaker of the Tennessee House of Representatives."

DECATUR, Ala., Aug. 26.—Members of the Tennessee Legislature on a filibuster here, joined today in a statement saying that notwithstanding the proclamation by Secretary Colby mass meetings called for Saturday would be held in Tennessee "to condemn the high-handed action" of Governor Roberts and "the other politicians who were instrumental in influencing members to vote for the amendment in violation of their oaths and contrary to the wishes of their constituents."

AUGUSTA, Me., Aug. 26.—Governor Milliken issued a proclamation tonight calling a special session of the Legislature to meet on Aug. 31 for the purpose of enacting Legislation to enable women to register in time to vote at the State election on Sept. 13.

SEEK ASSEMBLY SESSION.

Connecticut Attorney General Sees Need of Revising Statutes.

HARTFORD, Conn., Aug. 26.—A special session of the General Assembly is necessary to bring the election statutes into harmony with the suffrage amendment, in the opinion of Attorney General F. E. Healey.

The suffragists say that if the Governor does not, within a few days, call a special session so that the period for enrolling women as voters may be lengthened, a formal request for the calling of the General Assembly will be made to him.

Executive Secretary John Buckley said that as soon as official notification comes from Secretary of State Colby of the ratification of the amendment, the Governor will consider "the advisability for, and need of, a special session."

Ratification Pleases White.

George White, Democratic National Chairman, expressed gratification over the proclamation of the ratification of the woman suffrage amendment by Secretary of State Bainbridge Colby, following official certification of favorable action by Tennessee, the thirty-sixth State. "I am particularly pleased," he said, "that a Democratic State brought final ratification and that the proclamation was issued by a Democratic Secretary of State."

GOV. SMITH TO GREET MRS. CARRIE C. CATT

Governor Smith, who issued the call for the special session of the New York State Legislature which ratified the woman suffrage amendment, will be among the first to greet Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, President of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, upon her return from Nashville, Tenn., this afternoon. Governor Smith will go to the Pennsylvania Station, where Mrs. Catt will be met by hundreds of suffragists when she arrives at 2:06 this afternoon, city time.

With Mrs. Catt will be Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton of Ohio, Vice Chairman of the National Republican Executive Committee, and Miss Charl Williams of Tennessee, Vice Chairman of the National Democratic Executive Committee. Both of these women were active in Tennessee during the fight for ratification, as representatives, respectively, of Senator Harding and Governor Cox in the efforts of the two Presidential nominees to gain a thirty-sixth ratifying State.

The suffragists will assemble at Thirty-first street and Seventh Avenue, from which place they will accompany Mrs. Catt to the Waldorf-Astoria. The procession will proceed up Seventh Avenue to Thirty-fourth Street and across Thirty-Fourth Street to the hotel. The order of the procession will be:

Mounted police; Seventy-first Regiment Band; standard bearers; automobile carrying Mrs. Catt, Mrs. Upton, Miss Williams and Miss Mary Garrett Hay, Vice-President of the association; officers of the National American Woman Suffrage Association; officers of the State League of Women voters; officers of the City League of Women Voters; delegation of Connecticut women; delegation of New Jersey women, and suffragists.

GOV. ROBERTS SIGNING SUFFRAGE CERTIFICATE

stration in favor of the release of the Lord Mayor of Cork was held tonight in the neighborhood of Brixton Prison. The demonstrators did not get near enough to the prison for any sound of theirs to penetrate to the cells. The police in strong force held all approaches to the prison and forced the demonstrators to place their wagon platform a quarter of a mile away.

The meeting was organized by The Daily Herald and a huge banner advertising the Socialist-Labor newspaper and its editor, George Landbury, completely overshadowed a small placard referring to the Lord Mayor. One Sinn Fein flag was also displayed on the platform and there was another at the back of the crowd, while green blouses and hat trimmings were conspicuous among the women who listened to the speeches.

Perhaps one thousand people attended the proceedings. The platform had been set in a side street about a hundred yards from the main road, and in front of it the real sympathizers with the Lord Mayor and revolution were packed to hear fiery speeches and pass blood-curdling resolutions. Behind them stood two policemen quietly chatting. To THE NEW YORK TIMES representative one remarked: "There are a lot of people here, but they are very young."

As he spoke a raw of schoolboys perched on a wall, in a shrill treble, broke into a popular song. On the main road all Brixton was out to see the event. It is a popular London suburb, and men, women and children found the demonstration interesting. They were entirely good tempered.

One burly workman told THE TIMES representative:

"Last night one fellow shouted 'Up rebels!' Then one policeman got up and the fellow ran. The fellow said he wished he had him (the policeman) in Ireland, he did, then he would shoot him.' The policeman was not listening."

The police lines had a particular fascination for the crowd, which kept parading past, watching half a dozen officers, who blocked the way to the prison, and a dark mass of reserves twenty yards behind.

One man became abusive. A solitary policeman stepped into the crowd and bade him pass along. He refused, and the policeman shoved him down.

An inspector in charge nodded to ten sergeants and they quietly worked their way through the throng to their comrade's aid. Then three more, and then another ten were sent after them, with the result that the crowd gathering around the first were quietly and efficiently shepherded along far away from the point where trouble might have broken out. Vigilance was undoubtedly necessary. In a gathering as large as this there were plenty of young men who might have been violent if they got out of hand, but they seemed unorganized and completely submerged by Brixton out for a Summer evening's diversion.

DUBLIN, Aug. 26.—Replying to the appeal of the Irish Dominion Conference in behalf of Lord Mayor MacSweney, Home Secretary Shortt telegraphed today:

"I am very sorry. The decision is the decision of the Cabinet, and I cannot alter it."

An announcement was made at Dublin Castle this evening that eleven hunger striking prisoners in the Cork jail had been transferred from cells to the prison hospital.

The announcement added that no prison regulations were to be allowed to stand in the way of any possible palliative treatment.

A large creamery at Knocklong, County Limerick, was burned today. A creamery at Shanheiden was set on fire, but the flames were extinguished.

PARIS, Aug. 26.—George Gavan Duffy, Irish Member of Parliament, who is the "Irish Republican Envoy" to France, today published a letter he sent to Premier Millerand yesterday, appealing to France to intervene for the release of Lord Mayor MacSweney.

The letter says that France saved the British Empire by her sacrifices during the war, and "were a suggestion made to the London Government it would save the life of an Irish patriot."

MOBS OVERRUN BELFAST SHOOTING AND BURNING

Some Killed and Many Wounded in New Outbreaks—Soldiers Fire Into Crowds.

BELFAST, Aug. 26 (Associated Press)—Serious rioting broke out in Belfast tonight, during which there was considerable shooting and some incendiarism.

A number of wounded persons were taken to hospitals.

Early today Sinn Feiners in Ballymacarrett sniped the military, who returned the fire. Fraser McCann was shot dead and another man was wounded.

Tonight's rioting began in the Falls District of West Belfast, the scene of the deadliest fighting in the July disturbances. It started with revolver firing near the Kashmir Road, of evil memories. Albert Street, in the Falls area, situated in the populous mill locality, mainly inhabited by Nationalists, became the new storm centre.

During the trouble an armored car appeared and fired on the rioters, a number of whom were taken to hospitals suffering from machine-gun wounds. Crowds of shipyard workers appeared from the side streets, waving union jacks.

The military was heartily cheered, as was a section of the fire brigade which was summoned for an incendiary fire at the foot of Seaford Street. A few minutes after the fire started the whole block of buildings was a seething mass of flames. There was much looting.

At 8 o'clock the riots had extended to Grosvenor Road, a long thoroughfare running from the heart of the city to the Falls, where two spirit stores were looted. The military was obliged to disperse the rioters.

Rioting of the fiercest nature began at the city end of Ballymacarrett about 6 o'clock this evening in Vulcan Street and immediate vicinity. Many were injured among the rival factions. Later the trouble extended to Newtonards, thirteen miles from Belfast, involving the shipyard workers.

"Belfast could be no worse," said a high police official of the conditions in Belfast tonight.

Fierce fighting occurred this afternoon in Clonallon Street, East Belfast. The military fired volleys at the crowd and a number of persons were seen to fall. The Fire Brigade was caught between hostile stone-throwing mobs and had to return to its station.

Rioting was renewed at noon in Wolff and Foundry Streets. The police quelled the outbreak.

During last night's rioting the casualties were reported as one person killed and twenty injured, including two young women. One of the latter is in a critical state.

The Fire Brigade reported twenty-eight incendiary fires in the twelve hours ended at 7 o'clock this morning. Thirty-nine persons were arrested for rioting and kindred offenses.

The rioting originated in a report that Nationalists yesterday stoned children leaving the Combe Street national school at Ballymacarret, a Belfast suburb.

Robert Caldwell, Principal of the school, denied that the pupils were attacked, but there was no doubt that the report was believed by both sides and that it acted like matches to tinder, especially since the recollection was still fresh of the stoning of a Sunday school excursion at Castle Dawson, which precipitated a great riot following the Larkin engineering strike in 1907.

As the report spread that the children had been stoned, matchers flew to the scene and excitement, already inflamed by the Bisburn events, rose to fever heat. Word reached the shipyards and many workers left in a mood for the events which followed.

The authorities banned a meeting which the carpenters' executive had called at the suggestion of headquarters in England to consider the question of expelled Sinn Fein workers. Believing such a meeting would have been marked by intense feeling, the ban was announced, the authorities resolving not to allow anything which would further embitter the situation.

PLANS BIG FUTURE FOR RIVERSIDE PARK

NO FUNDS AT PRESENT

Project, Including Massive Gates, Lagoon for Launches and Esplanade, Would Cost $3,000,000.

Park Commissioner Francis D. Gallatin announced yesterday that at the request of the Mayor plans had been drawn looking to the reclamation of the strip of Hudson River frontage which parallels Riverside Drive, and for its conversion into a parked water course for public use. The New York Central Railroad, Mr. Gallatin declared, has admitted it has no property rights which would block the city's plan to turn the land into a beautiful addition to the park system.

The railroad, Commissioner Gallatin said, by its answer to a suit of ejectment brought by the city in 1918, admits it holds only an easement on the land.

"During the last two or three weeks the engineers and architects of the department have been busy on the plans," Mr. Gallatin said, "and you may say that I hope that we will find a way to beautify this section. I have claimed jurisdiction over this plan under the City Charter, which provides that public property adjoining city parks comes under the jurisdiction of the Park Department.

"The contemplated improvements include a massive and ornamental water gate at the most accessible point along the river front, inclosing an anchorage lagoon for launches. Other features, of course, would be added, including an esplanade for pedestrians and vehicular traffic.

"The people could bathe in the river if the city would find some means of disposing of its sewage other than by dumping it into the Hudson. Time will tell of course, as to whether the city will improve its dumping system."

Mr. Gallatin pointed out that the improvement was not yet finally decided upon; that it was definitely contemplated by the Mayor and the Park Department, but he was unable to tell, he said, when the necessary funds would be available. It is estimated the reclamation of the river frontage would cost upwards of $3,000,000. The item in the Park Department's budget for the improvement of Riverside Park this year called for but $35,000 for the repair of trees and shrubbery.

"There is no chance that the plan will be carried out in the very near future," said a city official, who asked that his name be withheld. "The whole matter will stew in the Board of Estimate and then the Municipal Art Commission will pass upon the plans, if this has not been done already."

Carl F. Pilot was the landscape architect who drew the original plans for the reclamation. Later Thomas Hastings of Carrere & Hastings, who designed many notable public ornaments, was asked by the Park Commissioner to submit a design for the water gate.

Mrs. Longworth Enters Campaign.

Announcement was made yesterday that a second woman member of the Roosevelt family, Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, daughter of the late Theodore Roosevelt and wife of Congressman Nicholas Longworth of Ohio, would take the stump for Senator Harding, Republican nominee for President. Mrs. Corinne Roosevelt Robinson, sister of Colonel Roosevelt, will make her first campaign speech at Portland, Me., on Sept. 8.

Lipton's Watchman Found Dead.

Charles Johnson of 1,777 West Ninth Street, Brooklyn, watchman on Sir Thomas Lipton's houseboat Killarney, anchored at Jacob's shipyard, City Island, was found dead in the houseboat's cabin yesterday by former employes of Sir Thomas returning to get some clothes. They had to break in a hatch to enter the cabin.

CRIPPLE AND NEGRO DIE IN CHAIR AT SING SING

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, N. Y., Aug. 26.—John Egan, the first cripple ever put to death in Sing Sing, and Frank Kelley, a negro, died in the electric chair shortly before midnight tonight. Egan was first. He came to the death chamber without the wooden right leg he has worn for years. He was supported by a keeper and prayed constantly. He gave out a letter addressed to Warden Lawes which said:

"I have loved my wife (probably you are not interested), but since my incarceration I have lost track of her whereabouts, therefore would you insert a few words in a New York newspaper to the effect that I loved her still and that I am sorry, with the hope she may see, and know I would be more than grateful to you."

Kelley maintained his bravado to the last. He was smoking a cigar when he entered the death chamber and did not toss it away until he was about to sit in the death chair. He said to the witnesses: "Goodbye boys. I hope I'm the last man."

Egan entered the chamber at 11:10 and was pronounced dead at 11:19. Kelley entered at 11:21 and was pronounced dead at 11:31.

Both Egan and Kelley died as the result of murders that grew out of robberies. Egan was convicted of leading a party of holdup men who entered a United Cigar Store at 838 Westchester Avenue, the Bronx, on June 2, 1919, and shot down Louis Klein, a clerk, when he tried to save the cash. Klein died of his wounds.

Kelley was convicted of killing Catherine Dunn, a servant, when he entered the home of Clarence Clark, 1,146 East Twenty-first Street, Brooklyn, about a year ago.

When he was brought to the death house Kelley asked permission to keep his own underwear. This unusual request aroused suspicion. A search revealed a knife with a blade of razor keenness sewed into his undershirt.

Both slayers ate heartily on their last day on earth. Their last meal consisted of steak, fried potatoes, biscuit, cake, coffee and watermelon. It has become rather a custom for a doomed man to eat all his favorite dishes—or as many as possible—before going to the chair.

SAYS BOOTLEGGERS AID COX.

Pittsburgh Publisher Asks Kenyon to Investigate Alleged Contributions.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 26.—E. Huston, Vice President of the Journal Printing Company former publishers of The Liquor Dealers' Journal and now publishers of The Labor World, sent a telegram today to Senator Kenyon, Chairman of the committee investigating campaign funds, asking the committee "that all facts in the matter of campaign funds now being raised in Western Pennsylvania by bootleggers and illicit liquor dealers in the interest of Governor Cox's campaign be investigated."

"Evidence is easily obtainable," said the telegram, "that thousands of cases of whisky are being taken from the distilleries of Western Pennsylvania under medicinal permits, issued through two or three men, and the proceeds between the distillers' price and the bootleggers' purchasing price going into the political fund, illicit agents openly making the statement. The names of several business men and Democratic politicians are involved."

The telegram also charged that saloons in Pittsburgh are running wide open on "Democratic assurances that they will not be molested."

ACCORD IN BALKANS TAKES WIDER SCOPE

AGREE IN MINOR TREATIES

By WALTER DURANTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 26.—The Balkans and the new States created from the Austro-Hungarian Empire are the scene of most interesting political and social developments at present. Politically there is a tendency to a mutual rapprochement which may ultimately become a regular League.

The Bulgars and Czechs have just concluded a commercial treaty, a close parallel to which is being negotiated between the Czechs and the Jugoslavs, who already have an agreement with the Greeks.

The Greeks are at odds with the Bulgarians, but the Bulgarian Premier has just made a friendly pronouncement on the subject of Greco-Bulgarian relations, concluding with an appeal to Venizelos to find a basis of rapprochement between the two countries.

Hungary and Rumania have just resumed normal relations, largely under French influence, and it seems as if there were at last a chance that this much vexed section of Europe may gradually be brought into a fair measure of peace.

Even Austria and the Czechs are negotiating, and though the basis for their accord is perhaps chiefly their joint fear of the Hungarian reactionaries, a fear which is common also to the Serbs and Rumanians, the result is better than the previous hostility.

Even more interesting and significant, it is declared, is the social evolution. With the exception of Hungary, all the States mentioned are tending more and more to the extreme Socialist form of Government.

In Jugoslavia and Bulgaria, which are almost entirely agricultural, the power is in the hands of the Agrarian Party, which is aiming at State Socialism on lines not far different from that of Soviet Russia.

The Czechs and Austrians have a strongly Socialist Government. Rumania is mostly Agrarian, with a bourgeois admixture, as is Greece.

Only Hungary is still dominated by the great landlords, who, however, have found it necessary to make numerous concessions to the peasants and small farmers.

In this respect, there is a new development of great interest and perhaps far reaching importance. It is the foundation of a new "green international," that is, universal league of peasants and farmers, on the same lines as the labor international.

The leader of the Austrian Peasant Party, Herr Sturm, is now at Budapest conferring with the chief members of the Hungarian Agrarian Party, whom he is trying to persuade to join this new league, which already contains the Agrarian parties of Bavaria, Austria, Holland, Switzerland and Bulgaria.

The creator of this league is a Bavarian, Dr. Defm. It already has considerable political influence in the countries named and may well become a force to be reckoned with.

Reports here are that the French, whose influence in the Balkans is great, regard the plan with favor. They have always had "faiblesse," a "weakness," for Austria, and naturally welcome anything that would tend to bring Austria and Bavaria together to the exclusion of Prussia.

The agrarian policy in Government is essentially pacific, and though, through the development of peasant co-operatives, it approaches communism, as has been the case in Bulgaria, it is felt that the natural instinct of the farming class will always be opposed to the "wholehogger" dictatorship of the Communist Party as preached by Lenine.

ROOSEVELT AT SALT LAKE.

Railroad Workers Leave Dinner Pails to Hear Him.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Aug. 26.—Workmen at the car repair shops of the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad here deserted their dinner pails today to hear Franklin D. Roosevelt speak.

Mr. Roosevelt, who arrived shortly after noon from Los Angeles, told the men it was the policy of Governor Cox and himself to bring the coming campaign to the people themselves.

A large delegation of Utah Democrats met the Roosevelt party on its arrival, and this afternoon Mr. Roosevelt was honor guest at a banquet. Tonight he spoke at the Mormon Tabernacle.

At the car shops one of the workmen asked Mr. Roosevelt what stand the Democratic party took on prohibition. He was told that no action was taken on the question at San Francisco because "the Democrats do not consider it a national issue."

Court House Inquiry Opens Tuesday

Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield said yesterday that he would hold the first public hearing in the limestone investigation of the new Court House at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning in his office in the Municipal Building. He said that every angle of the charges that limestone bids higher than granite offers had been accepted would be investigated. The inquiry was ordered by Mayor Hylan following publication of such allegations.

THE MENNEN COMPANY, NEWARK

LABOR DELEGATES WAR OVER FINANCE REPORT

Federation Condemns Senator Wadsworth—Campaign for Labor's Friends Urged.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Aug. 26.—Heated discussions following the report of the Finance Committee stirred today's session of the State Federation of Labor. Delegate Robert P. Brindell of New York intimated that there might be something wrong with the accounts, and they were referred back for further consideration.

Rochester was chosen for the next convention.

Secretary Bates defended the figures in his financial report and a Buffalo delegate declared, "all the brains aren't in New York City." Brindell rushed down the aisle calling for recognition on a point of order.

The chief discussion was over the publication of the year book, the receipts of which amount to several thousand dollars. It is claimed by friends of Bates that Brindell wished to get the publication of the book for a relative and failed.

Another dispute arose when Delegate Ernest Bohm of New York City took his fight for a seat in the convention to the floor. The ruling of the Committee on Credentials that Bohm was ineligible was because he had not worked at his trade within six months before the convention was upheld.

The Legislative Committee urged the introduction in 1921 of all the bills defeated last year. The Federation was urged to spare no effort in electing friends to its cause this year.

United States Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., was condemned.

The following officers were elected at the afternoon session: President: James P. Holland of New York City; Vice Presidents, T. M. Guerin of Troy, Thomas J. Curtis of New York City, George C. King of Buffalo, Emanuel Koveleski of Rochester, Joseph A. Mullaney of Elmhurst, L. I.: Joseph Dehan of New York City, Harry A. What can we do to help you today?

Even more—it is not uncommon for the banker, the merchant, the insurance agent, the lawyer and the doctor and the seller of merchandise to greet you with the same speech.

The feeling back of the words is a sincere desire, in nine cases out of ten, to honestly show friendliness.

It seems such a little thing to say, does it not?

Yet, after all, upon the little things we do and say to each other every day and night, hang the pictures on the walls of memory that brighten the corners where we are.

Think it over, that not less, but more, shall be done at home and wherever we work to help each other.

One button closing is the mode.

Notch collars, convertible in two suits, are favored. Lanvin pockets, very narrow belts or patch pockets, bound buttonholes, bone buttons, stitching are other noteworthy features.

Satin frocks, $45

Two models; that illustrated is particularly charming for its simplicity of blouse and its skirt with four deep tucks. The girdle is a two-tone ribbon in a contrast to the frock.

The second model is a bit old in style. A long, loose-waisted tunic has a small ruffled peplum at either hip and narrow girdle. The square neckline is finished with an embroidered collar of batiste. Colors of both frocks are navy, blue, black and brown.

BILLIONS OF APPLES FOR NEW YORK FOLK

Growers Urge Public to Buy and Prevent Big Waste of Bumper Crop.

New York State has a bumper apple crop this year, and the fruit should be cheap, the growers say, if the dealers play fair. The crop in this State alone is sufficient to provide an apple a day for every man, woman and child in the State for the next year, according to the figures of the New York Federation of Agriculture, which numbers among its members some of the largest growers. The federation also points out that there will be great waste of the fruit—which is of as high grade as ever—if the public fails to buy or, more important, if the retailer declines to stock up.

Frank M. Bradley of Appleton, N. Y., President of the federation, in a bulletin yesterday quoted the figures on the new crop:

"Last week hand-picked Duchess apples from Western New York sold at wholesale on the dock at New York at 75 cents to $1.35 per bushel. These were hand-picked, carefully graded, well-sprayed fruit—not a windfall in the package—and the top price was $1.35 for Grade A 2½-inch apples. This includes the package. The A Grade 2¼-inch apple brought much less, although they were just as good for cooking purposes and should have found a market.

"At these figures the grower receives from 10 cents to 63 cents for the fruit, or from one-fourth of a cent to 1½ cents a pound, there being forty pounds of apples in these bushel baskets."

Mr. Bradley submitted the following table showing the average cost of handling the apples:

The bushel baskets of apples sold at wholesale in New York for	$.75	@$1.35
The commission man got 10 per cent. (little enough, we agree, for the work)	.07½@	.18½
The hauling in New York on this lot was	.05 @	.05
The railroad charged for freight	.15 @	.15
The ice and use of a refrigerator car cost	.05 @	.05
The baskets and cap cost	.33 @	.88
The grower received for the 40 pounds of apples, out of which he must pay for picking, packing, growing and pay for his own time	.09½@	.63½

The grower paid $5 per day to pick and grade the apples. The costs per basket were: Picking, 12c.; grading and packing, 6c.

In a bushel of 2-inch apples there are about 800 fruits; 2¼-inch, about 240; 2½-inch, 180 to 190; 2¾-inch, 140 to 150.

For the 2½-inch apple the grower received one-third of a cent each.

"Our apples were never better in quality, and the present price of apples make them one of the cheapest foods on the market today," continued Mr. Bradley. "At present wholesale prices we believe the hetailers should find them a suitable commodity to sell, and we believe that the New York Retail Grocers' Association could do no better service than to issue a call to its membership to do all in their power to aid the movement of this crop.

"The public needs the fruit. The Department of Health could do its share by advising the public to eat fruits and vegetables while they are cheap. Both raise the standard of health. The retailer, again, can do much by taking the minimum of profit and thus encourage a larger movement.

"The points we wish to emphasize are that a crop is big and fine in quality; the price is low. We want everybody to get busy and eat apples. Six million barrels of apples in New York State means 3,600,000,000 apples."

Case Against Marsh Dismissed.

The case of John William Marsh, 62 years old, who was accused by Mrs. Eleanor Rockfeller of 1129 Bedford Avenue of persistently annoying her daughter, Miss Viola Rockefeller, was dismissed yesterday when it came up before Magistrate Reynolds in the Gates Avenue Court, Brooklyn. A promise by Marsh, through his attorney, Frankis L. Garrao, to cease attentions to Miss Rockefeller, which was accepted by Mrs. Rockefeller, led to the dismissal of the case.

Increased Telephone Rates Are Necessary

A Statement to the Public of New York City by Howard F. Thurber, President of the New York Telephone Company

THE New York Telephone Company is charged by the public with the responsibility of furnishing telephone service to the people of this City and the State of New York. We are your service agents. To fulfil our obligations to you we must do three things:—

1. Pay necessary operating expenses.
2. Pay to investors a fair return on the money already put into telephone property.
3. Earn sufficient net revenue so that investors will continue, by the purchase of telephone securities, to furnish the large amounts of new capital required each year for the extension of the system.

For years New York City's telephone service has been recognized as the best in the world. It has been furnished at the lowest reasonable rates. We built our system, trained our workers, and introduced improvements and economies into the system—all with the aim of being prepared to furnish efficient service at all times in any required amount.

Until recently our revenue has been such as to enable us to keep our facilities and organization always ready to do these things. But our revenue no longer is equal to the demands you put upon it.

We are facing the greatest demand for new service in our history, and at the same time we are trying to still further improve the handling of an abnormal volume of traffic. This effort has resulted in a heavy increase in expense that has not been met by increased revenue. Our net revenue has dropped so rapidly since the first of the year that unless we receive financial aid through increased rates we cannot enlarge our plant, continue to improve the service and attract the new money required for constructing new telephone facilities.

Because:

All materials and supplies have increased enormously in cost. Increases in wages of our employees during the past twelve months to enable them to meet the high cost of living amount to $8,295,868.

$4,739,837 more have been added to our payroll by the employment of additional workers.

Our 1920 expansion program calls for an expenditure of over $26,000,000 and we must expend equally large amounts annually during the next few years.

Public necessity and public safety demand the maintenance of adequate telephone service. Business men realize this particularly. In many states they have urged the adoption of increased rates to insure the continuance of good service.

Adequate service depends upon adequate revenue. Insufficient revenue means a repetition in the telephone business of what has happened to the railroads. Inadequate rates stifled their development, and every community in the country is suffering as a consequence. It is unthinkable that you would permit your telephone service to be crippled in the same way.

The telephone is New York's first assistant. It is our task to make it serve not only as well as before, but in a far larger way. We have done what we could to accomplish this task in the face of rising costs and the delays and difficulties due to after-the-war economic conditions. We want to carry the work to completion. We believe you want us to do so.

Therefore:

We have filed with the Public Service Commission, Second District, a petition asking for an increase in rates in the City of New York.

The situation deserves your most active consideration and support. It vitally affects you and every other person in this community.

All the facts relating to our need for increased revenue will be given to the public. We invite your careful consideration, your support and your cooperation.

WOODBURY TAKES ROOSEVELT'S POST

New Hampshire Man Appointed by the President as Assistant Secretary of the Navy.

IS WELCOMED BY DANIELS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—President Wilson today appointed Gordon Woodbury of New Hampshire to be Assistant Secretary of the Navy, in place of Franklin D. Roosevelt, who resigned shortly after he was nominated for Vice President by the National Democratic Convention. Mr. Woodbury is in Washington and will at once enter upon the duties of the office. He attended the weekly session of Secretary Daniels's council today.

Mr. Woodbury, who is 56 years old, is a man of affairs of New Hampshire, where he was once editor of The Manchester Union. A graduate of Harvard University as well as of the Columbia Law School, he practiced law for a time. He served in 1891 in the New Hampshire Legislature, was a member of the State Constitutional Convention in 1900, and in that body was a pioneer advocate of woman suffrage.

He has been a Democratic leader in his State, where he was a candidate for Congress in 1916. He was a member of the San Francisco National Convention, representing his State on the Committee on Resolutions and Platform. During the World War Mr. Woodbury served as a Red Cross officer in France.

It is known that Mr. Woodbury has long taken deep interest in the navy and in naval enlargement. His great-uncle, Levi Woodbury, was Secretary of the Navy in Jackson's administration. His uncle, Gordon Woodbury, for whom he was named, was a naval officer on the U. S. S. Catskill and was killed in the attack on Fort Wagner, Charleston Harbor, in August, 1863.

Mr. Woodbury's cousin, Gustavus Fox, was Assistant Secretary of the Navy under Gideon Welles, and another cousin was Captain James S. Thornton, who was executive officer of the Hartford, Farragut's flagship.

With naval traditions, knowledge of the navy's history and pride in its achievements, the new Assistant Secretary is expected to enter upon his duties with the spirit that insures a successful administration.

"Mr. Roosevelt was an able and capable Assistant Secretary, as well as resourceful and vigorous," said Secretary Daniels today. "His nomination for the Vice Presidency was a fitting recognition of his virile Americanism, his enthusiastic leadership, and his splendid service in the World War at home and abroad.

"His successor will find a high standard set for him. I am sure he will measure up to the important duties to which I welcome him as co-worker and associate."

MANCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 26 (Associated Press).—Gordon Woodbury of Bedford, who was appointed Assistant Secretary of the Navy to succeed Franklin D. Roosevelt today, has been active as a Democrat in New Hampshire politics for more than a quarter century.

Mr. Woodbury was born in New York City in 1863, and in 1889 came to Bedford and established a farm in an effort to restore failing health.

He was the owner, as well as editor, of The Manchester Union for ten years prior to 1906.

Governor to Speak at Dedication.

Governor Smith, who came down from Albany yesterday and stopped at the Hotel Biltmore, will be the principal speaker this afternoon at the ceremony dedicating the Altar of Liberty, commemorating the Battle of Long Island in the Revolution. The altar has been erected on Battle Hill, Brooklyn. The ceremony will begin at 3:30 o'clock. The Governor and his party will meet a reception committee in the chapel of Greenwood Cemetery at 2:15 o'clock and march to Battle Hill.

MILLIONAIRE KILLS HIMSELF.

Losses in Theatrical Enterprises Said to Have Depressed G. L. Brigg.

Special to The New York Times.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Aug. 26.—Guy L. Brigg, who inherited a fortune from his father, Benjamin Brigg, a Manhattan financier who was interested in the Cunard Steamship Company, committed suicide early this morning by hanging himself from a cellar rafter on his estate "Château Brigg" at South Bound Brook. Worry over financial ventures in theatrical enterprises was said to have been a cause of the suicide.

Brigg, whose estate was estimated at $1,000,000, returned from New York City last night with his foster sister, Mrs. Dorothy Morton Conger, who is known on the stage as Dorothy Morton. He is said to have been in a highly nervous condition upon his return.

The Greenwich Village Follies and the Greenwich Village Follies No. 2, which was to have opened in New York tonight, were among the theatrical enterprises in which Brigg was interested. The Follies, it said, brought him a good return, but he was not so successful in some of his other ventures.

Brigg took up his residence at South Bound Brook eighteen years ago. He was active in Civic movements and served on the Town Council, the Board of Education.

Who Wouldn't Feel Safe In This 'Leviathan' Of The Air?

WOULD 500 miles per hour seem too fast for you and 1500 other passengers in this 1000-foot air monster?

Spacious berths, reading rooms and regular dining rooms would keep you from even a moment's fear during the short 6-hour trip across the Atlantic.

This hollow-wing "Batwing" type airplane, the invention of Wm. B. Stout, with the assistance of Orville Wright and the United States Government, brings this sensation within the range of immediate possibilities.

A Playground Under The Sea?

Even Jules Verne's imagination is outdone by this latest thriller for seaside cities.

"Eat your shore dinner under the sea! Ride on the sandy floor of the ocean in a submarine thru the portholes of which you see sunken ships and all kinds of undersea plant and animal life! Get your tickets here."

Which city will be the first to offer this playground under the sea as modelled by F. F. Loudy in the September SCIENCE & INVENTION, now on the newsstands?

Are There Labor Unions Among Plants?

The Department of Agriculture has discovered that too long a day stops flowering! After certain hours some plants stop production!

But a solution of this problem is in sight.

Greenhouse experiments prove that the flowering and fruiting of almost any plant can be brought about at any time of the year by regulating the amount of daylight exposure.

THE SCREEN

"The Jews in Poland," perhaps the most human travelogue ever brought to these shores, was shown to an invited audience of Jewish writers and Orthodox ministers, for the most part, in the concert hall of Madison Square Garden last night. Being pictures of cities and towns from which a large number of the Jews now in this country have emigrated, their strongest appeal will, of course, be to those Jews, who, though thousands of miles away from their native country can, by means of the screen, again look upon the streets in which they lived, the market places and little shops in which they perhaps entered and made purchases years ago, and, above all, can again clearly see their former townspeople.

It is because of this that the picture is most likely to attract large audiences. Very plainly can be seen the old Jewish men with their long coats and flowing beards; women wrinkled and bent, upon whose faces the trials of the long years of battle can be clearly discerned, and the little children attempting to smile as they stand in long lines awaiting a cup of soup or a morsel of bread which relief organizations distribute.

The ruined buildings in Brest-Litovsk, the citadel in Pinsk, at whose walls thirty-seven Jews were killed in a recent pogrom; a gathering of thousands in Warsaw celebrating America's Independence Day, are only some of the scenes in the picture. The Jewish Pictures Corporation, which shows the picture, does not attempt to weave a story around the settings, but just shows every-day life in the Polish towns shortly before the advance of the Bolsheviki.

Many tears were shed last night as persons in the audience saw again a cemetery in which perhaps their own parents lie buried, and there were many laughs when the antics of children were shown or when a pretty infant would look at her mother and smile. "The Jews in Poland" will be opened for the public beginning tomorrow night.

SYMPATHIZE WITH VENABLE.

Navy Officials Expected to be Lenient About Cruise to Greet Actress.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—The action of Lieut. Commander Reginald Venable, U. S. N., commanding the destroyer Ingram, in sailing his ship out to sea, yesterday, to meet the White Star Liner Olympic on board of which Miss Fay Bainter, the actress, returned from a European vacation, did not cause any great excitement in the Navy Department. Officials of the department, including Secretary Daniels, appeared to regard the incident as most unusual, but not a very serious infraction in naval regulations.

The "voyage" of the Ingram is, however, being investigated and a report will be made to the Secretary of the Navy. There appears to be good reason for saying that Commander Venable has not wrecked his naval career as a result of his anxiety to be the first to greet Miss Bainter on her return to her native land.

Secretary Daniels remarked today with a smile that he had been a young man once upon a time and that he just could not help sympathizing with "young fellows when they go courting."

NORWEGIAN-AMERICA HOSTS

Line Celebrates Tenth Birthday with Dinner on Bergensfjord.

The Norwegian-American Line celebrated its tenth birthday with a dinner last evening aboard the steamship Bergensfjord, lying off the foot of Twenty-ninth Street, Brooklyn. The guests were mostly downtown business men and exporters, who were taken to and from the Battery to the Bergensfjord on a tug.

Magnus Swenson, President of the line in the United States, told the guests that by the end of the year the Norwegian-America Line will have 120,000 tons of shipping engaged in the United States and Norway trade. He said that one-half of the company's stock was owned by Americans of Norwegian birth now living in the United States. Captain Ole Hall of the Bergensfjord said his ship was dry only inside the three-mile limit. Outside of that line, he said, it was wetter than the ocean.

Asked as to the economic future of South Russia, General Wrangel said:

"Control of some surplus grain has already been gained by our Government and we will soon be able to export it, as transportation conditions are improving. When we control the Kuban and Don territories, Russia's richest grain sections, we will be able to export large quantities of foodstuffs in exchange for needed manufactured articles. We have already given France permission to export 6,500 tons of grain, this permission was given as an expression of our appreciation of the gracious action of France in extending recognition to our Government. I wish to make it plain, however, that France did not grant recognition in exchange for commercial advantage, but it was the least we could do after France had been so magnanimous in her treatment of us."

General Wrangel insisted the Bolshevist military and political strength was greatly overestimated. Even when working as a subordinate to General Denikin he urged that an undemocratic government, such as that led by Nikolai Lenin, could not live in Russia because the peasants would not tolerate it indefinitely, and he declared today he was still of the same opinion.

General Wrangel's plan to give the peasants title to the land—conditioned on the payment of one-fifth the annual crop for twenty-five years to the government, which will fix the price—the old owners are to be paid from this sum as soon as a properly chosen assembly meets—apparently is satisfactory to the peasants. The latter insist upon owning the land, rather than the Government ownership scheme advocated by the Bolsheviki.

Wrangel's Forces Enter Coal Fields.

The South Russian forces have captured the important city of Novorossisk, the Black Sea terminus of the railroad leading eastward to Ekaterinodar, in the Province of Kuban, and have entered the Donetz basin coal district, north of the River Don, according to announcement here. In the latter region the local population is said to be joining General Wrangel's forces and control of the coal mines there will, it seems, be secured soon by the South Russian Government.

General Wrangel today announced plans for the reorganization of his forces into two armies and one independent corps. The first army will hold the northeastern front and will be commanded by General Gutepow, whose headquarters will be at Melitopol. The second army will operate in the Province of Kuban and will be led by the famous Mongolian General Ulagala. Its headquarters will be announced later. The independent corps is now holding the line of the Dniepr River.

This reorganization is the first step made in preparing for the co-operation of all Cossack forces, for which General Wrange will arrange during his forthcoming visit to Kuban.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—The Russian Soviet official statement of yesterday received here today says:

"In the Crimean sector, in the Kherson region, as the result of successful fighting in the last few days, we are driving back the enemy to the south and southeast. In the Orlekhov region fierce fighting continues with growing intensity."

Soldau, which escaped into Prussia, has been delivered over to the Polish troops by the German authorities and taken before a field court-martial, but no verdict is mentioned.

Regarding the Northern Soviet offensive, General Haller declared that the Russian offensive there had been so completely crushed that he considered it impossible for the Soviet forces to resume an organized movement against the Poles for weeks and perhaps for months.

General Haller said there were indications that armies of Russian workingmen were being grouped at various points for possible use against the Poles, and that these armies might be thrown against the Poles at any time. General Haller said there also were indications that the Soviet munition factories, under German foremen, were working night and day and that many German munition experts were being employed. The General expressed the belief that when the Soviet offensive began there were 300,000 Soviet soldiers on all fronts and that of these 200,000 had bayonets.

Regarding the Soviet soldiers who crossed into East Prussia, General Haller said: "The question of internment has been taken up with the Allies, but we have no information as to the total number, which runs into the thousands, nor as to what action has been taken by the German East Prussian authorities."

Warsaw is rapidly assuming the normal conditions of two months ago, thousands of persons who departed having returned. All of the Foreign Legations are open again or are prepared to open soon. It is announced that the non-commissioned personnel of the American Legation, who journeyed to Posen on a diplomatic special train when Warsaw's fall appeared almost certain, will return tomorrow. A special train bringing other foreign representatives leaves Posen tomorrow night.

The American Legation was one of a few foreign bureaus which did not close. Chargé John Campbell White and Secretary J. Pierrepont Moffat decided to remain until the Polish Government itself moved.

Warsaw yesterday celebrated to some extent the victory which freed the capital from the Bolshevist menace. General Weygand received the freedom of the city just prior to his departure for Paris, and was presented with the Order of Military Virtue and also the sixteenth century sword which once hung at the side of the Polish King Stephen Bathori.

Warsaw was decorated for the occasion, and bands played lively airs in honor of the departing General, who had taken a prominent part in the staff work which met the Soviet advance and threw back the oncoming forces. The newspapers referred to General Weygand as the "conqueror of the hearts of Warsaw."

Weygand Due in Paris Today.

PARIS, Aug. 26 (Assoociated Press).—General Weygand is expected at Marshal Foch's headquarters tomorrow, and preparations have been made to receive him enthusiastically. The junior officers are preparing a poster to place over the General's desk, bearing the words "Savior of Poland."

Marshal Foch, in a published interview this morning, said:

"General Weygand, with great intelligence, great activity, great energy, great vigilance and great precision and accuracy, has proved once more his wonderful faculties and remarkable knowledge of great military questions. General Weygand proved victoriously his ability to lead forces to the front and to create and utilize the possibilities of the rear."

Asked whether they had any confirmation of a report current in Paris that General Weygand would be made Marshal of Poland," the officers said they did not know, but one of them replied: "Don't you think he deserves it?"

Staff officers discussing the Polish situation agreed that the "campaign of Poland" was virtually ended as far as heavy fighting and manoeuvring were concerned. The officers' opinion was that, except for an expected stand by the Bolsheviki before Grodno, no further pitched battles are likely to occur.

Bending over large maps of Poland, the officers' main topic of discussion was: "Where will the Polish armies halt and entrench?"

"Ethnographical frontiers are not necessarily the best strategic frontiers," one officer said. The opinion was freely expressed that it would be folly for the Polish commanders to place themselves in a state of strategical inferiority by halting within a kilometer of the frontier fixed by the Versailles treaty, especially in the centre.

Under the terms of the Versailles treaty the eastern Polish frontier commences with the East Prussian line, passes east of Suwalki to the west of Grodno, through Gainovka, Brest-Litovsk and Wlodawa to a point west of Vladimir-Volhynski, through Brody and ends west of Kamenets-Podolsk.

It was explained that the Polish left wing, resting on the Niemen River, and the right, holding behind the River Zbruch, were safe against attack. The centre, however, was the weak spot in the line, having no natural defense and being always exposed to a possible offensive return by the Bolsheviki, which might cut the line in half leaving both wings up in the air. From a purely military and strategical point of view, it would be imperative, the officers said, that the Polish centre be advanced forty or fifty kilometers beyond the line fixed by the Versailles treaty, to the western edge of the Pripet marshes.

Reds May Rally in Lake Region.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 26.—The Bolsheviki are reported to be attempting to form a centre of resistance in the lake region east of Suwalki, where fugitives from the routed right wing of the Red Army are said to being reorganized. Reserves are stated to have reached the area from eastward, but it is held here to be unlikely that anything more than a temporary check of the Polish advance will be possible as the Reds are said to have evacuated Vilna and Grodno.

They will probably try to delay the Polish advance for a time in the lake region and along the line of the River Nieman, which runs north of Grodno, but their strategic line of resistance is from Beresina to Minsk, where their left flank is protected by the Pripet marshes.

By the capture of Kolno the Poles have sealed the fate of all Reds who had not already escaped from the fatal adventure along the German frontier.

Report Budenny Badly Wounded.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—A wireless dispatch received here from Berlin asserts that Russian prisoners arriving at Cracow report that the famous Russian cavalry General Budenny has been seriously wounded in action.

The Central News Warsaw correspondent today says it is officially stated in the Polish capital that in Eastern Galicia the Soviet forces are retreating on the whole front, in order to avoid a flank attack which is threatening them from the north. The French General Lanezan is taking command on the Polish southern front.

The Russian Soviet official statement of Wednesday, received here today by wireless, says:

"In the Lomza and Bialystok regions (northeast of Warsaw) we continue to conduct rearguard actions. We have occupied a number of villages north and east of Brest-Litovsk. In the Cholm region local fighting is proceeding.

"In the Lemberg region our cavalry has broken through into the enemy rear and reached Stryi town, where they destroyed ten enemy trains."

80,000 Reds Interned in Prussia.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 26.—Between 70,000 and 80,000 Russians now have been interned in East Prussia. At Wychinetz a regiment of the Bolshevist Army counterattacked and broke through the Polish line, forcing 400 Poles to cross into East Prussia.

The Allensteiner Volksblatt declares that after the Poles occupied Chorzele just across the border they massacred the population, mostly Jews, on account of the friendliness shown to the Russians last week.

Berlin hears from many sources that Russian reserves are arriving from the centre of Russia. There is complete infantry reorganization along the Lemberg front, where it is declared artillery reinforcements have arrived.

BERLIN, Aug. 25 (Associated Press).—Official quarters here are gravely concerned over conditions on the East Prussian frontier, along the Russian line of retreat. It was estimated tonight that the number of Russian Soviet soldiers who have already entered Germany exceeded 60,000. Fifteen thousand crossed in the Johannesburg sector and their number constantly is increasing.

The border patrols are wholly incapable of systematically disarming and controlling the fugitives, who willingly surrender their arms and then calmly proceed to enter East Prussia and beg food and shelter of the natives.

CHIEF PEACE ENVOY TO RETURN TO POLAND

Called to Brest-Litovsk for Conference Because of Difficulty of Communication.

WARSAW, Aug. 26 (Associated Press).—M. Dombski, President of the Polish-Minsk peace delegation, has been called to Brest-Litovsk to confer with Polish Government representatives. This step was taken because of continued interruption of communications between Warsaw and Minsk.

The question of insisting that the Russo-Polish peace negotiations be shifted from Minsk to some other city has been under the Government's consideration. What action is necessary, owing to the difficulties in communicating with Minsk, has occupied the various officials for several days, and the Cabinet considered the question throughout Wednesday. The Cabinet's recommendations have been forwarded to the National Council of Defense for final determination and an announcement of its decision is expected within a few days.

The National Council, on which rests the decision as to whether the Poles will demand a shift of the Minsk conference, deliberated most of tonight. The Poles complained of difficulties of communication between Warsaw and Minsk soon after the negotiations began owing to repeated delays of messages sent by the Polish delegation at Minsk. They also complain of delays encountered by couriers who had assurances from the Soviet Government of safe conduct across the frontier and assistance on to Minsk by railroad.

According to the Poles, of three couriers who started for Minsk only one crossed the frontier, and it is uncertain yet whether he arrived at Minsk. The other two had proper credentials, but for various reasons were not permitted to pass the frontier according to the agreement.

One of the chief conditions to the meeting at Minsk were assurances by the Soviets of free communication, and the Poles contend that the Soviets have not kept their word. This agreement was entered into some days before the Poles launched the counter-stroke which drove the Soviet forces back toward their own territory.

The Polish delegates are hungry and an urgent appeal has been received by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs asking that food be sent to Minsk immediately to the delegates. The message says the delegates are eager for any kind of food, but they desire non-perishable varieties.

As an indication that the Minsk conference may continue indefinitely, preparations are being made to send there five young women stenographers, who have been asked for by the delegates. Five of the women will go from the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. They will take plenty of food for themselves and also supplies for the Polish delegates. Rooms have been reserved for the women by the Soviet officials.

There is much speculation here concerning the outcome of the conference, some of the newspapers already hinting there will be no results, chiefly because of the attitude the Soviet representatives assumed from the beginning.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—There are two main currents of opinion in Poland, one for a fight to a finish against Bolshevism, the other for immediate peace and reconstruction at home, telegraphs the Warsaw correspondent of the London Times, commenting on a meeting of the Cabinet to discuss the removal of the Minsk Conference elsewhere.

The popular impression in Warsaw, says the dispatch, is that the former policy is backed by France, the latter by England. But the Entente missions, including France, are all in favor of a peaceful policy. These favoring a renewed campaign against the Soviets say that no peace is possible, even if wanted, with the Bolsheviki. They do not belong to the society of nations and do not want to. The Soviets could never be trusted, even if peace were signed.

MINSK, Aug. 22 (by Wireless to Moscow, Aug. 26), (Associated Press).—There was no meeting of the Soviet-Polish conference today. This was due, the Poles said, to the fact that they had not heard from Warsaw regarding Ukrainia.

The Soviet delegates sent a protest to the Polish delegation charging the Poles were delaying the conference. This delay, which they asserted was unquestionably a real delay, was significant with the Polish Army occupying Brest-Litovsk.

The protest added that despite the fact that the Poles were maintaining that they could not communicate with Warsaw through their own wireless, their station continued to receive daily the communiqué of the Polish General Staff reporting Polish military successes.

MUTINY IN AFGHANISTAN.

Town Garrison Demands Soldiers' Council on the Soviet Plan.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—A dispatch to The London Times from Simla, British India, dated Thursday, says the Northern Afghan garrison at Maimanal Sharif has mutinied owing to Bolshevist influences.

Polish Army Order to Protect Jews.

The Polish Bureau of Information in New York gave out yesterday the text of the order of the Polish War Minister against anti-Jewish excesses, a summary of which was received by cable. The order contains the following: "All disorders must be severely punished, while officers who tolerate anti-Jewish excesses must be held responsible, no matter what the consequences. Active participation in excesses will render those guilty liable to disciplinary and judicial punishment, and those guilty of inflicting grievous bodily harm, of robbery, violence, arson, &c., will be punished by court-martial. Officers who quietly look on while soldiers persecute defenseless Jews I do not consider worthy to wear the uniform of a Polish officer."

Lindsay Transferred to Paris.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Ronald Lindsay, Counsellor of the British Embassy, has been transferred to the Paris Embassy as First Secretary. He is now en route here from England to turn over his office to Robert Lester Craigie, who will hold the position of Secretary of Embassy. Mr. Craigie formerly was First Secretary of Legation at Berne, but more recently has acted as such as Sofia.

lar movement, the Soviet is by nature peaceful and averse to conquests, contrary to the governments of oligarchies which desire peace only after having despoiled their vanquished adversaries of their riches.

"The peace of a workers' and peasants' Government," he says, "being based on the rejection of the exploiting of others and upon the true solidarity of the great working masses of all nations, is the only genuine and really permanent peace. Animated by this spirit, the Soviet Government does not insist upon its interpretation of the peace terms with Poland, which has given rise to the present divergence with Great Britain and Italy. It renounces its demand for the creation of a workers' militia in Poland, and thus restores the full agreement with these two Governments which existed before this divergence arose."

The Polish Legation here today issued an official statement of the Polish Premier, Witos, to the effect that Poland still desires an armistice and peace with Russia and does not desire to appropriate foreign territories.

The statement declares that the Polish efforts to this end will be in vain until the Soviet Government removes all hindrances to free communications by wireless and courier with the Polish delegation at Minsk.

Following a meeting today of the Council of Action of the Labor Party, a telegram signed by Chairman Adamson was sent to Premier Lloyd George, Lord President of the Council Balfour and M. Kameneff, head of the Bolshevist commission in London.

The telegram said that the council having urged the Russian Government to withdraw its objectionable civic militia clause from its demands on Poland noted with satisfaction the Soviet's latest decision, which removed all difficulties to peace between Russia and Poland. It added that the Council of Action "now urges both the British and Russian Governments to publish the full terms on which they are willing to make peace."

Hopeful View in London.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Friday, Aug. 27.—Moderate opinion here hails the Russian Soviet Government's reply to the British note as marking a distinct step toward peace, although some reservations are made respecting the necessity of not taking it at more than its face value.

Coupled with the report of Poland's pledges to the United States that Polish troops will not advance beyond the frontier fixed at Versailles, Moscow's withdrawal of its stipulation that the Poles should provide arms for a workers' militia tends to create a hopeful view of the outlook.

In its bearing on the British domestic situation the Soviet Government's reply is held to have missed fire as Bolshevist propaganda, seeing that the Labor Council of Action's manifesto of yesterday, declaring that the Balfour-Lloyd George-Giolitti communications were "another move in the direction of war," is clearly proved to have been beside the mark.

British labor's Council of Action, which the Prime Minister in his Commons speech showed to have been battering at an open door is now seen to have been trying to close the door which the Bolsheviki themselves are anxious to keep open. The Sovietist arraignment of a British oligarchy is empty words when weighed in the balance against the solid fact that the Council of Action by precipitate and ill-judged interference at a delicate juncture did its utmost to throw obstacles in the path of the Government genuinely desirous of bringing about peace on terms acceptable both to the belligerents and to other interested European nations.

The Daily Chronicle editorial says:

"Tchitcherin has taken an important step backward toward peace. This is much, but it is not everything, for it is one thing to act in good faith and another to try to act in bad faith and then abandon the attempt under pressure."

The Chronicle denounces the Council of Action as, "by going behind the back of the country's Government in important negotiations, having done injury to their country, whether one calls it usurpation or betrayal, which is new in the modern history of Great Britain.

"If the professions on both side are sincere, Poland should now be able to secure the rightful freedom and independence for which she has fought.

"The Allies, in full agreement and association with the United States, have made very definite representations to Poland to keep moderation in mind in her hour of success. There is reason to hope and believe the Poles will accept the Allies' friendly advice.

"At the same time the Soviet's reply to Balfour's note expresses the Bolsheviki's paramount desire to promote peace throughout the world, with the consequence that they say they have abandoned their demand for the arming of the Polish workers, the chief, though not the only, point in which they broke faith with the British Government.

"The Minsk terms can now find their way to the melting pot with the prospect of molding an agreement which will give satisfaction and guarantees to both sides."

The Morning Post says:

"Lloyd George, stung by Bolshevist perfidy, acted in the old British way. We hope the Prime Minister will continue in that vein and if he does so he may rest assured that he has his fellow countrymen solidly behind him. The Bolsheviki have, it appears, now withdrawn the clause which caused such perturbation at Lucerne, but there are other clauses in their Minsk program equally offensive, and apart altogether from their negotiations with Poland their whole behavior ever since they seized the power has placed them outside the pale of civilization.

"The Cabinet must stand firm. We have a council of action. We do not wish as its neighbor a council of inaction. The duty of the Government is to stand by their trusty American and French friends and let Mr. Smillie and Lenin's subsidized newspapers do their worst. The fanatics and simpletons who demand that we should break with America and France in order to cultivate Lenin and Trotzky could not more effectively reduce their policy to absurdity."

EMILY STEVENS ILL.

Unable to Appear in "Foot-Loose" and Audience is Dismissed.

The audience which had gathered to see "Foot-Loose" at the Little Theatre last night was dismissed shortly after 8 o'clock when it was learned that Emily Stevens would be unable to appear. Miss Stevens, it was later said, is suffering from a slight nervous breakdown, brought on in part by the demands made upon her for several months by her rôle in "Foot-Loose." She is at her home at 50 West Sixty-seventh Street.

The Little Theatre will be dark until Monday, when it is expected that Miss Stevens will be able to resume performances.

THE RED BOOK MAGAZINE

THE September issue of THE RED BOOK MAGAZINE reflects the spirit of today in America in the most remarkable group of stories it has ever published—a representative collection of the latest work of those authors whose names rank highest in the world of fictional literature.

"George Weston knows women." That's what women say of him. But does he? That's the question. Read "You Never Know Your Wife," and draw your own conclusion.

Albert Payson Terhune, both as contestant and spectator, knows the technique of the squared ring better than any other author. That's why every red-blooded man will read with keen relish his great prize fight story, "The Hunch."

F. Britten Austin reflects in his thrilling story of commercial aviation, "Up in the Air," a modern achievement that is destined to change the whole course of our law and lives.

Hal G. Evarts is the greatest writer of real animal stories in America today and his masterpiece, thus far, is "The Yellow Horde." It takes you from the Rockies to the Arctic.

J. Frank Davis, "of San Antone, suh," knows the characters of that land from their spurs to their two-quart hats. Your blood will run a little faster over "Bill Titus Eke Butts In."

Mary Synon is one of the very few great writing women in America today. Her singularly effective story, "With Seven Paradise Plumes," plumbs the depths of the human heart.

Clarence Budington Kelland is credited by critics with having written the great novel of 1920 in his story of this immediate day here in America, "A Daughter of Discontent."

Lawrence Perry knows American society because he is of it. The stories he writes of the very rich treat them illuminatingly from a different angle. "Brannigan" is a case in point.

Opie Read is the one living American author who possesses first-hand knowledge of the Mississippi when it was really the River of Romance and Folly. "Periwinkle House" is a story of that golden day of the river's greatest glory.

William Dudley Pelley has a genius for getting inside the skins of his characters. You will appreciate this when you read "Trails to Santa Fe," the story of a business crisis.

William MacHarg has created in Peewee, Child of the Streets, a character that Victor Hugo's immortal gamin, Gavroche, would feel akin to. Read of him in "Lampert."

O. F. Lewis is an authority on criminology and penology. That is why his "Once a Thief ....." rings true as steel.

And finally there is the opening installment of Mr. Hughes' new and greatest novel which, like all his novels for the past seven years, appears first and exclusively in this magazine.

THE WRONG ROOSEVELT.

The Helena Independent has a long editorial, full of Montana savor, about a "splendid young American" who has been making speeches in the Northwest. It appears that "he packs a most bewildering punch in either "hand." He "inserts barbs and arrows and dirks," under the skin of his political opponents. Withal, he does this "so engagingly and good-" naturedly that the recipients writhe "and snort in fury." And this remarkable performer is accompanied by newspaper men who agree that he is "one of the finest chaps personally they ever met." He is "frank and "open and sincere, and likes people "just as they like him." A "bully fellow" is the unanimous verdict. Yet all that is said of a Democrat, and of a ROOSEVELT whose first name is FRANKLIN—or "FRANK," as they call him out in Montana. It is all very sad for Republicans, and seems to them highly undignified. But they used to grin and chuckle when such a winning of the West was undertaken by the right ROOSEVELT, belonging to the right party.

IRISH MODERATES AND OTHERS.

It is an Englishman, Lord ROSEBERY, who said that a "malignant fate" has seemed to hang over the relations of England and Ireland. It has thrust itself in, time after time, to destroy what seemed a bright prospect of a better understanding and a good working agreement. It thwarted GLADSTONE and PARNELL. It baffled and finally broke the heart of JOHN REDMOND. It frustrated the Irish Convention. It is today making blacker than ever the long tragedy of English rule in Ireland.

This week there was a meeting of Irish "moderates" in Dublin. There was a sprinkling of Nationalists, now nearly extinct as a political party. The larger number were Unionists. They are now ready to abandon their old fight. They are prepared to accept a separate Government for Ireland, and urge that it be made of the "Dominion" type. This conversion of South of Ireland Unionists is as notable in its way as the change of front by Ulster. The latter is now disposed to give up the historic struggle for the maintenance of the Union, and to acquiesce in the Home Rule bill giving a Parliament of their own to the Ulster provinces. These two political reversals, though in different parts of Ireland, spring from common causes. There is dread of the state of civil war, accompanied by hideous murder and vengeful reprisals, into which the country has been drifting. Undoubtedly, also, there exists at Dublin as well as in Belfast the fear that industry will be broken down and property rights destroyed. This is what gives point to the sneers and scorn of Sinn Fein at this moderate movement. Mr. ARTHUR GRIFFITH declares that it is negligible because every true Irishman knows that it is merely the work of a lot of political turncoats who are likewise frightened rich men.

The stubborn unwillingness of Sinn Fein, thus far, to admit the possibility of any Irish compromise, short of complete independence, has brought to naught the efforts of English statesmen. The idea of a Dominion Government for Ireland has been much put to the fore of late. Mr. ASQUITH urged it in Parliament. Sir HORACE PLUNKETT and many others outside have pleaded for it. But nobody has yet answered the insistent question of LLOYD GEORGE—what evidence is there that Dominion rule would satisfy any considerable body of opinion in the South of Ireland? Mr. ASQUITH could give no assurances or facts, only his own opinion. Sir HORACE PLUNKETT had nothing but vague hopes to offer. Whereas the authorized spokesmen of Sinn Fein pour ridicule and contumely upon the whole Dominion scheme.

Sinn Fein stoutly declares that the Irish Republic is not a dream nor a theory but a fact. It has its furtive government. It has its courts, its "army"—the Irish Volunteers. It is not so mad as to challenge England to an open trial of arms. The aim and hope which it cherishes are, rather, to make the life of every English administrator in Ireland unsafe; to count upon the support of the English Labor Party; to appeal for sympathy and aid to Australia, to Canada, to the United States. Meanwhile, there is to be no budging from the unyielding attitude toward the British Government. Every gesture of conciliation is to be repulsed. Every offer of even the largest measure of Home Rule is to be rejected. Sinn Fein thus, in effect, appeals to force, confident that England will not dare to reply with force and nothing else. It is a battle of wits as well as a struggle of endurance.

The whole case is epitomized in the determination of the Mayor of Cork to starve himself to death in an English prison. His suicide—for such it would be—would make him at once a martyr and a hero in Irish eyes. And Ireland has ever craved heroes and martyrs. She would rather have a long roll of them than the largest degree of self-government possible within the empire. But the English Government cannot, without ceasing to be a government, allow convicted criminals to go free simply because they will not eat. And there, in little, we have the whole Irish difficulty. Ireland makes impossible demands. England yields everything except sovereignty—and in this instance she believes that sovereignty over Ireland is essential to the safety and the very existence of the empire. In such a deadlock, reasonable men would cast about for a friendly adjustment. But the trouble is that intense passion on one side and delay and stupid handling on the other have brought the Irish question into a plight with which reason, apparently, is allowed to have nothing to do.

HAPPY FIUME.

If we may believe Mr. WILLIAM H. WILLIAMS, the diplomatic courier who has just arrived from Fiume with dispatches from Doge D'ANNUNZIO to Ambassador WHITNEY WARREN, the Blessed Isles were never so blessed as the principality ruled by the poet-warrior. "The people of Fiume are contented," says Mr. WILLIAMS. This is good news in an age when nobody else is contented; let us hunt for the recipe. It is simple enough: nobody works. "There is no busi-"ness, as all the offices, banks, "factories, &c., are closed. They "were all operated by Jugoslavs." One might suppose that Slavic vindictiveness had closed up the town to get even with D'ANNUNZIO, but not so; Mr. WILLIAMS tells us that "the "Jugoslavs, who controlled the in-"dustries of the port before D'AN-"NUNZIO arrived, have all been sent "away." Presumably because they were addicted to work.

So now "the people are fed by the "Red Cross and have nothing to do "but watch the days go by." Sometimes the Red Cross fails to live up to its responsibility and food runs short; whereupon D'ANNUNZIO "sends "out two of his destroyers to scour "the Adriatic as the corsairs did in "ancient days and bring in the first "well-laden merchant vessel they "meet." But this is not vulgar piracy; the owners of the cargo are paid—in D'ANNUNZIO'S money, printed in Fiume. Even in Fiume the printers have to work, else there would be no money to pay the unlucky voyagers of the Adriatic. Aside from this one craft, however, nobody seems to have a care. Perhaps life would be far simpler the world over if we put the poets in charge—always provided the Red Cross and the printers continued to do their duty.

DELAY IN MAKING PEACE.

Nobody concerned in the peace negotiations at Minsk seems to be in any great hurry about stopping the war. The Russians, despite the changed military situation, apparently still insist on talking as if they were the conquerors; the Poles, encouraged by brilliant but not necessarily decisive victories, are seemingly inclined to forget that one campaign may not be final. The peoples of Poland and Russia need peace. There appears to be division in the Russian Government on the desirability of a peace that does not directly promote the westward advance of Bolshevism. In the Polish Government there is a natural disposition to refuse terms that seriously compromise Polish independence, but there is also, it would seem, a somewhat unwarranted optimism which hopes for terms that Russia is not likely to grant.

The one inadmissible demand of the Russians is now reported to have been withdrawn—that which coupled with the reduction of the Polish Army the arming of the "workers"—which, in Bolshevist parlance, means Bolsheviki. This item was omitted by Mr. KAMENEFF when he gave the terms to Mr. LLOYD GEORGE, and only gradually it developed that the munitions surrendered by the Polish Government were to be turned over by the Bolsheviki to "workers" whom they could trust. This item throws some light on TROTZKY'S statement in the Krasnaya Gazeta in the last week of July (quoted by The New Russia): "Poland, after "her defeat, will no more be a buffer "State, as the Entente would wish. "She will be the starting point of the "social revolution which will sub-"merge the whole of Western Eu-"rope."

Another of the Bolshevist terms—providing for the giving of land to the families of those killed or injured in the war—was apparently intended to help the revolution along by making trouble over the land question in Poland. That demand could have been met by competent statesmanship; the other must have been refused in any case, for it amounted to annexation without the form. If the Bolsheviki have given it up, there is more reason to hope that peace is at hand.

The Russians also demanded disarmament of Poland. Our own liberals have insisted that this was only what we asked of Germany and that it was a reasonable demand for a nation which was everywhere victorious. There is much in this argument; but it follows that it is not a reasonable demand for a nation whose front-line armies have just been badly beaten. When the Poles propose that Russia and Poland demobilize at the same time they are talking reason. If the Poles demobilize, there is no other enemy of the Bolsheviki in the field except WRANGEL; then what need of Red armies? Russian rejection of this proposal would at least throw some light on Bolshevist purposes.

Then there is the question of frontiers. The Poles reject the idea of the Peace Conference boundary; they may be willing to talk it over later, but not now. This is taking a long chance. That boundary is far from satisfactory to the Poles; it is strategically unsafe, and it excludes much territory in which the Poles feel, whether rightly or wrongly, that they have as legitimate an interest as the Russians. But outside observers may well think—and evidently the chief Allied Governments are taking this attitude—that it would be unwise for Poland to delay making peace in the hope of getting back somewhere near the frontier of 1772. The Poles have defeated the Bolshevist armies and captured a great deal of war material, but any protracted war between Russia and Poland comes down to a question of mass. There are too many Russians, and probably today, as 300 years ago, most of them would refuse even liberation from tyrants and usurpers at Polish hands. More moderation by the Polish Commissioners might not actually bring peace, but at any rate it would illumine the real reasons why the Russians impose impossible conditions.

THE QUESTION OF TELEPHONE RATES.

The advertisement of the New York Telephone Company is an appeal to its customers, going with its formal application to the Public Service Commission for permission to increase its rates 36 per cent. The company wants to expend $26,000,000 on enlargement and betterment, and specifies increase of wages to old employés by $8,295,000 and additions of new workers to a total of $4,739,837 in wages. There is no statement how these increases of charges will work out in the profit and loss balance applicable to dividends. Naturally that may be expected to be stated during the proceeding before the commission, which may be trusted to see that no undue burdens shall be put on the users of the telephone for the undue profit of the company.

It is only a little while since the flat five-cent city rate was put into effect. It was expected then that the increase of service would make up the estimated loss of $1,250,000, and that there then would be necessary an enlargement of plant and staff of operators. It would seem that this anticipation has been fulfilled. On the other hand, it is also remembered that there were charges of excess profits in the years following the 8 per cent. earnings adjustment of 1915, and that the company had piled up a surplus approaching $40,000,000. If the company's surplus and reserves from earnings exceed its bonded debt and are almost half its capital, there is a prima facie case for financing the company's growth from past charges rather than from higher rates.

The telephone company has two things in its favor—it is energetic and it is considerate of its patrons. The company says that within a year it has added 173,000 miles of wire to its lines, with incidental apparatus for the accommodation of 66,000 more customers, to say nothing of the unaccommodated thousands for whose benefit the increased income is asked. The company's care for its customers is a tradition inherited from Mr. VAIL. The recent complaints of the service are due to disturbance of labor supply on account of war conditions. To appreciate the excellence of the New York telephone service, despite some shortcomings, it is necessary to make comparison with similar service elsewhere. The London rates were increased $66 a year to $136, and there was an actual decrease in the instruments available to subscribers. Against the moderate increase of rates asked here the British telephone service is asking for £10,000,000 capital. Against the complaint of an excessive surplus here there is to be put a loss of $2,000,000 on the British telephones for 1918-19 and an estimated loss for this year of $12,500,000. No American can reasonably condemn our telephone service as Englishmen speak of their own. The British Assistant Postmaster General PEASE having ventured to claim that the English telephone service was better than ours, The Pall Mall Gazette countered with an interview with Sir JOSEPH DUVEEN in which he said:

> The telephone service here can only be described as rotten. If the Postmaster General does not realize the difference between the American and British services, he should send a few men to New York for a month and tell them to note the differences and then learn how it is done.

Comparisons are odious, but this one suggests that the telephone company's application for more money should receive consideration on its merits.

CENTRAL AMERICAN TROUBLES.

When CABRERA'S twenty-two years of dictatorship in Guatemala were ended a few months ago, and he was succeeded by President HERRERA, it was hoped that frighted peace would have a little time to pant. President BERTRAND of Honduras tried to make his brother-in-law President, had to leave the country for its good, and was succeeded less than a year ago by the doughty Liberal "rebel" General GUTIERREZ, who had himself elected by a fat majority. Wouldn't Honduras, so long ruffled, quiet down? Now we hear of a "serious" situation in Honduras and Guatemala and Nicaragua, and an American gunboat has been ordered to La Ceiba.

How far these disturbances, if there are disturbances, are fomented or made use of by the great tribe of foreign exploiters, concession holders and concession seekers there is no means of knowing. There is always a peck of trouble brewing in those lively regions. "Generals" are about as numerous to the square inch in Honduras and Guatemala as in Mexico. They are mighty writers of bulletins and proclamations. Exiles are always lurking on the border. Sometimes invading armies join the other side and fraternize with their foes. The Jefe politico is as numerous and powerful, if a little rude in his methods, as in the most unterrified Philadelphia ward.

Much is said, and has been for some time, about the revival of the scheme for a Federation of the Central American Republics. Whatever be the strength of the home parties that urge it, its recent renascence seems to have originated in Mexico; and, in a sense, the present discontents seem to be, in a sort, an aftermath of CARRANZA. It is clear that the Union movement has been made use of by ambitious "Generals" to further their political ends. There will never be anything like offices enough to satisfy the ambition of the partisan leaders. Revolution or the threat of it is their trade. Until there is a unity in each republic, a lasting federation is impossible, even if we assume that the people want it and that the people count in these squabbles of fantastic Napoleonets.

MENTAL DEFECTIVES.

One of the most interesting by-products of the army draft is the information it afforded with regard to the mentality of the American people. The percentage of illiteracy disclosed (24.9, or approximately one in four) has aroused widespread discussion, and indeed alarm. The current number of Mental Hygiene presents the statistics with regard to mental deficiency as analyzed by Drs. PEARCE BAILEY and ROY HABER of the Surgeon General's Office. The ratio of defectives was 6.5 for every 1,000 men examined. "If mental deficiency ran "uniform among persons of all ages, "there would be 353,210 male de-"fectives in the United States." Including both sexes in the estimate, the number would be 706,420, or one in every 100 to 200 Americans.

The situation has only recently received adequate attention from the medical profession, and State institutions make only the most meagre provision for it. Thus in New York State there are about 46,000 defectives and institutional accommodation for only about 6,000. Some 40,000 people who would technically be classed as imbeciles and morons are without regular care and have only the most inadequate clinical attention. They are three times more numerous than the insane, three times more numerous than drug addicts, for whom so much is done, and actually twenty times more numerous than those disabled by alcoholism—in whose behalf, as Drs. BAILEY and HABER remark, our Federal Constitution has been amended.

What literacy is to the educator, mental deficiency is to the medical profession—a problem that has hitherto been grossly underestimated and that requires instant and thorough attention. There is another and equally significant point of similarity. Like illiteracy, mental deficiency shows percentages that are "high for "Austria-Hungary, Italy, Poland and "Russia," and "small for England, "Scotland, Wales, Switzerland, Scan-"dinavia and France." In a word, both phenomena emphasize the general superiority of the "old" immigration from the west and north of Europe and the inferiority of the "new" immigration from the south and east.

When left to their own devices mental defectives tend to become dangerously anti-social. In another article in the same number of Mental Hygiene, Dr. WILLIAM C. SANDY of the New York State Commission for Mental Defectives describes their "behavior abnormalities" as "truancy, "pilfering, a tendency to assault, sex "offenses and the like." They yield readily to treatment, however, and especially to appropriate environment and occupation. Peculiarly fortunate is the fact that they have a special aptitude for labor of the kind that is increasingly hard to obtain. In the factory they fill jobs requiring an indefinite repetition of the same act—jobs that exhaust and brutalize workmen of a higher mentality. On the farm they dig and do simple chores efficiently and without repugnance. In the household, when intelligently supervised, they make good domestics. Proper attention and care is a duty not only to thousands of unfortunates who are potentially dangerous, but to the general comfort and productivity.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Politics and Politicians on a Level.

More than women and more than Republicans would do well to consider what Senator HARDING said in one of his porch speeches, this week, as to the entrance of women into the activities commonly grouped under the name of politics. Men who are, and long have been, deeply and habitually engaged in those activities far oftener than often enough have tried to justify or explain their antagonism to suffrage extension by saying that participation by women in politics was highly undesirable because of the demoralizing influences to which they would be subjected through association—with politicians! A poorer argument could not be devised, or at any rate none that any male politician should be more reluctant to make. Whatever may be the state of politics, it is exactly what the male politicians have caused it to be, and they would find it difficult indeed to prove that an atmosphere too impure for women to breathe was good enough for men.

Senator HARDING took the opposite position—he declared that as women now can vote they should at once enter one or another of the political parties and make them what they should be. Then, apparently realizing that this invitation, thus stated, contained a dangerous implication, he hastened to add: "Don't for a moment imagine that politics is a muddy pool. It is the finest and most patriotic business in the United States of America."

Some courage, perhaps one should say some audacity, was required to say that, for by frequent admission and more frequent accusation, the political game as played in this country is rather far from always either fine or patriotic. There was recognition of this fact in the Senator's exhortation to women to mingle with their brothers in politics and make it what it should be. But at least he recognized the fact that in politics there is not necessarily anything either base or demoralizing, and that is certainly true.

Segregation Would Be Disastrous.

Mrs. CARRIE CHAPMAN CATT, perhaps the ablest and almost certainly the most tactful—which is much the same thing as saying the wisest—of the women who have been leaders in the long fight for nation-wide suffrage for men and women on like terms—a fight won at last—unites with Senator HARDING in advising her sisters to join the existing parties and in advising them with the utmost earnestness not to make the terrible mistake of trying to form a separate party of their own.

Fortunately they cannot do that if they try, but even the attempt to do it not only would reveal an essential disqualification for suffrage privileges in those who made it, but it would discredit—unjustly and yet inevitably—the political competence of the whole sex these misguided ones would claim to represent.

Segregation of the sexes in politics would lead without doubt to antagonism between the sexes, and even as much of segregation as is involved in making separate counts of the votes cast by men and women should be resented and protested against by women voters wherever it is done. It is no more justifiable than would be the counting separately of race or creed groups.

A Flight Far Into the Arctic.

Airplanes have become such familiar sights nowadays in most parts of the country, and the journeys made in them have been so many and so long, that nothing done with these machines excites more than passing attention. How few years ago it was, however, when aerial navigation was merely the dream of men who were regarded—usually with justice—as of more or less disordered intellect! And it seems only the other day when the few airplanes then in existence ventured aloft only on the calmest days and an hour or two of continuous flight was a record achievement.

Now comes the news that four airplanes, starting from Mineola on July 14, have reached Nome, in far-off Alaska, and landed there on the sands once golden, all in good condition, and after a voyage marked by not a single accident to the machines or their operators.

The distance between points of departure and arrival is not the longest that has been thus traveled, but the number of the travelers makes it a record none the less, and, though the elapsed time is a little disappointing to high expectations, the time of actual flight was short enough to excite astonishment even now. Better, perhaps, than any previous flight does this one prove the practicability and the trustworthiness of the airplane—show that it can go from anywhere to anywhere, regardless of earth-surface condition and almost regardless of the weather.

A Regular Source of Income.

Once every year for twenty-two years, and some of the years more than once, the stage coach running between Cedar Brook and Miami, in the mountains near the Yosemite Park, has been held up and its passengers robbed—always, it seems, by the lone highwayman who is the special favorite of romance.

According to the Sheriff of Madera County, who ought to know, these exploits are not the work of one man, though each of them was. For reasons not stated, the originator of the industry practiced on this road transferred it to a successor about twelve years ago, and it is by the new practitioner that since then the business has been carried on.

The Governor of California has proclaimed the offer of a reward of $500 for the capture of the persistent disturber of traffic. The amount is rather small as well as strangely belated, and officials who have not acted without this incitement are not very likely to do much with it. And does anybody really desire the abolition of what, after all, is a picturesque and expected incident of travel in the Far West? These robberies always have been conducted with courtesy and humor and in accord with the best professional traditions. Nobody has ever been hurt, and nobody has lost more than he chose to carry after full warning of what to expect.

ROOSEVELT AND HARDING.

Some Extracts from Colonel Roosevelt's Autobiography.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The autobiography of Theodore Roosevelt, published in the period when Senator Harding saw a resemblance between him and Benedict Arnold, throws light on Harding's proposal to continue, under the guise of "party sponsorship," the subordination of himself to the Senate oligarchy. Roosevelt, after contrasting the Buchanan and the Jackson-Lincoln types of President, wrote:

"There are many people who reprobate the Buchanan method as a matter of histor , but who in actual life reprobate still more strongly the Jackson-Lincoln method. These persons conscientiously believe that the President should solve every doubt in favor of inaction as against action, that he should construe narrowly the constitutional grant of powers to the President within the National Government. There are men in whom, especially when they are themselves in office, practical adherence to the Buchanan principle represents simple weakness of character and desire to avoid trouble and responsibility. The President's duty is to act so that he shall do efficient work for the people, and this efficient work he cannot do if Congress is permitted to undertake the task of making up his mind for him as to how he shall perform what is clearly his sole duty."

The selection of Harding for the Presidency by his associates in the Senate who have undertaken "the task of making up his mind for him" is, of course, a corollary of their persistent attitude toward the "autocrat" now in the White House, who fell, like a soldier, in the great cause for which America entered the World War. Roosevelt never liked President Wilson, but these lines from his autobiography seem peculiarly applicable to the enemies of the President in the Senate:

"There are many men who affect to believe in [the Buchanan conception of the Presidency] merely because it enables them to attack and try to hamper, for partisan and personal reasons, an Executive whom they dislike."

Senator Harding may make the plea that the Senate oligarchy, to which he belongs, has consistently applauded the most notable antithesis of the Buchanan type of President, namely, the first great Republican leader, Abraham Lincoln. But the autobiography, written by an idolater of Lincoln, refers to this very Senate group when it says:

"These men still from force of habit applauded what Lincoln had done in the way of radical dealing with the abuses of his day, but they did not apply the spirit in which Lincoln worked to the abuses of their own day."

The autobiography insists that after 1898 one of the two great moral issues was "the need of meeting in manful and straightforward fashion the extra-territorial problems arising from the Spanish War." Roosevelt abhorred "pussyfooting." Harding, behind a smoke-screen of empty phrases, is seeking to conceal, in unmanful and tortuous fashion, the ignoble fact that he is refusing to meet the extraterritorial and moral issues arising from the World War.

Harding has sent broadcast over the land, as part of his campaign literature, this effusion: "God pity him for whom no minstrel raptures swell." Does he really believe that minstrel raptures await him if at this supreme juncture, with the fate of the world hanging in the balance and the heart of the world already nearly broken, he clings to his "safety first" program and dares not take a position on the main issues of the time? The Tennessee Constitution.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial calling the attention of the women of this country to the responsibility which political suffrage imposes upon them was most timely. The argument for political suffrage has been that granting it to women would raise the standard of morality in politics and give us a more righteous Government.

Thus far the result is the reverse. Every member of the Tennessee Legislature who voted to ratify the suffrage amendment had lifted his hand toward heaven and called Almighty God to witness that he would maintain the Constitution of the State of Tennessee. This Constitution expressly forbade him to vote at the present session upon any amendment to the Constitution of the United States. In violation of this oath he did vote for it. This morally was perjury. It was the suffrage leaders who urged the men who were leaders in politics to insist that the Tennessee legislators should commit this crime. No such concerted attempt to induce public men to violate their oath of office was ever made in this country. No doubt the men were guilty who yielded to the temptation, but in the divine law the tempter is even more guilty than he who yields. Suffrage leaders deny that they bribed Tennessee legislators; but is not perjury a greater crime than venality? They cannot deny that they urged the Tennesseans to violate their oaths of office.

The many good women who believe that political suffrage in the hands of women can be used to raise the standard of political life should exert themselves at once. So far, none of them has protested. So far as the public knows, they have allowed unscrupulous leaders to commit this crime which has done more to debase public morals than anything that has happened in a generation.

This question of morals must not be confused with the question of legality. That is for the courts to decide, and it is before them. The courts do not undertake to decide what is morally right. The law of God has done that. The Third Commandment cannot be explained away. "Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain; for the Lord will not hold him guiltless who taketh His name in vain."

VOICES.

What magic has the human voice,
That though long years may creep
Between two hearts, its tones can wake
Old memories from their sleep,
And never are there two the same!
Once known, once loved—or loathed—
Naught can disguise the wondrous thing
In which the thoughts are clothed.

Up to my windows, opened wide,
Myriads of voices come,
Now harsh, now sweetly clear, now shrill
And ah, I know my heart could tell—
If but one word were said—
In the old days long dead!

Somewhere in far-off lonely lands,
That voice I used to know
May still be calling crazed commands,
Broken and harsh and low.
And yet . . . faint o'er an unseen wire,
Or in a crowded street,
My ears one day may hear it speak—
And life could be so sweet!

CAMPAIGN LITERATURE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

When a man has enlisted for a war, to which duty has called him, taking the side of one of two antagonistic armies with a reasonable choice, he must not lack a stirring impulse, a thrill of the nobler emotions, to quicken his exertions beyond the cold convictions of the closet, and a more worthy incitement to them than the fighting fellowship of battle.

This was a mere truism, needing no assertion, during the great war, when the tongues and pens of the leaders of the people, from the White House, from Congress, from the pulpit, press and platform, called effectively to service, kindled ardor, and by their inspiration kept alive patience and perseverance. In the political contest which engages us between the great parties two books have appeared that are likely to influence the course of its combatants—Keynes's "The Economic Consequences of the Peace" and Creel's "The War, the World and Wilson."

Already it may be said of them, respectively, "By their fruits ye shall know them." Creel's note has echoed where America's moral leadership, won human brotherhood and industrial peace are chartered for defense, a "Horn of Roland"! Keynes's voice is that of John Hook, a selfish appeal based on material arguments, pessimistic, misleading in deductions from wild hypotheses, and acclaimed by all those who hate the "League" and by the "Red" element everywhere, which is glad to see ruin and anarchy presaged, since they believe them to be necessary parturition pains for civilization's rebirth!

Both books are "inspiring"; Creel's in the better sense of "elevating"; Keynes's as "stimulating" the promotion of his desired end. By his absurd structure of figures on the vague bases of self-contradictory statements (hopeful ones tucked away in notes) elaborate condemnation of peace conditions to gain the reader's mind, with the real truth of "alternatives" reserved for his final chapter (such as the wide compensating powers of the "reparation committee" given to qualify later the allied countries' popular demands at the moment for stern terms), the animus of Keynes invalidates his sometimes specious pleading with the sensitive reader. There is nothing more untrue than the common apothegm, "Figures cannot lie." The "Gradgrind" manipulations of "facts" is often used to make lies seem the truth.

This is not a book review, but a square campaign document. The one book will "hearten" a Democrat, the other a Republican, and "Reds" who are not chained to Debs. There is not the slightest doubt how the vote would be cast of an open-minded, unpledged citizen who should read them both.

Creel is constructive; his information is mostly first-hand; his diagnosis is reasonable, and his prognosis hopeful, marrying to the future the noble ideals of the past, the pearls downtrodden of late by the swine! The faithful "hero-worship" of the author will appeal to a natural instinct of humanity, now that the erstwhile world's hero claims nothing, save from history. And is not ours a glorious motto—the old angelic solution, "Peace and good-will" ("to men of good-will" [Vulgate]). Alas! that the "obstructionists" cannot be included.

The Ambiguous Platform.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Ex-President Taft says that the Republican platform, properly interpreted, means that the party favors a League of Nations, with Lodge reservations, or some reservations akin to them.

Senators Borah and Johnson say it means nothing of that sort, that it is a clear declaration against any sort of a League, "no entangling alliances" of any sort or kind, by League or otherwise, while Senator Harding seems to be a kind of a Polonius; to him the platform as to the League looks like a camel, a whale, or anything you see fit to call it, but it is certainly "backed like a weasel."

President Taft's letter states that when the Platform Committee proposed to state clearly that the party favored a League with the Lodge reservations, Senator Lodge stated that if such a plank were offered he would take the floor of the convention against it; so no such plank was reported.

Senator Watson in a recent speech makes it clear that he is against a League, is in favor of declaring peace with Germany at once, while Senator Harding says that he will be guided by the advice of the Senate in all his official acts and in performances of duty as President. (That is, the "Senate" is to be the President and will speak through Harding, a kind of an Aaron and Moses job.) This being true, one is inclined to believe that Borah-Johnson-Lodge-Watson are to be the cabal, and that they are not to be the bunkoed ones in this election.

The platform as to the League answers the question, What is it? In much the same way that Sir Roger De Coverley answered a ticklish question, "Much can be said on both sides of the question," so Taft is to interpret it for, Borah against, and Harding "I don't know"; but Harding is to "catch the coon goin' and coming," holding fast the bag to be disposed of by "the Senate."

One who believes in plain honesty, a square deal and that words should be used to enlighten, not obscure, will find on reading the Republican platform as to the League of Nations that it is cunningly contrived to deceive, it is neither hot nor cold, for or against, or is for and is against; it is something akin to the Laodicean Church, and the candidate who stands for such a platform should be treated by the electors as St. John said would be done with the Laodiceans. New Freight Rates on Lumber.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

An article appears in your paper of today's issue, by Mr. Ralph Peters, giving the result of increase of freight on commodities and including lumber, in which Mr. Peters states that the increase from Lee, S. C., to Patchogue, L. I., will be 13½ cents per hundred, and Mr. Peters is correct in his statement, but neglects to point out that 1,000 feet of yellow pine green weighs 4,500 pounds, and that the increase in freight will therefore be $0.07½ per thousand feet, and, inasmuch as the average price of yellow pine is $40 per thousand, the increase amounts to 10 per cent. on the original cost.

It seems only fair that the consumer should realize what the increase in freight does mean to the lumber industry and not carry in his mind the idea that the increase in the price of lumber is not affected by the freight rates.

Our association shall be very glad indeed to furnish anybody interested the freight rates on lumber from its various points of origin and show just what the increase in rate from each point will mean to the ultimate consumer of the lumber.

BAR LEADERS URGE TRUST SUIT CHANGES

TREATY RIGHTS OF ALIENS

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 26.—Today's session of the American Bar Association was devoted to considering the reports of sections and committees.

Albert J. Beveridge, former United States Senator from Indiana, spoke at tonight's session in the Shubert-Jefferson Theatre on "the attack on American fundamentals." He spoke also this noon at a luncheon at the City Club.

The Committee on Commerce, Trade and Commercial Law, in its report submitted this morning, recommended broadening of the power and improvement of the practice of the Federal Trade Commission, in order to bring about "a more satisfactory administration of justice" by it. The committee recommended that the commission be empowered to investigate all breaches of anti-trust laws, and that proceedings in reference to these laws should be transferred from courts to the commission, with the right to appeal from the commission to Federal courts.

The report also recommended that all cases falling within the anti-trust laws should be primarily instituted before the commission.

"The Federal Trade Commission," it continued, "having jurisdiction for the purpose of investigation, ought to be permitted not only to complete the investigation but to enter an order in conformity with its findings, subject to right of appeal."

To carry out this suggestion the committee advocated amendments to the Federal trade commission law, the Clayton act and "all Federal anti-trust laws." The report also urged that the commission render written opinions on "at least" every new case coming before it, to establish a system of law and precedent that will enable the business of the country to know what the law is on a given point.

The Committee on Jurisprudence and Law Reform, in its report, recommended enactment of Federal laws to guarantee more adequate protection to aliens in their treaty rights.

This subject "is entitled to very serious consideration in the pending Congress," in the opinion of the committee. Its recommendation, according to the report, results from "various complaints that have been made to the United States by other nations that the rights of the citizens of those nations under existing treaties were not sufficiently protected by laws of this country."

The proposed legislation provides "that the President be authorized to direct the Attorney General, in the name and behalf of the United States, to file a bill in equity in the proper District Court of the United States against any person or persons threatening to violate the rights of a citizen or subject of a foreign country secured to such citizen or subject by treaty between the United States and such foreign country; and that this provision shall apply to acts threatened by State officers under the alleged justification of a law of the Legislature of the State in which such acts are to be committed."

In cases where aliens are brought to trial in State courts for violation of State statutes, which are deemed by the President to be contrary to the rights of the defendant, the Government under the proposed law would have power to file an intervening petition for the transfer of the action to a Federal court.

The committee also suggested amplifications of the judicial code to clarify laws governing the removal of causes, and advised changes in the rules of the Supreme Court so that lawyers would not have to journey to Washington to file motions.

Other section and committee reports were furnished by the section of comparative law, of which W. W. Smithers of Philadelphia is Chairman; sections on patent, trademark and copyright law, Wallace R. Lane of Chicago, Chairman; section of legal education, Charles M. Hepburn of Bloomington, Ind., Chairman; judicial section, Charles A. Woods of Marion, S. C., Chairman; section on public utility law, Bentley W. Warren of Boston, acting chairman; National Conference on Uniform State Laws, W. A. Blount of Pensacola, Fla., President, and the committees on co-operation, professional ethics and grievances, international law, insurance law, publicity and memorials.

Viscount Cave, one of the Lord Justices of Appeal and a member of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council of England, addressed the association later in the session last night. He advocated a court of international law, saying that he attached great value to the condemnation by public opinion of the infringement of that law.

"The submarine outrage held its share in bringing the United States into the war," he said. "No one, perhaps not even Admiral von Tirpitz, now defends it, and the retaliatory orders by which we countered it are universally held to have been justified.

"World opinion has its value," the Viscount concluded. "Let it be frankly and clearly expressed, whenever opportunity occurs, and it will form a strong barrier against similar attempts in the future."

Body Rests in Moravian Cemetery Near Former Estate of Family.

William K. Vanderbilt was buried yesterday afternoon in the Moravian Cemetery at New Dorp, Staten Island, about a quarter of a mile from the former Vanderbilt estate, once a show place, now an army aviation post. The services at the grave and earlier in the Vanderbilt home, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-second Street, were simple and brief.

The services at the home were private, only relatives and most intimate friends being present. Dr. William H. Garth, of Islip, L. I., conducted them and the mixed choir from St. Bartholomew's Episcopal Church sang the musical numbers. Following Dr. Garth's prayers for the dead and the committal service, the choir sang "O Day of Resurrection," "Souls of the Righteous" and the final, "The Strife is O'er."

Long before 2:30 o'clock throngs of the curious were in front of the big house, with its shuttered windows and a squad from the East Fifty-first Street station, under Captain William Davis, was called out to aid the regular traffic officers in handling the traffic.

Early in the afternoon William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., son of the dead millionaire, arrived at the residence. He escorted the widow to her automobile and rode with her to the Staten Island cemetery. In the same car were the younger son, Harold S. Vanderbilt, with his sister, the Countess Szechenyi.

In addition to the immediate family there were present Mrs. William B. Osgood Field, Mrs. Frederick O. Beach, Mrs. Richard Wharton, Mrs. William Douglas Sloane, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Burden, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Pulitzer, Mrs. H. McK. Twombly, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, Ogden Mills, Whitney Warren, Miss Gerry, Reginald C. Vanderbilt, Dr. Joseph A. Blake, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Sr., the Duchess of Marlborough, and Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., and her children, William H. Vanderbilt and the Misses Consuelo and Muriel Vanderbilt.

PONZI MAKES TOUR IN HUNT FOR ASSETS

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Aug. 26.—Accompanied by three receivers and two United States Deputy Marshals, Charles Ponzi today toured about this city, unearthing assets which have been locked in safe deposit boxes in both Boston and suburban banks.

Ponzi and his escort called at the recently closed Hanover Trust Company, where the Washington Street crowd followed them, and from there the party was to visit a branch office of the company on Hanover Street, as well as the Tremont Trust, Fidelity Trust and First National Bank.

In the afternoon the same group drove to Lexington, where Ponzi had bought a country home, and further search was made at the house and at a Lexington bank.

At the conclusion of the tour, it was said that Ponzi had turned over to the authorities a large amount of additional assets, one of the vaults yielding a small gold mine of $11,370 in coin or certificates, $2,000 Liberty bonds and 100,000 German marks.

Assets thus far revealed, however, do not begin to approach the total of liabilities. These went beyond the $5,000,000 mark in the State tabulation during the morning, the latest announcement placing them at $5,014,092.54, based on the face value of notes reported by over 12,000 holders.

Commissioner Joseph C. Allen today announced from the State House that all the Hanover Trust Company depositors, in both the savings and commercial departments, will probably receive 100 cents on the dollar in the settlement of that institution's affairs.

MAVERICK ARTISTS GIVE THEIR PAGEANT

WOODSTOCK, N. Y., Aug. 26.—Hervey White, founder of the Maverick artists' colony at Woodstock, artist and creator of the bizarre entertainments that in recent years have made Woodstock, one of the most noted art centres during the Summer, set a new record today when the annual pageant and carnival of the Maverick artists was held here.

Before the opening at 3 o'clock, automobiles from eleven States filled the roads leading to Woodstock and they were followed by people on foot and on horseback going to the natural amphitheatre on the side of the mountain between here and West Hurley, ready to participate in the field day revels or to enjoy the afternoon concert by the Maverick Heathen Orchestra, under the direction of Pierre Henriotte, the campfire suppers, the pageant this evening, the production of a one-act playlet "Cothurnus," by Edna St. Vincent Millay and Norma Millay, supporting George Bellow, the vaudeville concert, at which Mario Laurenti, tenor, was applauded by the crowds, and the dance which will continue until dawn.

Never has there been a greater variety of costumes at a pageant in the Catskills, fully 1,000 people, including natives of the section, visitors from other places, authors, artists, sculptors, actors and actresses, appeared in costumes ranging from beggar and beggar maid to the king and queen.

SERVANTS' LOOT RECOVERED

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Aug. 26.—About $15,000 worth of stolen goods, consisting of oil paintings, mirrors, bronzes, furniture, hangings and feminine finery, were found last night by Lieutenant John J. McGowan, Chief of the New Rochelle Detective Bureau, and Chief of Police A. T. Conran of Garden City at the home of Mrs. Kate Gallard, 963 Main Street, New Rochelle.

Mrs. Gallard and her husband, who had been employed by a family in Garden City as cook and butler, respectively, were arrested by the Garden City police in connection with robberies there.

According to the police Mrs. Gallard confessed to several robberies and came to New Rochelle with Chief Conran to help him recover some of the booty. Articles to the value of more than $1,000 were identified by T. M. Hilliard of 140 Elderwood Avenue, Pelham, where the Gallards had worked for a short time.

Chief Conran took back to Garden City a truckload of goods, valued at between $5,000 and $8,000, which he said came from the Brewster and other homes in Garden City. Mrs. Gallard said she owned a house in New Jersey, and the police expect to find more loot there.

VANDAL THIEVES HACK RARE CHIPPENDALES

GLEN COVE, L. I., Aug. 26.—A dozen pieces of prized old Chippendale—dressers, chiffoniers and buffets—were hacked with an axe by burglars who entered the home here of William J. Frothingham, banker, of 14 Wall Street, on Tuesday night. The vandals left behind them quantities of Sheffield plate, but they took much solid silver.

Mr. Frothingham and his family went to Bar Harbor, Me., two weeks ago. Dr. Medwin Leale, his brother-in-law, said tonight that there was no way of estimating the damage to the old furniture or the money value of the silver taken.

"Mr. Frothingham had been collecting the rich old mahogany pieces for years," Dr. Leale said. "The thieves used an axe on the pieces that contained drawers that were locked. My opinion is that most of the damage can be repaired, but it will cost hundreds of dollars.

"I have been in telegraphic communication with Mr. Frothingham, but until he returns the loss cannot be estimated. Everything is covered by insurance."

Dr. Leale said that the robbery, which became known to the public today, was discovered yesterday by his wife's laundress. The burglars had entered the Frothingham home, a house of fourteen rooms and three baths, by a rear window. They wore white cloth gloves to avoid making tell-tale finger-prints, and left one pair of gloves behind them. In spite of these precautions many prints were found and detectives are now working upon them.

The burglars did no damage to valuable oil paintings, bric-a-brac and other old furniture, but wielded the axe on only those articles of furniture in which they appeared to think valuables might be kept.

GERMAN INDEPENDENTS FACE INTERNAL ROW

BERLIN, Aug. 26.—The German Independent Social Democratic Party is facing serious internal dissensions if not disruption, is the belief held in political circles in Berlin as a result of a message brought from Moscow by a delegation comprising four of the party leaders, Crispier, Daeming, Dittmann and Stoecker, who are also believed to be divided on issues as a result of their trip to Moscow.

The delegation has not yet made public its report on the negotiations with Nikolai Lenin, the Bolshevist Premier; Leon Trotzky, the Bolshevist Minister of War, and other Soviet high priests, and has declined to talk for publication until it has conferred with the party and has its undivided approval.

Not one Moscow leaders expect the German party to jettison several of its moderate leaders, like Crispier, Ireutscheid, Hilferding and Ledebour, but they also expect it to change its label and assume the common international appellation, "Communist Party" and generally submerge its identity and nationalistic aspirations in abject submission to Moscow, it is said.

The independents will submit the issue to a party referendum.

GERMANS IN SILESIA WRECK CONSULATES

Throw Polish, French and Interallied Records Into the Streets.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—During a demonstration in Breslau by the old bourgeois parties Thursday evening against the Polish agitation in Upper Silesia a crowd of German Nationalists stormed the Polish and French Consulates and destroyed the records and demolished the furniture, says a Berlin dispatch to The London Times.

The burglars did no damage to valuable oil paintings, bric-a-brac and other old furniture, but wielded the axe on only those articles of furniture in which they appeared to think valuables might be kept.

Another crowd entered two hotels where officers of the Inter-Allied Commission were living and their papers were seized and thrown into the street.

Later there was a demonstration against the Eastern Jews, who fled from Breslau, says the despatch.

JAMES WILSON DIES IN HIS IOWA HOME

Secretary of Agriculture Under McKinley, Roosevelt and Taft Was 85 Years Old.

HE TAUGHT 'BOOK' FARMING

TRAER, Iowa, Aug. 26.—James Wilson, former Secretary of Agriculture, died at his home here today. He was 85 years old.

The funeral will be at 2 P. M. Saturday in the United Presbyterian Church, Traer.

James Wilson—"Tama Jim" he was called affectionately because he lived in Tama, Iowa—was head of the Department of Agriculture for fifteen years, a record for service in the Cabinet. He held the portfolio under Presidents McKinley, Roosevelt and Taft.

As head of the Department of Agriculture Mr. Wilson was responsible for its reorganization and for valuable contributions to the country's agricultural development. It has been said that Mr. Wilson taught the American farmer to be a "book farmer," and his friends boasted that it was he who changed the entire viewpoint of the farmers of the country by teaching them that farming is a science.

Mr. Wilson's service in the Department of Agriculture did not begin until he was 62 years old. He celebrated his eighty-fifth birthday on Aug. 28. In 1872 he was sent to Congress, where he served three terms. He became Secretary of Agriculture under President McKinley on March 4, 1897.

Secretary Wilson introduced into the United States a great number of valuable crops which hitherto had been successful only in foreign countries. Among these was durum wheat, which came to yield nearly $50,000,000 a year to the farmers of the Northwest. He also extended the possibilities of wheat growing far beyond the former climatic limits. Under his administration the beet sugar industry was also fostered, a serum for hog cholera was discovered and the whole country was aroused on the subject of tuberculosis in cattle, and the care and handling of milk were systematized and improved.

Road building was also encouraged by the Department of Agriculture under Secretary Wilson. The department also studied forestry and made remarkable advances in conservation.

CLEVELAND STARTS BOYCOTT ON MAYS

RESULT OF CHAPMAN'S DEATH

They Would Not Play in Any Game in Which Hurler Officiates on the Mound.

HUSTON SILENT ON MATTER

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 26.—Although Ban Johnson, President of the American League, who came here Tuesday to attend the meeting of several American League club owners, emphatically denied that he had prolonged his visit in an attempt to checkmate a boycott on Carl Mays, it became known today that members of the Cleveland team now playing a series of games in this city with the Athletics have started a move which they eventually hope will remove the Yankee twirler from organized baseball.

It was learned that the Cleveland players have sent a letter to every club in the American League asking them to take action against the unfortunate New York pitcher who delivered the ball that resulted in the death of Ray Chapman, the Indians' great shortstop, last week in New York.

It is believed that five of the eight American League clubs will take action and refuse to participate in any game Mays attempts to hurl against them.

The Chicago White Sox, now leading the league, and the Athletics are the only clubs so far known who have not taken a stand against the New York underhand pitcher.

The text of the letter was not made public but Joe Wood and several Cleveland players confirmed the fact that such a letter had been sent to all the clubs.

Tris Speaker, manager of the Indians, was closeted with Ban Johnson in a long session today. At the finish of the conference neither would admit or deny that the letter was the principal subject of the conference.

"Oh, we talked about many things," said Speaker. "I know nothing about the letter. The club management had nothing whatever to do with it and if one was sent, the players who naturally feel grieved over the loss of their pal, Ray Chapman, had all to do with it."

Connie Mack, when asked if the Athletic players had received the letters said that, while he had not received one, he understood his players had received one, but they would take no action in the matter whatever.

"I think Cleveland is making a serious mistake and will realize this later. My players will not take any action whatever."

Further developments may come tomorrow. It is understood that today wires were sent out to all the clubs, especially to the members of the Chicago Club, requesting indorsement of the Cleveland players' stand and imploring all players to stand firm.

RED SOX AWAITING CLEVELAND PETITION

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Aug. 26.—The petition of the Cleveland team appealing to all American League players to join with it in refusing to participate in any game which Carl Mays is assigned to pitch against them was considered at a meeting of the Red Sox today. Members of the Red Sox have not as yet received letters from the Cleveland players apprising them of the facts in the fatal tragedy, which are said to have been mailed to all the players in the league.

So far as could be learned, no definite action was decided upon, the matter being taken under consideration.

The Boston players are as visibly antagonistic to Mays as any of the others, but evidently are waiting to see the movement crystallized before putting themselves on record. They resent the attitude of both Mays and the New York Club in trying to force them to play against the Yankee pitcher under the circumstances. In their present mood they regard it as rank assurance on the part of both.

"The Yankees made a mistake when they sent Mays back at Detroit the other day. It was said Mays was suffering from a nervous breakdown, but if he really was he certainly showed wonderful recuperative powers to get out three days later and shut out Detroit. Had Mays been knocked out of the box early in the game, then the people would have been ready to admit that the Chapman case had gotten under his skin.

"Rank and nervous collapse stuff," he snappily concluded, "that guy hasn't got any nerves."

It will be interesting to see the reception Mays receives if he pitches when the Yankees open their series here next Thursday.

This feeling is the same among the St. Louis players, although it is said the latter have decided to join the Indians in their protest.

HUSTON IS SILENT ON BOYCOTT OF CARL MAYS

Yankee Owners to Communicate with Ban Johnson Today—Kid Gleason Opposed to Move.

When interviewed last night regarding the action of the Cleveland baseball players in starting a concerted movement to boycott Pitcher Carl Mays, Colonel T. L. Huston, part owner of the Yankees, said that he and Colonel Jacob Ruppert had decided not to issue any statement regarding the matter until they have had a chance to communicate with Ban Johnson, President of the American League, today. "After we have discussed the matter with Mr. Johnson we will undoubtedly have something to say for publication," said Colonel Huston. "Until that time, however, we prefer not to issue any formal statement."

Kid Gleason, manager of the Chicago White Sox, was emphatic in his denial that the Chicago White Sox players would take any action regarding the petition of the Cleveland players to boycott Carl Mays. He said that they would not have anything to do with any strike movement. He said that he had not received any communication from the Cleveland players, and that if he did receive one he would ignore it.

"I am decidedly opposed to stirring up any trouble. Every ball player should know and should realize that Mays did not purposely hit Ray Chapman with a pitched ball. Mays feels the death of Chapman as keenly as any one—more keenly than any one except Ray's immediate family. It was an unavoidable and regrettable accident and I do not think that Mays's path should be made any harder for him. Instead we all should try to lighten his burden in every possible way.

"My attitude and that of the White Sox is to play ball. That is what we are in the game for. We are going to win games and win the American League pennant if that be possible. We will bat against Carl Mays whenever he pitches."

Carl Mays is further broken up by the latest development in the unfortunate accident that led to the death of Ray Chapman. He has been mentally depressed ever since he accidentally hit Chapman with a pitched ball at the Polo Grounds and last night he was greatly upset. He did not care to discuss the matter at any length, but said that he cannot understand why players on other clubs should want to try to drive him out of big league baseball or out of the American League at any rate.

"I have felt Ray's death very deeply. I would give anything in my power to bring him back to life. I cannot understand why other players are taking the attitude toward me that they have."

If players on some of the American League clubs attempt to strike when Mays is elected to pitch a serious situation will arise, one that may cause grave complications in the American League. Under the rules, the umpire-in-chief for any game in which the players struck would have no alternative but to forfeit the game to the Yankees by a score of 9 to 0. Such a forfeiture would entail the fining of the club $1,000. There is a provision in the rules governing baseball which specifically stipulates that a club which forfeits a game to another club is subject to a fine of that amount.

It is said that the St. Louis Browns have decided not to play against Mays. The Browns begin a three-game series with the Yankees at the Polo Grounds on Sunday. Mays will probably pitch one of the games. That will undoubtedly be the showdown.

YANKS MASSACRED ON ARRIVAL OF SOX

Mogridge, Collins and McGraw Simply Give Them Away — Chicago Works Triple Steal in Eighth.

The slipping, sliding Yanks folded up like a battered accordion before the onslaught of the league-leading White Sox at the Polo Grounds yesterday and took as sound a beating as they will encounter for many moons. Barring, perhaps, the exhibition game between Fordham College and the Giants earlier in the year, it was the worst exhibition of baseball seen on the Harlem lot this season. When the slaughter was over and the havoc fully estimated, the final tally was 16 to 4 in favor of Kid Gleason's ball team. It was a fairly tidy margin.

The league leaders waded knee deep in base hits in the first session. They made runs in such large bunches that for the next two innings they were held scoreless from sheer exhaustion. Four markers came over in the first, three in the fourth and then no more until the seventh, when the massacre entered its final stages. In the seventh Rip Collins yielded four more tallies, and Bob McGraw, who hove onto the scene in the eighth, was reached for five more, completing the afternoons exercise for the Windy City tribe.

Looming up in the midst of the carnage was the heroic figure of George Herman Ruth, who enlivened the first inning by poling his forty-fourth home run into the lower stand of the right field stand. It brought the Babe up to within one of the highest known total of four-base slams, and it also scored Wally Pipp, who was roosting on second. The slam likewise brought the Yanks on the heels of the Sox, a gap that they temporarily bridged in the third when they tied the score at 4 all.

25,000 There to See It.

Some 25,000 fans came out to greet the dangerous White Sox, who left New York several weeks ago in third place and returned at the top of the pile. For three innings the throng was regaled with a close battle, the sunshine before the storm. But after the Sox had clumbed up into double figures and seemed headed for an even twenty, those who had come to cheer remained to jeer. When a Chicago batter was retired or McGraw slipped over a strike the applause was quite vociferous.

All in all the league leaders fattened their batting averages considerably. They made seventeen hits for a total of twenty-four bases, five doubles and one triple being interspersed in the hitting bee. Every player but the pitcher got at least one safe blow, and Eddie Collins, Felsch and John Collins got three each. The latter led the way with the club, smacking two doubles and a triple in his afternoon's workout.

After two were out in the first the Sox began the afternoon's slaughter when Buck Weaver doubled to left. Jackson was walked, but Felsch's grounder to short, which should have been an easy out for Peck, was deflected off Ward's glove and rolled into left centre for a hit, Weaver scoring and Jackson going to third. Shano Collins's double to right brought Jackson home and shoved Felsch to third. John Collins and Felsch tallied on Risberg's single to right.

In their half of the first Peck tripled to left and scored on Pipp's single off Kerr. Pipp went to second on a wild pitch and finished the journey ahead of Ruth when the slugger delivered his homer into the right-field stand. Pratt singled, but Lewis hit into a double play. Bodie and Ward both singled to centre, and Ruel ended the inning by forcing Bodie at third, Weaver unassisted.

Ruth's walk, a sacrifice and Lewis's single to left enabled the Yanks to tie the score in the third, but in the next canto the Sox broke out again and put the game on the shelf by dumping three runs across the platter. J. Collins began by doubling, and was followed by a single by Risberg and another two-ply slam by Schalk, Collins tallying on the latter blow. Collins took Mogridge's place in the box, and Kerr raised a fly to Bodie that scored Risberg. Strunk and E. Collins singled, Schalk coming over on Shano's hit. Weaver forced the Chicago second baseman at the keystone sack for the second out, and Strunk was nipped at the plate. Pratt to Ruel, on an attempted double steal.

And Still They Come.

In the seventh four more Chicago runs dented the plate. Eddie Collins singled through the box and raced to second on Weaver's sacrifice. Jackson's high grounder to Pratt was good for a base. Felsch hit to deep short, and Peck's throw to second was low. Collins scoring and Jackson going to third. A passed ball cleared the bases with a triple to left centre and, rallied while Peck was throwing Risberg out at first. Schalk walked but was forced at second by Kerr.

In the eighth, with McGraw doing the hurling, the Sox marked up five more for a grand total of sixteen. Strunk walked and was chased around on a single by E. Collins and a double by Weaver. Jackson received an intentional pass, cramming the sacks. Then came Eddie Collins's steal of home, the other two runners also advancing a base for a triple steal. They scored on Felsch's double to left. Felsch trotted to third on J. Collins's infield out and completed the trip when Schalk singled to left. In the ninth the Sox went out in order.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Aug. 26.—Bainbridge Frothingham, a member of the Harvard 'Varsity baseball team, who was struck by a pitched ball in the game with Yale at New Haven in June, has lost the use of an eye, it was learned today. The fact became known when Frothingham sent word that because of the injury he would be unable to play football this Fall.

GIANTS ARE HALTED BY DOAK'S PITCHING

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 26.—Opportunity beckoned the Giants upward in the final game of the series with the Cardinals today, but they lost by a score of 2 to 1 and muffed a tidy chance to reduce Cincinnati's three-game lead. Willie Doak's shower ball carried too much spray for the Giants and had them dazzled into impotence except in the eighth inning, when they scored one run. Beyond that single period Doak was always master, and easily removed the punch from the Giants' assault. He held them to six scattered hits.

A home run by Austin McHenry that also scored Stock in the fourth inning gave St. Louis the game. It was made off Toney, who thereupon was withdrawn and relieved by Benton, who also gave way to Winters in the eighth. The loss of the game was a jarring blow to the Giants, but the team went on to Cincinnati tonight with light hearts and the determination to win the pennant or crack a limb in the attempt.

Toney and Doak yielded not an inch to each other throughout the first three innings. Both clubs started at a smart pace, but the pitchers tightened and stemmed the advance. The Giants unleashed a sturdy drive in the fourth, but it came to grief when the main punch failed to arrive. Young and Frisch both singled crisply to left, but Kelly fouled to Fournier and Spencer hit into a double play, Lavan to Hornsby to Fournier. It showed again the hitting weakness of the lower part of the batting order.

Cards Score Two Runs.

The Cardinals came through in the same inning with a wallop a la Ruth and jarred the complacency of the Giants with a rush that netted two runs. Stock walked and then up stepped the athletic Mr. McHenry and caressed one of Toney's choicest floaters for a home run over the left field fence. The blow put new life into the 3,000 odd fans, who appeared to be stricken with ennui, and the game took on the aspect of a real pastime. McHenry's crash lifted Toney plumb out of the game and Rube Benton took his place.

The score board flashed the tidings of a Red defeat at the hands of the Phillies in Cincinnati and the Giants stepped hard on the gas but could not break down the Cardinal defence.

Doak appeared at his best in the sixth. Bancroft walked and took second when Hornsby threw out Young on a tidy play. Frisch had trouble with Doak's moist ball and the best he could do was fly to Heathcote. Kelly fanned wanly.

Rickey met McGraw's shift of pitchers by sending Janvrin bat for Jack Smith and Schultz hit for Fournier. The move yielded little. Janny walked and Schultz forced him, Benton to Bancroft. Stock filed to Young and Hornsby burned one that hit Benton in the foot for an out at first.

Rickey's policy of shuffling his lineup by removing Smith and Fournier whenever they are required to face a southpaw is decidedly unpopular in St. Louis. Both Smith and Fournier are capable players and the fans lose no opportunity to vent their displeasure whenever they are plucked to make room for Janvrin and Schultz.

Smith Scores Only Tally.

The Giants fought with fine courage in the seventh, but Doak stood firm as a mountain range. Elmer Smith, the thick meated young catcher, batted for Benton at the start of the eighth and walked. Burns had no punch on hand and tapped weakly to Hornsby, Smith taking second. Bancroft did better, however, and lifted New York's hopes with a clean double to the right field stands, scoring Smith. Doak appeared to be wavering and the Giants grouped on the bench shrieked for Young to deliver. Pep hit the ball hard, but it sailed into Heathcote's hands in far-right centre. Frisch smashed to Doak, but Willie stopped the ball and threw him out, and hopes sagged.

The remainder of the game saw the Giants strive mightily but without effect against Doak's well-sprayed delivery.

It developed that Toney had slightly injured a finger on his pitching hand and had withdrawn voluntarily. The injury is not believed to be serious and the big pitcher will be available during the important series with the Reds.

Curves and Bingles

The downfall pushed the Yanks four games to the rear of the White Sox, who lead the Indians by the comfortable margin of three and a half games.

Kerr's most glittering exhibition of twirling was in the second when he retired the side on strikes. Mogridge, Peck and Pipp were the victims, the latter being called out and the other two fanning honestly.

A double play ended the game in the ninth. Pipp, who was on first, kept on running when Ruth lifted to Eddie Collins and was easily doubled when the Sox second sacker threw to John Collins for the third out.

Ruel doubled to left to start the fourth and it looked as if the Yanks were coming back strong again. But Collins fanned, Peck fouled to Schalk and Pipp also lifted a foul to Weaver, leaving Ruel stranded at the midway station.

The Sox wasted none of their hits. They both batted and scored in bunches. They made four bingles in the first, five in the fourth, and four each in the seventh and eighth. In the other frames they went both hitless and scoreless.

Jack Quinn will probably try his moist slants against the Sox in the second game of the series this afternoon. Eddie Cicotte or Williams looms up as Gleason's likely choice for the slab honors.

Ruth received an intentional walk in the third, but on his three other appearances he twice lifted high flies over first and fanned once. Kerr was not afraid to let the big fellow hit it.

The egress of fans in the seventh after Ruth had fanned showed how many came to the Polo Grounds to see him in action. There seemed to be small prospect of him getting another turn at the plate, but he did and lofted to Eddie Collins in the ninth. Both of Ruth's wrists are still encased in adhesive bandages.

ROBINS BEAT CUBS AND GAIN ON REDS

Draw Close to Heels of League Leaders by Winning 5 to 3 Victory in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—The Brooklyn Robins fluttered into town today and, so far, they seem to like the place very much. If the city continues to please them they are thinking of buying it with their World's Series proceeds. They walloped the Cubs 5 to 3 this afternoon, thereby slicing the lead of the Reds, who were soundly thrashed by the Phillies, to the most tenuous of margins. Incidentally they drew further away from their pet rivals, the Giants, who got the losers' end in St. Louis.

Yes, take it all in all, it was quite a day for Robbie's merry men. They had their war clubs burnished bright, and swung them very effectively at the offerings of Vaughn. They not only corralled plenty of hits from Big Jim's delivery, but they were able to produce said blows at the times when they could be cashed into runs.

On the other hand, Leon Cadore was old Mr. Sphinx himself for the Cubs. In only one session, the fifth, when the local group got all its runs, was there any solution at all of the Cadore riddle. In the other eight innings the total Chicago harvest was three piffling and wholly futile singles. And the Superbas backed up their box artist with speed and accuracy, committing not a single fielding slip.

About 7,000 fans turned out for the battle, not because it had any particular significance as far as the Cubs are concerned, for they're not going anywhere, but local baseball lovers seem inclined to think that Colonel Ebbets and his gladiators are likely to annex that bunting, and they wanted to see them in action.

Cubs Tie Score in Fifth.

It turned out to be a good game to watch because after the visitors had rolled up a trio of runs in the first and fourth, the Cubs drew up level in the fifth and made a real fight for the honors of the afternoon. Cadore shut down on them, however, after that bit of turbulence, while the Robins drew away in the two final periods to win handily.

In the first inning Olson walked and Herzog threw out Johnston. Neis singled to left, scoring Olson, and reached second on Robertson's fumble. Wheat popped to Herzog. Myers doubled to right, scoring Neis. Koney went out, Herzog to Merkle.

The retaliation of the local gladiators was ineffective. Flack filed to Wheat, Terry filed to Neis. Robertson singled to centre. Kilduff made a good stop and threw out Merkle.

The second session was a quick one for both teams. For the visitors Deal threw out Kilduff, Terry threw out Miller and Cadore struck out. In the Cubs' half Paskert fanned, Deal walked and Herzog hit into a double play, Olson to Kilduff to Koney.

The third was a speedy inning also. The Robins went down one-two-three. Olson fanned, Johnston popped to Deal and Neis filed to Flack.

O'Farrell's Hit Is Wasted.

O'Farrell singled to centre to start Chicago's portion of the third. The blow was fruitless, however, as Vaughn fanned. Flack forced O'Farrell, Kilduff to Olson, and Terry filed to Neis.

In the fourth the Dodgers lengthened their lead to the extent of an additional counter, but it took three hits to turn the trick. Wheat singled to centre. Myers singled past second, Wheat stopping at second. Koney hit into a double play, Terry to Herzog to Merkle, Wheat going to third. Kilduff bounced a single off Vaughn's shins, scoring Wheat. Miller flied to Paskert.

The Superbas put up another little scrap, in the fifth, but failed to get anybody as far as the centre sack. Cadore filed to Robertson. Olson singled to right. Johnston forced Olson, Whitted, Terry to Johnston of died stealing, O'Farrell to Herzog.

Then came the Cubs' great and only splurge of the afternoon. They entered the fifth inning trailing by a margin of three runs. They blotted out this adverse handicap under a shower of hits and drew up on even terms with their guests.

To begin the rally Deal singled to centre. Herzog beat out a hit to Kilduff. O'Farrell singled to right, filling the bases. Cadore threw out Vaughn and Deal scored and the other runners advanced each one base. Flack grounded to Koney, Herzog holding third. Terry singled to left, scoring Herzog and O'Farrell. Terry was caught off first, Cadore to Koney.

Little Action in the Sixth.

The sixth was an unproductive inning. In the Robins' half Deal threw out Neis and Herzog threw out Wheat. Myers doubled to centre. Koney filed to Flack. The Cubs were even easier. Kilduff tossed out Robertson, Merkle went out the same way and Paskert popped to Olson.

The seventh was likewise a futile session as far as tallies were concerned. Herzog threw out Kilduff. Miller went out the same way. Herzog making a good stop behind second. Cadore filed to Paskert. In the home team's half Cadore tossed out Deal, Herzog popped to Kilduff and O'Farrell popped to Koney.

In the eighth the Robins coined from three more singles an additional run which proved to be the winning marker. Olson singled to left. Johnston sacrificed, Deal to Merkle. Neis singled to left, Olson stopping at third. Wheat bounced a hit over Deal's head, scoring Olson and Neis stopped at second. Myers hit into a double play, Deal to Herzog to Merkle.

The Cubs' effort at a comeback was a fizzle. Barbare batted for Vaughn and popped to Miller. Flack singled to centre. On the hit-and-run, Terry filed to Neis, whose throw to Koney doubled up Flack.

In the final session, with Bailey on the mound for Chicago, the Dodgers wound up their afternoon's performance by jazzing one more run over the platter. Koney struck out. Kilduff tripled to left centre and scored on Miller's sacrifice fly to Paskert. Cadore singled to centre. Olson forced Cadore, Herzog unassisted.

In the Cubs' half of the final session Robertson filed to Myers, Merkle filed to Neis, and Paskert popped to Olson.

Clothier, tennis champion of the United States fourteen years ago, renewed his youth today on the courts of the Meadow Club by winning a surprising victory over Watson M. Washburn at 6—1, 8—6, and thus reaching the semi-final round of the Southampton invitation tournament. The defeat of Ralph Burdick by Hugh Kelleher, 7—5, 6—0, was almost as big an upset, but the other two places were filled logically enough by Vincent Richards and Leonard Beekman, the former putting out D. P. Robinson, the Harvard star, while the latter disposed of Samuel Hardy in one-sided fashion, 6—1, 6—3.

Washburn was eliminated in the doubles also, losing in partnership with Arthur Yencken to G. C. Caner and Beekman. The other pairs to reach the semi-finals were Tilden and Garland, Burdick and Richards, Clothier and Dabney. Among the teams to make the greatest advance in the mixed doubles were Mrs. Deforest Candee and F. C. Baggs and Mrs. B. F. Briggs and Ralph Baggs.

The steadiness and resourcefulness of Clothier came as a relief to most of the spectators today, even though he had been displaying magnificent tennis in his earlier matches. He played Washburn altogether from deep court, and his peculiar drives, hit with a short swing from the elbow, proved a constant puzzle to the New Yorker. Shooting down the side lines with remarkable accuracy and carrying enough topspin to stay in court even when they seemed to be swinging on beyond the base line, Washburn could not cope with these shots when playing his usual backcourt game, and when he tried to come in close for volleying they forced him into even more disastrous errors.

Has Sense of Anticipation.

Clothier's wonderful sense of anticipation helped him appreciably in his persistent returning of the ball. He rarely seemed to make a real effort, and at the close of the match not a single well-brushed hair appeared massed. As soon as he had completed one shot, he moved quickly and easily into exactly the right position for the return, never hurrying, merely stretching his long legs for one or two steps and getting to the ball at just the right time to keep it in play.

Washburn, on the other hand, was distinctly below form, and his own errors contributed quite as much to his defeat as did the effective strokes of his opponent. He served eight double faults in the course of the match, a strange proceeding for him, seeming unable to keep his eye on the ball as he touched it up, and frequently hitting it with the rim of his racquet. While many of his ground strokes were adequate, he never was entirely sure of his direction, and when he came into the net most of his volleys were woefully weak.

It was distinctly not Washburn's day. His first four attempts at service were all faults, and as a result of this gift of 30 points he dropped the opening game. Clothier took the second, and in the third Washburn presented his rival with three more double faults, but managed to win after two calls of deuce. Clothier sent his lead to 3-1 and then broke through again, with the help of the sixth double fault of the set. His own service brought the games to 5-1, and still another break ended the set at 6—1, Washburn's errors being chiefly responsible.

Washburn's Service Faulty.

In the second session Washburn began to trust his fortunes more to volleying, and afte ra succession of splendid rallies he broke through for the opening game and seemed on the way to squaring the match. He failed to win on his own service, however, contributing his seventh double fault, and then netting a comparatively easy volley. Clothier led at 40—0 on his delivery, but Washburn picked up two points, only to volley out for the game. He was in the hole, but tied up the points in a great uphill fight, ending in an unplayable service.

Clothier, however, got the vantage point with an extraordinary recovery which was turned into a placement ace, and then passed his rival cleanly for the crucial game and a lead of 3—1. Washburn seemed to have saved the situation when he broke through in turn, Clothier just missing the lines on each side of the court for the deciding point. But the score mounted to 4—2 when Washburn's service lost again after he had misjudged a floater thatlanded well inside the base line and hit out twice. He made a similar mistake of judgment in the next game, crediting Clothier's shots with far less top-spin than they actually had.

Clothier now began to hit harder, with a growing confidence in his ability to finish the match, and his speed soon had Washburn on the run. Most of his drives went outside, however, to enable Washburn to tie up the count at 4—all. On his next service Clothier came to the net for the first time during the match, and a fine low volley across court accounted for the game that made it 5—4 in his favor.

Washburn Delays the End.

Washburn was within a point of defeat at 30—40 in the next, but saved himself with a great drive to the corner, volleying Clothier's amazing return safely, and eventually pulling out the game for a deuce set. When Washburn broke through in the next for a 6—5 lead, it looked like a three-set match, and his adherents began to breathe more easily. A fit of netting, however, lost this hard won advantage, and after tying it up again Clothier advanced to 7—6 on the service.

Washburn started his final service with two volleying errors, and then brought up the match point with his eighth double fault. The situation was not practically hopeless, and the agony was quickly ended when Washburn drove the ball outside, losing the set and match, 8—6.

Following are the point scores:

	FIRST S T.
Clothier	4	4	4	4	4	4	5	—26—6
Washburn	2	2	6	2	1	2	3	-18—1
	SECOND SET.
Clothier	1	4	4	6	3	4	1	4	3	2	4	4	4	—45—8
Washburn	4	1	2	4	6	1	4	4	2	5	4	2	0	—38—6

Kelleher's victory over Burdick was earned by superior steadiness, but it must be admitted that the Westerner showed little of the tennis of which he is capable. It was an even match throughout the first set, with Burdick's errors at crucial moments helping his opponent to pull out at 7-5. But in the second session the loser went all to pieces, throwing away point after point, while Kelleher steadied more and more, and ket adding to the speed of his game as his confidence increased. The match was over in a surprisingly short time at 6—0.

Hardy Is Outclassed.

Beekman gave Hardy no chance to get started in their early morning match, going through him for a 6—1 opener and leading at 5—1 in the second set before the veteran got real control of his shots. Then Hardy broke through Beekman's service and won his own, threatening a pull-up of the kind which recently saved his match against R. S. Parker. But the Princetonian, with visions of that turn of the tables, put on extra steam in the next game and succeeded in putting the victory to his credit at 6—3.

Harold Goodsall and Richard Hinckley, the Western youngsters, gave Tilden and Garland a great battle in the feature doubles match of the afternoon, carrying them to 9—7 in the opening set, and earning plenty of applause by their hard and confident hitting. Goodsall was the star for his side and held his own even with the brilliant shorts of Tilden. The internationalists, however, showed their experience in the second set, taking the match by a count of 6—2.

Tilden later played Garland two sets of exhibition singles, winning easily, 6—2, 6—4, and finished the day with a few games against Arnold Jones, the boy champion.

The mixed doubles play of the afternoon had as its leading features a spectacular victory over Mr. and Mrs. Robert Leroy by Mrs. de Forest Candee and Fred C. Baggs, with Mrs. B. F. Briggs also showing some great tennis with Ralph Baggs as a partner in a three-set triumph over Miss Lord and Donald Keresey.

MRS. MALLORY PLAYS WELL.

Special to The New York Times.

GLEN COVE, L. I., Aug. 26.—Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, playing in her first American tennis tournament since her trip to England, today reached the final round of the women's invitation singles at the Nassau Country Club, and will meet Miss Eleanor Tennant in what should prove a stirring east-west match on Saturday.

Miss Tennant won her bracket by a three-set victory over her fellow-Californian, Miss Helen Baker, score 3—6, 6—3, 6—1, while Mrs. Mallory eliminated another Pacific Coast player, Mrs. Ream Leachman, without the loss of a game. The former national champion was hitting as well as at any time during her career, and is a favorite over Miss Tennant for first honors.

Mrs. Mallory, in partnership with Miss Phyllis Walsh, also reached the semi-finals of the doubles event, defeating Miss Caroma Winn and Miss Gertrude Della Torre in straight sets, 6—2, 6—4.

Miss Marie Wagner and Miss Clare Cassel, the New York State champions, eliminated Mrs. Leachman and Mrs. E. V. Lynch in the second round of the doubles in two close sets scored 6—4, 8—6.

HUTCHISON IS CHALLENGED.

Edgar Wants to Play P. G. A. Champion Special Match for Side Bet.

In all likelihood golfers of the metropolitan district will witness two or three sensationally important matches between professionals before the Winter sets in. Whereas the regular professional schedule is ended in this neighborhood and for that matter completed on this side of the Atlantic except for the Canadian open this week at Ottawa and the Southern open next month at Atlanta, there is a significant seriousness in several red-not challenges that have been hurled between some of the leading paid cleek swingers.

All golfers will remember last Saturday's final for the P. G. A. title at Flossmoor. It will be hard to forget the great match which Jock Hutchison won from J. Douglas Edgar by 1 up. Now, then, Edgar was so dissatisfied with his turn of luck, or whatever else he blamed for his defeat, that he has boldly defied the Scot comedian for a specially arranged match—in fact, two matches. He has offered to play Jock twice on neutral courses and has announced a preference for the metropolitan district. He has offered to put up a side bet of several thousand dollars or $1,000, according to Hutchison's financial condition at the time, and he wants to play either two eighteen-hole affairs or two of thirty-six holes.

Edgar, holder of the Canadian open, which he is defending this week, was a surprised, not to say chagrined, golfer last Saturday when he found himself the runner-up and not the winner in the big professional championship. He had been a favorite with Easterners, and such a headliner as George McLean of Great Neck insisted on caddying for him in the big tussle. Edgar figured this way, in common with many others: He had qualified regularly enough, whereas Jock Hutchison had failed to gain entrance to the Middle Western quota and played only as a result of Arthur Clarkson's withdrawal, which opened a place for him unexpectedly. To lose to him under such circumstances was more than Edgar could relish. Hence the challenge, which, it is understood, Jock has practically accepted. Tentative plans call for the meeting either next month, before the Southern open, or in October.

Another challenge and acceptance have been exchanged between Pat Doyle of Deal and Jim Donaldson of Norwood, which match is due to be played in the near future. This also is for a side bet of $1,000.

WOMEN REACH SEMI-FINAL.

Miss Burns Eliminated in Western Golf Tourney.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—In the third round of match play in the women's Western golf championship tournament today Miss Elizabeth Klotz of Indian Hill, the Chicago champion, defeated Miss Marion Burns of Kansas City by 1 up. With Miss Burns 3 up and 4 to play, Miss Klotz won the last four holes in easy style.

Miss Edith Cummings, Onwentsia, defeated Miss Frances Hadfield of Milwaukee, the Wisconsin champion, by 2 and 1. Mrs. Melvin Jones, Glen Oak, medalist in this tourney, defeated Mrs. J. W. Douglas, Evanston, 2 and 1. Mrs. F. C. Letts, Jr., Onwentsia, twice former champion, defeated Miss Dorian Kavanaugh, Chicago Golf, 3 and 3.

The pairings for the semi-finals tomorrow follow: Miss Klotz vs. Miss Cummings, Mrs. Letts vs. Mrs. Jones.

Atlanta Golfer Sixth in First Day of Dominion's Open Tourney.

OTTAWA, Aug. 26.—George Ayton of Regina, Sask., won the first day's honors in the annual open championship tournament of the Royal Canadian Golf Association, held on the Rivermead links today, with a card of 147 for the two rounds of eighteen-hole medal play. He finished two over T. D. Armour, the Edinburgh amateur, and Nical Thompson of the Hamilton Golf Club. Charles Murray, Royal Montreal Golf Club, and Stanley Thompson, Toronto, tied for the next positions with 150.

J. Douglas Edgar of Atlanta, Ga., Canadian open champion, was sixth with 151, being tied with N. A. Belu and George Cummings of Toronto.

The third round of eighteen holes takes place tomorrow morning and the fourth in the afternoon.

American Fails in Attempt To Swim English Channel.

DOVER, England, Aug. 26.—Another attempt by Henry Sullivan of Lowell, Mass., to swim the English Channel from Dover to Calais has ended in failure. Sullivan started on the swim last night at 8:40 o'clock and was in the water for eighteen hours. Owing to the rough sea he was forced then to abandon his attempt when only three miles off the French coast. In 1913 Sullivan swam to within six miles of France, starting from Dover.

NEW RECORD IS SET BY MISS BLEIBTREY

OTHERS REACH THE FINAL

ANTWERP, Aug. 26.—American women swimmers gave another extraordinary exhibition of their prowess and superiority in the Olympic contests here this afternoon. In all three preliminary heats of the 300-meter race they took first places easily, and in one heat where two American women were competing they took first and second places.

In her heat Miss Ethelda Bleibtrey, who yesterday broke the world's record in the 100-meter race, which she herself had made the day before, repeated the performance, covering the distance in 4 minutes 41 2-5 seconds, an improvement of 1 3-5 seconds over the record made by Miss Durack of Australia at Stockholm in 1912. Winners in the other heats were M. Woodbridge and E. Uhl, with F. Schrots second.

Miss Bleibtrey, who is one of the most consistent record breakers of the games, was by no means doing her best and in the finals it is exceedingly likely that she may knock some more seconds off her own record.

In the preliminaries of the 400-meter men's race Norman Ross had a walkover. Other Americans to qualify for the semi-final were W. Harris, F. K. Kahele and L. Langer. In the 200-meter breast stroke elimination heats W. Howell and Dermotte qualified with first and second places.

So far the day had been one of successive American victories, but the British had their revenge in the water polo semi-final, in which they won 7 to 2. Both in marking and passing the British showed unmistakable superiority. Of the conduct of the game the least said, the better. The referee equalized things by putting ashore two men from each team.

Americans Do Well.

ANTWERP, Aug. 26 (The Associated Press).—Miss Ethelda Bleibtrey of the Women's Swimming Association, New York, set a new Olympic record at the Olympic Games today in swimming a trial heat of the 300-meter, free stroke, event in 4 minutes 41 2-5 seconds. The former record for the event was 4 minutes 43 seconds, established by Miss Fanny Durack of Australia at Stockholm in 1912.

Miss Bleibtrey's record performance was the climax of a day of trial heats in swimming and diving, in which Americans qualified prominently. Four of the entrants from the United States won their way to the finals in the men's 400-meter free style swimming, two qualified in the 200-meter breast stroke and three went into the semi-finals of the springboard diving trials.

Besides Miss Bleibtrey, Margaret Woodbridge, Detroit A. C., and Eleanor Uhl of Philadelphia won their respective heats in the 300-meter free stroke, and Frances Cowells Schroth of San Francisco captured a second place.

In the men's 400-meter free stroke, F. K. Kahele, United States Navy, and Ludy Langer, Honolulu, qualified in the fourth and fifth heats, which were won by the Canadian Vernot and Lansar respectively.

Norman Ross, Illinois A. C., and W. W. Harris, Jr., Honolulu, also won their heats in the 400-meter free style swimming trials and qualified for the final.

M. J. McDermott, U. S. Navy, and J. Howell, Oakland, Cal., qualified in the trials of the 200-meter breast stroke.

Win Heats in Diving Trials.

In the springboard diving trials, L. E. Kuehn, Multnomah A. A. C., Portland, and L. J. Balbach, New York A. C., won first and second places, respectively, in their heats, with Ekstrand, Sweden, third. The second heat was won by Blomgren, Sweden, with C. Pinkston, Olympic Club, San Francisco, second, and Janison, Sweden, third. All winners of the first three places qualified for the semi-finals. Wellisch, of Brazil, who finished fourth in the second heat, did not qualify.

American wrestlers in the lightweight class were eliminated in the preliminary catch-as-catch-can bouts last night when Svensson of Sweden defeated George Metropoules of Gary, Ind., in the trial round and Antilla of Finland, beat J. Shimmon, New York A. C., in the quarter-finals. The Americans, however, qualified their full quota of two men in each of the other classes.

In the other bouts the results were as follows: Featherweights—C. D. Ackery, Cornell University, beat Dialetes of Greece and S. N. Gerson, University of Pennsylvania, defeated Makinson of England; middleweights — MacDonald, American, beat Lopponen of Canada; light heavyweights, Walter S. Maurer of Chicago, beat Iladrau of France, and Lieutenant J. R. Redmond, U. S. Navy, defeated Wilson of England; heavyweights—N. Pendleton, New York A. C., beat Salida of Finland and F. J. Meyer, Chicago H. I., defeated Mason of England.

Two Americans Qualify.

In the quarter finals Gerson and Ackery won their bouts in the featherweight class, the former defeating Barathou of France and the latter downing Kaiser of Switzerland.

The final standing in the gymnastic team competition, European method, was: Italy first with 359.855 out of a possible 404 points, Belgium second with 346.785 and France third with 340.10.

The individual standing was: Zomposi, Italy, first with 88.35 out of a possible 90 points; Marcos, France, second with 87.62; Garnier, France, third with 87.45. Frank J. Kriz, Bohemian Gymnastic Association, New York, was placed tenth.

England defeated the United States in the water polo semi-finals today, 7 to 2. Second and third honors in the water polo competition are to be decided between the Brazilian team and a competitor chosen in drawings tonight.

In today's game the English team had easy going most of the way. The Englishmen excelled in teamwork and goal shooting, but the Americans kept down the score by good defense.

English Getting Ready for United States Olympic Team.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—The International Athletic meeting at the Queens Club on Saturday of next week, when the United States team will meet the British Empire team, is causing great interest here. The meeting, which has arisen out of the Olympic games, is being promoted by the Achilles Club, which was a New Oxford and Cambridge Athletic Club when Yale and Harvard came over in 1911.

The event is not an official meeting, P. J. Baker, the well known English runner, explained today. "We got on very well indeed with the Americans at Antwerp," he said. "We found them very good sportsmen and very good fellows and we want to give them a thoroughly good time here."

Denies That Belmont Park Track Is in Bad Condition

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 26.—There seems to be no truth in the rumors that the Belmont Park race track is not in fit condition to race over. A letter from A. J. Joyner to his friend, T. J. Healy, received this morning, states that Superintendent Pels has had a force of twenty men picking stones from the course and that the main track, chute and yearling tracks were never better than they are at the present time. This will be welcome news to horsemen in general, who had been led to believe that the track at Belmont Park had become hard. Trainers will no doubt ship directly to that course, as they had planned before the appearance of the rumor that the course was not at its best.

ENGLISH ATHLETES FIGHT WITHDRAWAL

Olympic Team Protests Against Movement for Britain Not to Compete Again.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—The entire British Olympic team has jointly written a letter to The London Times protesting vigorously against the movement in England favoring the withdrawal of Great Britain from future Olympic meets. The letter declares that, contrary to the statements of Sir Theodore Cook, member of the British Olympic Council, and others, not a single example of bad sportsmanship or ill-feeling resulted from the present Olympic games nor in the last international gathering at Stockholm.

"These contests," says the letter, "were run in a spirit of fairness and good sportsmanship equal to the highest standards of British tradition, and, so far as bad feeling being engendered, we have been the witnesses of most general international cameraderie and goodfellowship among the individual athletes and teams competing.

"The withdrawal of Great Britain would not be understood by any other nation. But, if, instead of withdrawing, we do our best to make participation a truly national effort, we are convinced that Great Britain may co much not only to advance sports throughout the world but also to promote good feeling among all peoples."

OLYMPIC CREWS PRACTICE.

ANTWERP, Aug. 26 (Associated Press.)—Oarsmen of fifteen nations had their final practice today on the Grand Canal in the outskirts of Brussels in preparation for the initial heats of the Olympic three-day regatta beginning tomorrow. A navy launch was brought up to Antwerp from the cruiser Frederick as judges' boat through the courtesy of the American navy officers.

The American middies' eight is a slight favorite over the English Leander crew for the big event. Norway is first choice for the four-oared shell, the French pair is favored for the doubles without coxswain and the Italian pair for the doubles with coxswain.

Jack Kelly of the Vesper Boat Club, Philadelphia, is a strong choice in the singles, although he will be opposed by the winner of the Henley Diamond sculls and several other of the best European scullers.

The closest race of all, it is expected, will be between the American middies and the Leanders. It will take place Sunday, if both come through to the finals, as it is believed they will. Both eights guard their time trials carefully, but it is known that the Leanders covered 1,000 meters late yesterday in 2 minutes 58 seconds. The best the middies have done over the course is 3 minutes and a fraction. American entries will row in the same order as they did in the Olympic trials at Worcester.

All the Americans are in perfect condition except Jacomini, bow of the Middy eight, who tore his hand on a nail, but rowed today without complaint.

The Canadian four, who are here under the care of Joe Wright, the Pennsylvania coach, found their missing shell late this afternoon and thus were able to take their initial practice at twilight. This was their first practice in two weeks. They have been here a week hunting for their shell.

Guy Nickalls, former coach of Pennsylvania, has a son rowing in the Leander eight, which he predicts will beat the Middies, but the opinion is not shared by expert Belgian rowing authorities.

American oarsmen are well placed in the preliminary heats of the regatta as a result of the drawings which took place yesterday. The English eight-oared crew and the Canadian four are considered the most dangerous rivals of the American sweep swingers, but they will not meet in any event before the semi-finals on Saturday.

The preliminary heats in the single sculls will be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. England, Switzerland and Czechoslovakia will meet in the first; Italy, Belgium and Holland in the second; America and Sweden in the third and New Zealand and Denmark in the fourth. The winners in each heat will row in the semi-finals Saturday afternoon, and the final heat will start Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

The pair-oared crews, without coxswains, will row Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, Brazil, America and Holland meeting in the first heat, Belgium and Italy in the second and Switzerland and France in the third. The winners of the three heats will meet in the finals Sunday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. The pair-oared crews, with coxswains, row Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock, Italy and Belgium being drawn for the first heat, America and France for the second and Switzerland and Brazil for the third. The three winners will meet Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

Sweden, Canada and Switzerland are drawn in the first heat for four-oared shells, which will be rowed Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Norway, France and Belgium will meet in the second, and Brazil, America and Czechoslovakia in the third. The three winners will meet in the final at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

The preliminaries for the eight-oared crews will be held Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock, Norway and Czechoslovakia meeting in the first; Switzerland and England in the second, America and Belgium in the third, and France and Holland in the fourth. Winners in these heats will meet the semi-finals Saturday afternoon, and the final heat will be rowed late on Sunday afternoon.

ST. LOUIS ELEVEN LOSES.

Stockholm Defeats American Football Team by 3 to 1 Score.

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 26.—The Stockholm football team defeated the St. Louis aggregation visiting this country by a score of 3 to 1 here yesterday. The American forwards lost many opportunities to score, and all the breaks of the game went to the victors. Marre scored the only goal made by the St. Louis team.

YACHTS START ON CRUISE.

Bayside Club's Fleet Begins Annual Four-Day Run Up Sound.

Headed by Commodore William C. Poertner's flagship, the Liberty, the fleet of the Bayside Yacht Club started on the annual four-day cruise up the Sound at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Early last evening the fleet put in at the Manhasset Bay Yacht Club at Port Washington. It was the first cruise of the club since 1916, the fixture having been discontinued through the war.

HURON HANDICAP IS WON BY CLEOPATRA

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 26.—The Huron Handicap, a race at a mile and three-sixteenths, which has been won by some of the best of the turf stars, was an easy addition today to the laurels of W. R. Coe's Cleopatra, which once more proved that over a long journey she is one of the very best of the season's three-year-olds. This filly not only won easily by three lengths, but equaled the track record for the distance, 1:56, which was made by Cudgel in 1918.

Cleopatra was so much the best of the field of seven starters for the $3,000 purse that she fairly galloped the final furlong to beat A. H. Diaz's Blue Wrack, with Ral Parr's Blazes third. The filly was able to take command when her rider was ready at the head of the stretch and draw away at will, despite the fact that Blue Wrack ran a much improved race and was put under a hard drive in an effort to race with the winner.

The surprise of this race was the dull showing of the Glen Riddle Farm's Dinna Care, which but recently took the measure of such horses as Donnacona, Dr. Clark and Busy Signal and which today ran a bad last and was never a contender at any stage of the journey. Dinna Care had given the impression that he was a high-class colt and he was accordingly well supported today, though Cleopatra was at all times favorite.

Winner Well Up All the Way.

Cleopatra showed more early speed than usual and did not have to come from far back to gain the lead. McAtee kept her in the front ranks in the run through the back stretch while Blazes was setting the pace. Blue Wrack was at the heels of the leader and Cleopatra so close that the horses were practically grouped.

Blazes, which has shown that he is purely a sprinter, used up his speed in less than a mile, but held on gamely. McAtee waited until he was making the turn into the stretch to go up with Cleopatra and when he got ready the race was settled in a hurry. The filly was ready to run when the others were tired and she drew away so easily that McAtee was looking back at Blue Wrack and smiling as the latter tried desperately but vainly to keep up in the stretch drive. Blue Wrack finished with speed enough to hold second easily against Blazes, which was a tired horse at the end.

Dinna Care had little chance after the first furlong when Schuttinger allowed him to drop far out of it. The jockey did make an effort to come around on the outside at the far turn, but he had trailed so far behind the pacemaker that the distance was too much to make up and the effort of getting up was told on Dinna Care that he died out to a whisper in the stretch and finished a bad last.

Burden Too Great for Milkmaid.

Commander J. K. L. Ross's Milkmaid was again asked to carry so big an impost that she was unable to get home in front with it and was consequently defeated in the second race at a mile in which she gave away much weight to fillies and mares. The race went to John Sanford's Aiphee, which led all the way and lasted in a hard drive to beat the Ross filly by a length. Lunetta a third and among the seven which faced the barrier.

Milkmaid carried 128 pounds against 108 for Aiphee and found that the difference was too great. Aiphee got away quickly and taking the lead held it all the way to the finish. Milkmaid was three quarters in the backstretch and could not get through until the horses rounded the turn. When she found an opening she moved up with her usual courage and gave the winner a battle all the way to the end.

The day opened with the victory of a long shot when J. Bosoris stable's Chimera got home in front at 50 to 1 in a field of fifteen maidens, three years old and upward, at six furlongs.

James Fitzsimmons, who trained the winner, was the most surprised man on the race track, as he had not considered his horse good enough to be a contender even among such a poor lot.

The summaries:

To See Whether Defiance Of Ajax Is Only a Bluff

William A. Gavin, leader in the affairs of the International Sporting Club, now indulging in surcease of toil at Deal Beach, retains even through his vacation days interest in things fistic. Rumors of a coming bout not yet heralded in the public prints seem to have reached his alert ears, for he has just sent to Major A. J. Drexel Biddle, one of the judges named for coming bouts at Madison Square Garden, the following telegram: "Reported here that you and Rickard have signed up Ajax and the lightning. Think you should at least have left this bout for us, as it is an open-air show." It is supposed that if Mr. Gavin can induce the Garden group to relinquish this match to the International Sporting Club it will be staged as a preliminary to the Carpentier-Levinsky battle at Ebbets Field on Columbus Day.

MITTON IS LEADING GUNNER AT TRAPS

CLEVELAND, Aug. 26.—For the third time in as many days the outstanding event of today's program of the Grand American Handicap Trapshooting Tournament here resulted in even targets, three marksmen being tied with 99 out of a possible 100.

With 596 expert trapshooters, the class of this country and Canada, participating in the preliminary handicap of 100 targets at 16 to 23 yards, H. K. Mitton, of Fort Collins, Colorado; C. A. Rice of Erie, Pa., and U. R. Pence of Minot, N. D., were tied with scores of 99 each.

Mitton won the event in the shootoff by breaking 25 targets without a miss, while Rice failed on his twenty-fourth and Pence missed on his seventh and twelfth.

Shooting from 23 yards, Frank S. Wright, of Buffalo, Olympic team star, was able to break but 89 targets. Mark Arle, the Champaign, Ill., crack shot, shooting from the same distance, broke 90 birds, while Frank Troeh, of Vancouver, generally considered one of America's greatest marksmen, was but slightly better with 92.

Conditions today were favorable to high scores. The waters of Lake Erie afforded a fine background for the clay pigeons and there was only a slight breeze.

DIRECTUM J. PACES FAST.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Aug. 26.—Directum J paced the second fastest mile of the year at the Grand Circuit meeting here today and equalled his own record, made at the Lexington meeting in 1918, when he took the first heat of the free-for-all pace at the Detroit River Driving Park in 2:01¼. The second quarter was timed in 29¾ seconds and the half in a minute flat. He also took the second heat in 2:02¾. Sanardo and Direct C Burnett alternating in second and third places.

Nelson Dillon won the Breeders' Club sweepstakes for two-year-old trotters, with Jane Volo as her only serious rival. The race carried $2,680, the second richest purse of the week. Lady Mozart was a straight heat victor in the Breeders' Club sweepstakes for three-year-old trotters.

Geers won a four-heat victory in the 2:13 trot, taking the deciding mile from J. J. A. after Tara's Hall, the other heat winner, had been drawn on account of lameness.

GROCERS' PRESIDENT HITS PALMER AIDS

McLaurin Accuses Department of Justice of Inaccurate Statements About Sugar.

TELLS OF AID BY DEALERS

J. H. McLaurin, President of the Southern Wholesale Grocers' Association, last night made public a detailed report of the sugar situation, in which he attacked the Department of Justice for "many inaccurate and misleading statements" issued in connection with its investigation of profiteering.

Mr. McLaurin referred to newspaper reports quoting John B. Floyd, Assistant Attorney General, as stating that a sugar shortage would keep prices up, and Robert T. Scott, another Assistant Attorney General, as stating that the department forecast a tumble in sugar prices.

"It will be seen that the Attorney General's offices in Washington and New York seem to be at odds," said Mr. McLaurin. The statement given out by Mr. Floyd is the result of a conference called by him of the New York refiners to meet the undersigned as President of the Southern Wholesale Grocers' Association, and at that meeting the Attorney General was represented by Mr. Floyd, who, in substance, made the statement credited to him in the newspapers.

"The statement of Mr. Scott that the Department of Justice is concerned only with profiteering is not in line with the facts. In April, when there was a decided increase in the price of raw sugars and the market was steadily climbing, when sugar was not obtainable and violent demands were made from all over the country to be supplied, when there was an acute shortage and it looked as if the American people would have to go without sugar, the refiners met in Washington with a representative of the Attorney General who had charge of the Food Administration's functions especially in relation to sugar, and it was at his earnest request and solicitation as representing the Department of Justice that the refiners met and conferred with him in the hope of solving the problem of taking some measures to relieve the situation and of moving Heaven and earth to get sugar for the American public.

"At the earnest solicitation of the Department of Justice that it was the patriotic duty of the refiners to help, they were urged to go out and buy, if possible, the remaining Cuban crop unsold and insure its coming to this country, no matter what the price.

"In other respects the Attorney General's office asked that the refiners and wholesalers co-operate, especially to prevent resales within the trade in order that the sugar might reach the consumer in as direct a line as possible and to prevent profiteering. The refiners and wholesalers agreed and were commended by the Attorney General's office for their co-operation. They purchased raw sugars at high prices; they based their sales price of refined sugar on the price at which they purchased the raw sugar, and they made their contracts in good faith with the wholesalers and jobbers throughout the country and the latter bought the same in good faith to supply the great demand.

"These wholesale food distributers for the most part complied with the demands of the Department of Justice that this sugar be resold by them at 1 per cent. per pound profit, and this ruling of the Department of Justice was enforced in violation of every economic principle of sound merchandising.

"Is there to be no differentiation between the honest wholesaler and jobber and the dishonest speculator and profiteer? Is the Department of Justice desirous only of bringing down the price of sugar, no matter who is ruined thereby and no matter how unjust it is?"

NEW DEVICE TO ENABLE 150,000 TO HEAR COX

To enable Governor Cox's voice to carry his speech to the ears of all in the great outdoor audience that is expected to greet him tomorrow afternoon at the police games on the Gravesend Race Track, Brooklyn, a combination of telemegaphones known as the "Magnavox" has been installed in the speaker's stand, similar to the installation used by President Wilson in September, 1919, when he discussed the League of Nations to an outdoor throng of 45,000 persons at San Diego, Cal. It is predicted that Governor Cox will have a record crowd, estimated at 150,000 persons, and easily the largest number ever assembled to hear a public speaker.

The sound-amplifier was tested yesterday by members of the Police Games Committee and was found to work satisfactorily. Groups of listeners were placed at varied intervals in the field, stands and on the track, about 600 feet each from the transmitter, and all heard distinctly the voices of the speakers, who talked in ordinary tones. Michael R. Brennan, Superintendent of Telegraph of the Police Department, who supervised the installation, said:

"Spectators to a distance of at least 600 feet, or about three short city blocks, from the reviewing stand where Governor Cox will speak, should hear him clearly, according to the tests we made today."

The Democratic Presidential candidate has spoken with the telemegaphone to smaller crowds and he is now expert at it, and with his usual clear enunciation his words ought to reach the crowd at all points, no matter how big it may be.

At the place on the stand where the Governor will deliver his address an open-work booth, waist high, with a railing on the top, has been erected to define the limits in which he may move so that his voice may be caught at all times by the sensitive telephone transmitter just above his head and carried by it to five telemegaphones on top of supports extending from the booth. These loud-speaking telephones resemble somewhat the ordinary hand-megaphones. They will amplify his voice by transmission in five different directions and over a wide radius.

A standing reading desk, like a skeleton pulpit, will be provided for the Governor within the railed enclosure, on which he may place his notes or manuscript. This stand is near the rail of the old race track, with the big grand stand to the rear, and is so arranged that it will be as near the centre as possible of the vast throng of seated and standing spectators.

Actor Gets 30 Months for Burglary.

Walter Gridley, 36, who told the court he was an actor, of 413 West Thirty-fourth Street, was sentenced by Judge McIntyre in General Session yesterday to thirty months in prison for burglary. Gridley, who was caught by a policeman in the store of Von Lengerke & Detmold, at 200 Fifth Avenue, pleaded guilty to attempted burglary in the third degree. It was charged he attempted to steal a camera, binoculars and a pocket knife.

Monroe
Two Pants Suits
Not Only Double Clothing Wear
But Clothing Convenience!,
* * * *

A suit with two pairs of pants will last twice as long as a suit with one pair—that's logical. For ordinarily the trousers of your suit will wear out long before the coat; you discard the coat and buy a new suit, though the coat is still in splendid condition.

We want you to get the maximum wear out of your clothes—and for that reason we built and are selling a Monroe Clothes all wool, silk sewn suit with two pairs of pants for $40! And these smart, durable two pants Fall Monroe models have simply taken New York by storm.

They should! Not only do they give you 100% greater wear, but they double your clothing comfort and convenience. Suppose tonight, for example, you have an after dinner engagement. On the way home from work you get caught in the rain. An umbrella will protect your coat but the rain will take the crease out of your trousers. What's the result? You make your engagement in an older suit, uneasy in mind and self conscious.

But if you own one of these two pants suits you simply change your trousers! If you should spot or accidentally tear one pair the same convenience.

Anyway you measure these wonderful two pants suits they save your money. And the beauty of it is they cost but $40. Why elsewhere they're asking the same price for a suit of equal or lesser clothing quality and giving you but one pair of trousers!

You want one of these two pants Monroe Suits. Your logic and common sense tell you so. Come UP and get it today—September will soon be here.

PALISADES VICTIM WAS A BRONX WIFE

$550 CASH, $900 RINGS GONE

WATCH CHAIN, SLAYER CLUE

The murdered girl whose body was found Wednesday hidden in the woods of Grantwood, N. J., near the Palisades Amusement Park, was identified yesterday as Mrs. Blanche Schultz, not quite twenty years old, wife of Frank Schultz, a former New York railway conductor of 435 East 135th Street, the Bronx.

Mrs. Schultz, once a burlesque actress and chorus girl, had been missing since last Saturday and the murder is believed to have been committed on that day.

The motive, according to her husband, must have been robbery, since she left home with $550 in cash and rings valued at $900, all of which had disappeared when her body was found.

Schultz, with a friend, Edward Faulkner, of 453 East 161st Street, was taken to Hackensack by Bergen County authorities last night. The two were arraigned at once before Justice Cummings in the Bergen County Court and held without bail as material witnesses. Schultz was examined many hours and Faulkner briefly by Bronx and Bergen County officials. They frankly were dissatisfied with Schultz's account of his wanderings in search of his wife, but they have laid no accusation against him and admit there is nothing thus far to connect either him or Faulkner with the crime.

Admits Quarrels with Wife.

In all likelihood, after the stories of Schultz and Faulkner are checked more carefully today, the search will be directed more widely afield and several young men who have been companions of the dead girl will be questioned as soon as they can be found. The husband has admitted that he had quarreled several times with his wife over her association with other men and has stated that on at least one occasion her friendships led her to desert her home and her husband for a brief period.

Gruesome as was the tragedy which the authorities were hopeful last night of having stripped of all its mystery within twenty-four hours, it was marked by one incident of real romance. Publication, through an erroneous announcement of the New Jersey authorities, that the body had been identified as that of Helen Hermas, a manicure of 108 East 105th Street, who had left the home of her mother, Mrs. Marie Hermas, several days ago in company with her fiance, to whom her mother objected because he was an Italian, precipitated Miss Hermas's marriage to the Italian, Nicola Rintrona of 128 Thompson Street. The marriage was preceded by a reconciliation between the young couple and the mother.

Body Is Identified.

Identification of the body in a Hackensack morgue was made by Schultz early yesterday morning after he had been directed there from the Alexander Avenue Police Station in the Bronx, whither he went after reading a description of the victim's clothing in Wednesday afternoon's newspapers. The young man had reported his wife's disappearance there on Monday, and at Schultz's request a confidential alarm had been sent out for her, and Detective Waterhouse of the Bureau of Missing Persons at headquarters had been assigned to the search.

Schultz did not look at the body, but was certain it was that of his wife after he had examined the clothing, and others had verified his description of dental work, a mole on the back and a slight deformity of one foot. Later Otto Widmer of Keyport, N. J., who married a sister of the dead woman, corroborated the identification, and then Mr. and Mrs. Louis Frier of 169th Street and Third Avenue, the girl's parents, who come from near Poughkeepsie, where she was raised, went to Hackensack and made the identity a certainty.

Two Prosecutors Interested in Case.

Schultz was accompanied by four men when he visited the morgue. He was allowed to return to Manhattan with them, but Nathan H. Allyn, a Bergen County detective, started after him as soon as Assistant Prosecutor Charles J. McCarthy learned of his visit.

Meantime District Attorney Martin of the Bronx, apprised of the identification, became interested in the case, and sent two men to bring the husband to him. Martin already had heard of Schultz as as "Beansy" Schultz, much given to gambling, and lucky at it, who was shot in some sort of brawl three years ago and refused to name his assailant and who is a brother of "Fat" Schultz, killed by a Bronx saloonkeeper in self defense seven or eight years ago, and who has been arrested more than once in gambling raids. Shultz had been a "bouncer" in Miner's Theatre and other places, and was known among the easy-going fraternity of the lower Bronx as something of a "pug."

The husband was found emerging from the undertaking rooms of John J. Rantsch of 3,311 Third Avenue, where he had made arrangements to have his wife's body brought to Manhattan and buried tomorrow in St. Michael's Cemetery in Astoria. This arrangement was held in abeyance because of the refusal of the authorities to consent to it until their investigations are a little more advanced.

Schultz's Story to the Officers.

Questioned by District Attorney Martin, Assistant District Attorney Charles J. McLaughlin and several detectives in the morning and by those men, reinforced by Mr. McCarthy and Sheriff Joseph Kinsley of Bergen County, in the afternoon, Schultz told a story that ran about like this:

He married Blanche Frier three and a half years ago, when she was just over 16 years old. In the main they lived together amiably and he kept her fairly well supplied with money, some of which he earned and some of which he won. After a time she formed several friendships which met with his disapproval. One of them was with a man in the automobile business whose name the police withheld. Another was "in business at Seventh Avenue and Forty-fourth Street." With one of these men she absented herself some time.

There was a reconciliation with her husband, but the domestic waters were roughened again when she decided to go to Cuba. Schultz consented and matters had proceeded as far as the procuring of a passport when he learned that he was not to be included in the party. That led to another quarrel, but Mrs. Schultz stayed at home.

Coming to events immediately preceding the tragedy, he said he and his wife were planning to spend their vacation with the Widmers at Keyport. He was vague as to just how she became possessed of the $550, but in a general way represented it to be part savings and part winnings, $250 of it having been drawn recently from a postal savings bank.

Schultz came home, he said, early Saturday morning after playing fan tan at the Loring Club in St. Ann's Avenue. His wife was in bed. He did not awaken until noon. Blanche was gone, but had left a note telling him to have his clothes pressed and be ready for the journey. He dressed and when he awakened again his wife had torn up the note and left.

After some hours he became uneasy and induced Frank Ritt, a chauffeur of his acquaintance, who lives in St. Ann's Avenue, near 156th Street, to drive him to the places frequented by his wife. The hunt was vain and he decided to go to Jersey, thinking maybe Mrs. Schultz had gone to her relatives without him. He picked up Faulkner for company and Ritt drove them to the ferry at Forty-second Street and the Hudson River. From the Jersey shore they took the 11:01 train—a minute after midnight Sunday morning by New York time—for Keyport.

Schultz's story after that was somewhat confused. In Keyport, where they arrived about 2 o'clock in the morning, he heard a woman scream and asked if it was his wife. A man who recognized him told him no, it was his own sister, whose son had just died. After a time he went to the Widmer house, asked for Blanche and learned that her sister was similarly curious as to her whereabouts.

He left at once and he and Faulkner walked to Matawan, ten miles away, hoping to catch a main line train. There was none, and they went to sleep on the station platform, only to be disturbed by a negro porter. Early in the morning they got back to New York. Schultz searched several more hours, then reported his wife's disappearance.

Faulkner's tale, according to District Attorney Martin, differed in some particulars from Schultz's, and Schultz's own was occasionally vague and contradictory, though that might well have been accounted for in a young man of not very precise habits laboring under strong emotion.

Women's Male Associates Sought.

Ritt was released last night after the three men, segregated in separate rooms, had undergone an interlocking examination. Faulkner and Schultz consented to go to Hackensack without extradition proceedings.

Widmer, who early in the day had gone to Acting Chief Leonard of the Jersey City police, under the misapprehension that they had jurisdiction, and had communicated some sort of suspicion of his brother-in-law, refused last night to repeat the suspicion to the Bergen County police or those of Cliffside Borough.

The police hope that a number of former associates of the dead woman, particularly the one with whom she left home nine months ago, will report themselves this morning as soon as they know that it is desired to learn if they can enlighten the authorities. They believe these men must be eliminated before much more progress can be made in the investigation.

If they are eliminated, every effort will be made to build a plausible theory as to how the young woman got to the spot where she was murdered. Schultz said she had a "hankering" after Palisades Park and often wanted him to take her there. The police may assume as a working hypothesis that she went to the park alone, met some stranger and was induced by him to go to the secluded spot where she was killed.

Meantime search is being made for the seven rings, including a wedding ring, an engagement ring and one with a basket setting of small stones which Schultz said she either wore or carried in a chamois bag that hung about her neck and under her corset.

Watch Chain Only Clue to Slayer.

Much of the brush was cleared away yesterday from the place where the murder was committed and County Detective Garrett A. Owen said he had found new evidence which would prove valuable but the nature of which he would not tell.

The only tangible clue to the man thus far announced is the broken watch-chain found near the body. This Schultz examined yesterday, denying that he ever had seen it before.

Dr. William E. Ogden, Bergen County Physician, performed an autopsy yesterday, which showed the girl's throat had been cut and she had received a heavy blow with a blunt instrument on the left temple. Several of her teeth were knocked out and one had lodged in her trachea.

Miss Hermas, who had been living first with relatives at 208 Bay Seventeenth Street, Brooklyn, and later at the Martha Washington Hotel, since she left home after quarreling with her mother on Aug. 22, sent a special delivery letter telling of her safety as soon as she had had yesterday morning the novel experience of reading of her own murder in the newspapers which had carried it in early editions until the New Jersey authorities corrected their mistake. She and Rintrona, who is 23 years old and is in the grocery business with his father at 161 Prince Street, then applied for a marriage license. The clerk notified a detective, who took her to Captain Arthur Carey, head of the Homicide Bureau in headquarters, that she might satisfy the authorities she really was not dead. Her mother came and there were tears and embraces, after which the party went to the Municipal Building, where Deputy City Clerk J. R. Dalton performed the ceremony with the mother and one of her friends and a detective from the Bureau of Missing Persons as witnesses.

Lloyd George Won't Go to Aix; Refuses to Meet Germans

LUCERNE, Aug. 26.—Premier Lloyd George, it was learned today, does not intend to participate in the Aix-les-Bains conference of Premiers Millerand of France and Giolitti of Italy, but will keep in close touch with the conferees and will be consulted before any important decisions are taken.

Konstantin Fehrenbach, German Chancellor, and Dr. Walter von Simons, Minister of Foreign Affairs, have recrossed the German frontier, having failed to obtain an interview here with Lloyd George, according to reports.

Sir Hamar Greenwood, Chief Secretary for Ireland, is expected here tomorrow to discuss the Irish situation with the British Premier.

B. R. T. UNION CALLS STRIKE MEETINGS

Question of Walkout Will Be Decided by Men on Saturday Night and Sunday Morning.

MEDIATION MOVE HALTED

Officials of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America issued calls yesterday for meetings of organized employes of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company for Saturday night and Sunday morning to decide whether they will strike.

The Executive Committee of the Association drafted a plan for mediation in a letter to Federal Judge Mayer, who has jurisdiction over the B. R. T. lines, and sought a conference with Public Service Commissioner Delaney, whose services as a mediator were desired. This apparent effort to find machinery for an adjustment of the differences between the union men and Receiver Garrison came to a halt because of the illness of Commissioner Delaney. P. J. Shea, a member of the Executive Committee, who directed the strike a year ago, said yesterday that the union leaders were prepared to hold further conferences with the Receiver and Judge Mayer between now and the meetings on Saturday night.

Union Desires Arbitration.

"Our position is just this" said Mr. Shea. "Our present agreement provides that all differences between our representatives and the receiver shall be submitted to arbitration. It specially provides for that disposition of 'future' differences. That agreement provides that I should be one of the arbitrators, Receiver Garrison another and the third the joint selection of Commissioner Nixon and Mayor Hylan.

"All that we ask for is to have matters on which we fail to agree submitted to arbitration in this manner. The Receiver and Judge Mayer have so far refused to consider arbitration on these points.

"There has been no such arbitration heretofore for the reason that, during the year, we have been able to come to agreement with the receiver on all matters, without the necessity of arbitration. But the first time that occasion for arbitration arises they refuse it."

Mr. Shea said the chief proposals which he had made were for wage increases. In some cases nearly 50 per cent. was asked.

"Under the schedule we propoosed," he said, "conductors and motormen, who are now getting 52 to 62 cents an hour, would receive up to 92 cents an hour. The suggested increases vary and cover a large number of cases."

Says Proposals Are Not "Demands."

Mr. Shea said these proposals should not be referred to as "demands."

"We are prepared to negotiate on them," he said. "They are not exactly demands, but represent our idea of what the men ought to get."

He said the Amalgamated had more than 11,000 members and that the operating employes of the company were practically 100 per cent. organized. Asked if the B. R. T. Brotherhood had made any inroads into the Amalgamated, he said:

"They have no practical existence. They had a mass meeting recently, and only could get thirty-one persons to attend. They amount to nothing."

"Are you going to try to organize the Interborough employes this year, as you did last?"

"No. They all belong to the Hedley Brotherhood. We wouldn't bother with them."

Receiver Garrison, who was at his Summer home at Seabright, N. J., said of Mr. Shea's assertion that the agreement calls for the arbitration of all points:

"That is not true." He would not tell what it did provide, however, saying it was not his place to interpret the agreement.

"I would not undertake to give the court's mind," he said. Mr. Garrison refused to discuss the demands of the strikers.

Judge Mayer has not agreed with the contention of the union leaders that all matters which are not agreed upon are to be subjected to arbitration.

Stop Hiring Reserve Men.

Brooklyn Rapid Transit officials said yesterday that the hiring of outside men for the purpose of fighting a strike if it should come to pass had ceased. The company hired about 700 additional men, who, the union officials believed, would be used as strikebreakers. At the Amalgamated headquarters it was said many of the new men had quit when they learned they were to be used as strikebreakers and that several hundred of them had already joined the Amalgamated.

In spite of the belligerent attitude of the union officials, the belief among company officials was that strike danger was remote, and that most of the men were satisfied with the 10 per cent. increase announced by the receiver. It was learned unofficially that the reason for refusing arbitration was that the union leaders had deliberately submitted gigantic demands in the hope that a compromising body of arbitrators would cut them in half and still leave the employes with enormous gains.

REPORT ZAMORA HOLDS TWO MEN AS HOSTAGES

American and British Subject Not Yet Released—Bandits Said to be Surrounded.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Pedro Zamora, the Mexican bandit who kidnapped a number of Americans and a British subject at the mining camp of Cuale, State of Jalisco, has released all the captives except W. A. Gardiner, an American, and W. B. Johnson, the British subject, according to a dispatch received by the Department of State from the American Consul at Guadalajara today.

It was stated that Zamora is holding these two in order to obtain the guarantees he has demanded as the conditions of his surrender.

General Calles, the Secretary of War, who left Mexico City Aug. 24 to negotiate with Zamora for the bandit's surrender, has arrived at Guadalajara, which is about seventy-five miles from the mining camp in the mountains where the men were kidnapped.

Zamora and his band are said to be surrounded by 3,000 Mexican troops.

Smoot Renominated Unanimously.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Aug. 26.—United States Senator Reed Smoot of Utah was unanimously renominated by acclamation for that office today by the Utah State Republican Convention, meeting here.

Drop in Food Prices and Other Costs Forecast by Federal Reserve Report.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26 (Associated Press).—Marked indications that living costs apparently have started on their long awaited fall was said by the Federal Reserve Board today to be contained in its latest reports. An "important downward tendency" in prices of all commodities excepting food is evidenced in all parts of the country, the board stated, adding that a sharp reduction in the price of raw products forecasts lower food prices.

The board's reports reveal that within the last two months price changes have been marked in all basic raw products, but have been most noticeable in wool, silk and leather. These reductions are said to have been accompanied generally by a corresponding drop of prices in the retail field on clothing and shoes and several other staples.

In wool, the termination of Government control in various parts of the world and the steady marketing of the raw supply held by the United States Government has had an important effect."

A "depressed situation" was said to exist in the leather and shoe industry. Shoe manufacturers are slow in placing orders with leather dealers with the result that prices on raw material have suffered a heavy decline.

"Large stocks of leather and hides which had accumulated," the board asserted, "coupled with a falling off in consumption demand for leather products resulting directly from the very high retail prices which were being charged, are correctly regarded as primarily responsible for the drop in leather prices."

The break in the silk market and subsequent falling of retail prices of that textile were attributed to speculative activity in Japan, where heavy losses have been sustained by dealers as a result of the refusal of Americans to buy at exorbitant prices. Financial difficulties which developed in Japan last Spring also are showing effects and are aiding in forcing a price reduction on silk.

Lower prices on cotton and cotton products were forecast because of an expected heavy crop combined with a slowing up of demand. The mills were said to be approaching completion of orders already in their hands. Few new orders are being placed, partly because of the lateness of the season and because jobbers and retailers confidently hope for a prevailing lower level of prices when sales on cotton goods reopen next Spring.

"For the coming Autumn and Winter seasons it is likely, however, that this downward movement will be evident in a comparatively small degree," says the report. "In many lines higher retail prices are predicted, due to the fact that purchases for the Autumn and Winter trade had already been contracted for at the old level of prices, the changes in the prices of materials at the present time showing their effect early in the Spring of 1921."

EXPRESSMEN FAIL TO SETTLE STRIKE

SERVICE STILL SUSPENDED

Acting Commissioner Barrett Arranges for Another Parley Today—Criticises Scale Demanded.

Attempts by Acting Public Service Commissioner Alfred M. Barrett to conciliate the differences between the Westcott Express Company and the New York Transfer Company and their employes, who are on strike, failed yesterday after the men had refused to recede from their demands and the companies had insisted upon their inability to meet them. Following a four-hour conference yesterday the union leaders said that they would report back to their organizations, but they said there was scant hope of a settlement.

Commissioner Barrett has arranged for another conference on Monday morning at 11 o'clock, when he will hear again from both the companies and the unions. In the meantime the city's baggage transfer service will remain suspended.

Representatives of the companies told Commissioner Barrett yesterday that the increases demanded would amount to $350,000. At the close of the conference Commissioner Barrett stated that the representatives of the companies had proved to his satisfaction that neither of the companies had made money during the last year and that if they were to attempt to pay the increased scale demanded, upon the basis of the same amount of business done by them in the last year the two companies would become bankrupt.

M. B. Cashel, vice president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters and Chauffeurs, and Walter Lacey, business agent of the local organization, presented the claims of the men. They said that they would not recede from their original demands.

No baggage was moved yesterday by either agency, but most of the baggage that arrived in the Pennsylvania Station and the Grand Central terminal was taken away in taxicabs and by independent baggage transfer men. Police Headquarters reported an increasing number of complaints from taxi drivers of interference by strike pickets and sympathizers. In several instances it was reported that the strikers had "spotted" a taxi and followed it in an attempt to raid the taxi and prevent the trunk being delivered.

The transfer of baggage at the Pennsylvania Station was more uncertain than at the Grand Central because of the large number of Black and White taxi's at the Pennsylvania, whose drivers are members of the same union as the striking baggagemen. All of these drivers refuse to handle heavy baggage and the travelers had to wait for other taxis or get independent transfer men.

REFUSES WAGE RISE.

Rochester Clothing Trade Depression Bars It, Says Arbitrator.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 26.—Declaring that "the acute depression in the clothing industry" would not permit needed wage increases to workers in Rochester factories represented in the Clothiers' Exchange, William N. Leiserson, impartial chairman of the Rochester market, today denied the workers' application for such increases.

He stipulated, however, that should conditions in the industry improve, he would reopen the arbitration proceeding.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Aug. 26.—The 150th anniversary of the founding of Universalism in America by the Rev. John Murray was the occasion today for a pilgrimage of thousands of Universalists to this old fishing port. Pageants, addresses, sermons and visits to historic places will mark the celebration.

The exercises today were held in the First Church, the home of the oldest Universalist congregation in the United States.

SKY SIGN TO MARK BROADWAY CHURCH

Union Methodists Hope 25-Foot Sparkler Will Outshine Gum, Cabaret and Movie Ads.

WILL SHOW GREAT CLOCK

Brilliant Cross to Surmount Stars and Stripes and Congregation's Flag.

The biggest electric church sign in the United States is being made for the Union Methodist Episcopal Church, Forty-eighth Street just west of Broadway. It will aim to outshine all the advertisements of plays, movies, cabarets, gums, prohibition and other joys. It will be twenty-five feet high, and will cost $3,000.

The big sign will stand eight feet out from the church building, so it can be seen from both sides. Dr. Benson has had the exterior of the church thoroughly cleaned, and has placed boxes of flowers in the windows.

At the top of the sign will be a brilliant cross, of white nitrogen lamps, six feet tall and four feet wide. Under this cross will be an American flag with the red, white and blue in lamps, and under the Stars and Stripes will be placed the Church flag, white field with a blue square with a red cross in one corner.

Under the Church flag in immense letters in transpart lights will be the legend: "Union Church and Social Centre. Always Open."

Beneath the cross will be a great clock that will ring a chime at each half hour. The clock will be lighted from the inside and it will be the only big public clock in that vicinity.

The sign will be visible from Fifth to Eleventh Avenue and far up and down Seventh Avenue and Broadway. The cross will be level with the roof of the church.

Union Church is not an imposing structure, but the idea is to make it, not in architecture but in its service to the city, a Cathedral for Methodism. However, there will be no Methodist propaganda, the denomination not even appearing on the sign. The Rev. Dr. John G. Benson, the new pastor, is on duty from 11 o'clock in the morning to 11 o'clock at night every day.

The Methodist Board of Home Missions has purchased for the church the two apartment houses adjoining it and is converting them into a transient home for girls, to accommodate sixty-five. It is to be for girls who are stranded in New York. The property cost $85,000.

Miss Grace Ferry of St. Paul, Minn., will arrive today to take charge of the home and all the welfare work for young women. She was a teacher but gave much of her time to social service in St. Paul. She is being brought here by the Centenary Conservation Committee of the Methodist Church.

Dr. Benson has built dormitories at the back of his church to house twenty boys, and already he has six living there. He will build two more stories on that side of the church and arrange dormitory room for one hundred more boys and young men.

Dr. Benson has made a "survey" of his neighborhood. Ten thousand persons were visited. The pastor thinks it is the most fertile field in the city, although most of his parishioners will be transients. He had already organized "absentee membership" by persons in all parts of the country who promise to visit the church and its homes when in this city.

Bishop Luther B. Wilson will dedicate the sign and open the home for girls on Oct. 1. The temporary home for boys will be opened Sept. 1.

SIR PERCY COX TO RETURN.

Commissioner Will Seek to Restore Order in Mesopotamia.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—Sir Percy Cox, High Commissioner for Mesopotamia, who has been here for some time, will return there immediately and try to restore order, says The London Times. He is quoted as saying that at the earliest opportunity an Arab administration with doubtless be formed, in accordance with promises made at Bagdad by the British Government.

Sir Percy will be accompanied by Sir John Hilby, who, it is expected, will have a place in the temporary administration which will conduct affairs until an Arab Government is established.

Newspaper reports published here today say that the Government will withdraw its military forces after beleaguered garrisons have been relieved and British women and children brought out of the country.

NAME W. P. TIERNAN IN ECKERT RUM QUIZ

MALOY CONSULTS GOVERNOR

Extraordinary Grand Jury Expected to be Called to Investigate Murder and Liquor Ring.

The name of William P. Tiernan, former naval officer, and brother of J. Harry Tiernan, Surrogate and County Judge of Richmond County, yesterday was brought into the investigation of the illicit liquor traffic which is alleged to have resulted in the murder last Saturday of Robert Eckert chief of a band of bootleggers. James Shevlin, Supervising Prohibition Enforcement Agent for this State, said Tiernan was suspected of having sold three barrels of whisky to Henry Hugot, hotel proprietor at St. George, Staten Island. The whisky was seized by three of Shevlin's agents in a raid on the hotel ten days ago.

It was reported last night that a prominent politician had been arrested in connection with the alleged illicit liquor traffic—although no person had been taken to any of the station houses in the borough on such a charge. Later it was said the prisoner had been removed to Brooklyn, but this could not be confirmed.

Mr. Shevlin said six barrels of whisky were recovered by his agents in the raid, and that three of them bore marks which showed they had been withdrawn from a warehouse by William P. Tiernan on a permit issued to him by Charles R. O'Connor, State Director of Prohibition Enforcement. Tiernan obtained a license to engage in the wholesale liquor business soon after the Volstead act went into effect last January.

Mr. Shevlin asserted that unless Tiernan showed he had sold the three barrels of whisky legitimately for medicinal purposes, as required under his bond, and had no direct connection with the sale to Hugot, he would be arrested.

Says Tiernan Must Explain.

"It makes no difference whom Tiernan is related to," said Mr. Shevlin, who, with his chief assistant, John J. Quigley, had just finished reading reports of special agents he had sent to Staten Island. "Tiernan will have to explain how those three barrels of whisky came into Hugot's possession. The three barrels were identified by my agents through marks placed on them when they were released from the warehouse, and there is no doubt that they were sold to Hugot by somebody in violation of the Volstead act. Of course, it is possible that Tiernan sold the whisky to another who held a permit to purchase liquor and that person or somebody else sold the liquor to Hugot, but, if so, we have no record of it."

Federal officials also revealed that, on the night of July 26 last, Howard Tiernan, 26 years old, a cousin of Judge Tiernan, was arrested by Policeman George Nadler of the Amity Street Station, Brooklyn, on a charge of transporting whisky in a motor truck without a license. Howard was arraigned before United States Commissioner Mason in the Federal Building the next day, and was held in $500 bail for a hearing next Monday. He lives at 224 Day Street, Tompkinsville.

Mr. Shevlin was asked if the Staten Island investigation had revealed the connection of a police officer with the illicit liquor trade.

"Mr. Quigley and I have been delving into that phase of the matter," he replied, "but thus far we have obtained no information which might connect a police officer with the matter."

While Mr. Shevlin and his assistant were questioning the special Staten Island agents, Joseph A. Maloy, District Attorney of Staten Island, was in conference with Governor Smith at the Biltmore Hotel regarding the advisability of creating an extraordinary term of the Grand Jury on Staten Island to investigate the Eckert murder as well as the liquor situation.

Conference Lasts Two Hours.

The Governor and Mr. Maloy were together two hours, after which Mr. Maloy hurried to his office in the County Court House at St. George. There he announced that the Governor probably would convene an Extraordinary Grand Jury.

The regular Grand Jury would not meet until October, District Attorney Maloy explained, and because of the widespread interest in the revelations incident to the Eckert murder it was felt that better progres could be made if an extraordinary term were convened within a few days.

District Attorney Maloy said Governor Smith instructed him to turn over all the evidence now in his possession to James H. Parsons, the Governor's legal adviser. He said the Governor also informed him that after Mr. Parsons had made an examination of the evidence, he (the Governor) would arrange a conference with Mr. Maloy with a view to selecting a Justice of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of the Second District, which includes Staten Island, to exercise jurisdiction over the inquisitorial body. District Attorney Maloy believed the investigation by the Extraordinary Grand Jury would be in full swing within two weeks.

Mr. Maloy further said Governor Smith had informed him that in the event and Extraordinary Grand July was called he wanted its investigation to be thorough. The Governor had insisted that nobody must be spared. The Grand Jury would be given unlimited powers, the Governor had promised.

Newton's Direction Suggested.

An unconfirmed rumor was circulated on Staten Island last night that a committee of citizens contemplated asking Governor Smith to designate Attorney General Newton to conduct the investigation. It was said the committee intended to base its request on the fact that stories published in the newspapers hinted that local politicians were involved in the liquor traffic and were alleged to have been intimate with Eckert and other members of his band of bootleggers.

In revealing developments incident to the raid on Hugot's hotel, Mr. Shevlin explained that about four days before the raid some of his men invaded a wholesale liquor establishment conducted by a man named Berger in Avenue B and that in their examination of a motor truck driver named Butter, who was arrested with Berger, they learned that three barrels of whisky and four cases of gin had been sold to Hugot.

Mr. Shevlin said his agents reported the matter to him the next day. He instructed Isadore Einstein, who was in charge of the Avenue B raid, to lay the matter before United States Commissioner McGoldrick in Brooklyn. Einstein and two other agents appeared before Commissioner McGoldrick, he said, and obtained a warrant to search Hugot's hotel, which is at Richmond Terrace and Wall Street, St. George, directly across the street from the Richmond County Court House where Judge J. Harry Tiernan presides.

Six Barrels of Whisky Seized.

Einstein and the other agents raided Hugot's hotel on the night of Aug. 17, and, after blocking all the doors of the dining room on the ground floor, entered the cellar of the hotel, where they found six barrels of whisky and four cases of gin, instead of the three barrels of whisky they had expected.

Three of the barrels were similar to those in Berger's establishment. Examination of the others revealed marks which identified them as having been withdrawn by "Willie" Tiernan from a Government warehouse. Hugot was arrested and the whisky and gin confiscated. The seized liquors were valued at $10,000.

Hugot and Berger were arraigned yesterday in the United States Court in Brooklyn, and each was held in $500 bail for hearing. Butter, the driver of the motor truck, had been held in similar bail several days before.

"Willie" Tiernan, who was an ensign on a transport during the war, is 28 years old and resides with his wife and family at 78 St. Paul's Avenue, Tompkinsville, about half a mile from Hugot's hotel. He formerly was in the taxicab business at the municipal ferry terminal, St. George, but now has a wholesale liquor business, under the name of the United Supply Company, at 63 Van Duzer Street. It was said yesterday that he had a partner in this business, Tony Rubino. The window of his warehouse bears the trade-mark "T." and "R."

Tiernan also is in the motor truck business with a man named Rumage at 78 Van Duzer Street, but efforts to find him yesterday were unsuccessful. Four agents from Mr. Shevlin's office were stationed most of the day waiting for the wholesale liquor dealer to appear. At 6 o'clock they went out to search for him.

Judge Tiernan Discusses Case.

Judge Tiernan, at his Summer home at Cedar Grove Beach, near New Dorp, S. I., was informed of Mr. Shevlin's statement involving his brother in the sale of whisky to Hugot.

"I met my brother this morning and discussed with him the rumors that a relative of a high county official was involved in the illegal liquor traffic on Staten Island," he said. "'Willie' told me he was ready to produce his books to show that he conducted his wholesale liquor business in a legitimate manner."

"I was particularly interested in asking my brother whether he was acquainted with Eckert or any of the men believed to have been associated with the murdered man. 'Willie' declared in most emphatic terms that he was not. I am satisfied that my brother knows nothing about the allegations which appeared in the newspapers in connection with the murder of Eckert."

Judge Tiernan asked in what manner Mr. Shevlin involved his brother in the Hugot case, and when informed, said:

"Did Hugot say he bought the whisky from my brother?"

He was told that Mr. Shevlin said Hugot, according to the reports of Agent Einstein, neither would confirm nor deny the matter.

Judge Tiernan also was asked if he ever had heard that a police officer was engaged in the illicit sale of liquors on Staten Island.

"I don't know anything about such sales," he replied. "I know my brother would not engage in such a business. He is conducting a legitimate business and that is his own affair."

"Is his motor truck business conducted in connection with his wholesale whisky business?" Judge Tiernan was asked.

"Yes," he replied.

"Are you associated with your brother in business in any way?"

"Absolutely not."

Judge Tiernan said his brother resigned from the navy because of illness, and later engaged in the trucking business. He went into the wholesale whisky business about six months ago.

Several Arrests Possible.

District Attorney Maloy was asked if, in investigating the Eckert murder, he had come across evidence connecting "Willie" Tiernan with the alleged illicit sale of whisky to Hugot.

"I never heard anything of the kind," he said. "I am not interested in the enforcement of the prohibition law, anyway. That is a matter for Mr. Shevlin. I'm interested only in solving the mystery of the murder of Eckert."

It was learned last night that Ben Allen, in charge of prohibition enforcement forces in Brooklyn and Staten Island, had been endeavoring for two days to learn whether Tiernan or another had sold the whisky to Hugot. It was hinted that as a result of the information he had obtained several arrests may be made in the next twenty-four hours.

Mr. Shevlin announced that District Attorney Maloy had telephoned him asking that Prohibition Agents McGuire and Weldon be sent to his office this morning. The District Attorney will question them about the allegations of a whisky ring in Staten Island during the eight weeks the men were assigned there.

Soon after Eckert's bullet-riddled body was found in an automobile, owned by Charles Kane, on the Old Town Road, near Fort Wadsworth, reports were circulated that his death was due to his threat to "squeal" on the activities of certain prohibition agents.

The names of McGuire and Weldon, who were transferred from the Staten Island to the Rochester district about two weeks ago, frequently were mentioned in connection with the investigation, and on Monday last Mr. Maloy said he intended to question them concerning both the plot to murder Eckert and the contraband liquor conspiracy.

Eckert's Release "Embarrassing."

Eckert was released on bail from the Tombs on Aug. 17 last, after McGuire had caused his arrest as a fugitive from justice. He was charged with having escaped from the jail at Lake Hopatcong, N. J., after he and a man named "Dick" Whalen, alias Dorsey, had been locked up on a charge of holding up a motor truck load of whisky on the Lincoln Highway, near Kearny, N. J.

Last Monday Mr. Maloy declared Eckert's release from the Tombs was "embarrassing to certain people." It is understood that Mr. Ross's request of the Staten Island District Attorney for evidence of violations of the Volstead act partly was based on that statement.

In commenting on reports that politicians and officials were believed to be concerned in the illicit whisky traffic on Staten Island, Alfred Norton, Chief Assistant District Attorney, said:

"That rumor is all bunk. I have gone into it thoroughly. It is without foundation. There are two rival Democratic factions on Staten Island, and an attempt is being made to take the Eckert case into politics. We have satisfied ourselves there is no truth in the rumor involving these men."

Mr. Norton also said the investigation had revealed that "Dick" Whalen was employed in Eckert's garage in Orange, N. J., that the men had been close friends for some time, but that within the last five weeks they had fallen out over money which Whalen contended Eckert owed him.

Mr. Norton reiterated his promise of "startling revelations" in connection with the Eckert murder, but nothing of that nature has been revealed so far by the District Attorney or his assistant. Aside from the visit of the District Attorney to Governor Smith the only activity evidenced by Mr. Maloy or his assistants was a resumption of the examination of Max Katz, chauffeur of a motortruck in which Eckert is alleged to have transported a load of liquor about ten weeks ago, after, it was alleged, the chief of the band of bootleggers had paid two prohibition enforcement agents $1,500.

Katz Unshaken by Questioning.

Katz was arrested three days ago as a material witness in the murder, and on the following day was arraigned before Magistrate Mullen in the latter's home and held for forty-eight hours on a "short affidavit" charging him with participating in the murder.

Assistant District Attorney Morton questioned Katz for several hours but admitted he was unable to break down the story Katz told when he was arrested. The prisoner said he knew nothing about the murder or the events leading up to it. Katz will be arraigned in the Stapleton Police Court this morning, when he will demand that he be released. It is understood County Judge Tiernan will preside as an Acting City Magistrate, owing to the fact that Magistrate Mullen was reported to be too ill to appear.

Germans Destroying Munitions Confiscated by the Entente

LONDON, Friday, Aug. 27.—Munitions and hydroairplanes valued at nearly $2,000,000, which were recently confiscated by the Entente commission in the Pintsche Works on the Spree River, were destroyed last evening by the 3,000 employes of the plant, many of whom are Communists, says a Berlin dispatch to The London Times.

The Reichswehr was summoned, but proved powerless to act. The Government is sending representatives to the scene.

WOULD BAR EVICTION DURING RENT CRISIS

STRIKES AT PROFITEERING

30,000 MAY BE OUSTED

A. J. W. Hilly to Present Plan for Relief at Meeting Here Next Week.

When the Joint Legislative Housing Committee meets next week at the City Hall Arthur J. W. Hilly, Chairman of the Mayor's Committee on Rent Profiteering, will offer a plan which he thinks will end profiteering in rents, prevent the eviction of 30,000 tenants scheduled to go out between now and May 1 and stop all evictions during the housing crisis.

"Practically all landlord and tenant litigation today is taking the form of hold-over proceedings," said Mr. Hilly yesterday. "The landlords have given up calling tenants into court and demanding higher rents. Today, when they make demands for increased rents and the tenants refuse on the ground that the increase is exorbitant, the landlords accept the old rent and on the first of the following month appear at a Municipal Court and ask for a notice which would cause the tenant to vacate his apartment in thirty days.

"The action begun is technically known as a hold-over proceeding, because the landlord claims that the tenant is holding over at the old rental and is unwilling to pay an increase.

Landlord Gets an Increase.

"When the tenant appears in court he asks an extension of time and the court grants it. It may be a month or a few months or at most a year. In addition, the court usually grants the landlord an increase of 25 per cent., so that the landlord now has not only a warrant of eviction and knows that within a year he may be able to offer his apartment at a still higher rent to a new tenant but he also has an appreciable increase in rent.

"The landlord goes into court knowing that the tenant will get a stay, but also that the stay will not be longer than a year and that anyway he will obtain an increase of 25 per cent. The increase is not a universal custom

STATEN ISLANDERS WALK AS BUSES QUIT

WHALEN AND KUHN DISPUTE

Commissioner and Receiver Blame Each Other—Estimate Board Session Called.

While thousands of Staten Island residents walked home last night or paid fancy prices for taxicabs and other conveyances, because of the city's withdrawal of its bus lines, a controversy raged between Grover A. Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures and Receiver J. J. Kuhn of the Richmond Light and Railroad Company as to the responsibility for putting a large section of the Island on a pedestrian basis.

Denying he had contributed to the difficulties of the city bus lines, Captain Kuhn asserted that the bus line breakdown was the result of an attempt by the city to repeal economic laws and do business under impossible conditions. Mr. Whalen, on the other hand, insisted that the bus lines had proved themselves practical and profitable business enterprises.

Mr. Whalen denied rumors that the suspension of the Staten Island service was the forerunner of a general collapse of the five-cent city bus lines. He said that, on the contrary, it was the city's intention to expand its bus lines and that the city was ready to take over the lifeless Midland lines on any fair basis.

Captain Kuhn replying to Whalen in a statement, said:

"I regret to learn that Commissioner Whalen has decided to discontinue bus service to the people of Staten Island, who are not served by the trolley lines of the Richmond Light and Power Company. I have not now and never have had the slightest objection to the operation of the buses by him to places in Staten Island not already adequately served by the trolley cars which are operated by me as receiver. His insinuation that I am in some way responsible for his determination to quit is without foundation in fact.

"He has discovered what almost everybody else has long known — that even the buses, which pay nothing for the use of the streets, for taxes, for accidents, for paving the streets, or for cleaning off ice and snow, cannot continue to operate for a five-cent fare.

"Fortunately for the people of Richmond Borough who are served by the lines operated by me as receiver, the Court of Appeals has recently held that the kind of franchises under which the Richmond Light and Power cars run does not require the consent of the city as long as the Public Service Commission has given permission for the increased fare."

Declares Buses Profitable.

When this statement was called to his attention, Commissioner Whalen said:

"Bus operation on Staten Island has been profitable and the reason for its discontinuance was solely the petty interference and annoyance of the Receiver of the Richmond Light and Power Company.

"There were certain prohibited streets on Staten Island adjacent to St. George where buses and trolley cars were in competition, and I agreed that buses would not pick up passengers on those streets. My orders were carried out almost to the letter, with some exceptions. When trolley cars were overloaded, passengers would naturally jump on the buses and the driver could not throw them off. This was made the basis of such interference by the receiver that it became absolutely impossible for the buses to continue.

"As for any forecasts of the end or disintegration of the bus system, that is equally untrue. We are going to continue the operation of all the present lines, at least. The city is also perfectly willing to operate the Midland Road, if we can get a fair lease from the receiver.

A special meeting of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment to plan legislation to make possible city ownership and operation of bus and trolley lines was called yesterday by Mayor Hylan for next Tuesday. The Mayor issued a statement in which he said:

"I have called a special meeting of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment for Tuesday and the question of legislation to empower the city to purchase and operate buses on Staten Island will be taken up. I will further urge the board to petition the Federal Court to direct John J. Kuhn, the receiver of the Midland Railroad Company, to permit the city to use the abandoned lines of this company to enable the city to immediately install an adequate service for a five-cent face."

Acting Borough President John E. Bowe of Richmond sent a letter to Mayor Hylan in which he said:

"The cessation of the bus service will result in practically isolating several communities of Staten Island, and while praying for relief from the existing intolerable conditions, we would most respectfully protest against the discontinuance of the buses."

$250,000 HEIR TO CONTEST.

SALEM, Mass., Aug. 26.—A contest of the will of Edward F. Searles, the millionaire recluse of Methuen, who bequeathed his estate of more than $50,000,000 to Arthur T. Walker, a New York clerk, will be made by Albert Victor Searles of Boston, a nephew of the testator, it was learned today.

In attempting to break the will the nephew, to whom $250,000 was left, opposes a provision by which the millionaire directed that any one contesting it would lose all to which they might be entitled under the will. The procedure of the nephew will be to make formal objection to allowance of the will when it comes up for probate here on Sept. 7, and then ask for special administration of the estate pending adjudication. If granted, this motion would bring to Massachusetts all the personal property, millions of which are now in New York.

WOMEN FORM OHIO JURY.

First Panel of Kind in State Saves Couple from Eviction.

AKRON, Ohio, Aug. 26.—State history was made in the municipal courtroom of Judge A. F. O'Neil late yesterday, when a jury of twelve women, returned a verdict for the defendant in an eviction case.

It is the first time a woman jury has ever passed on a legal case in Ohio, and one of the few women juries that has ever been impaneled in the country.

The decision of the jury saved a newly wedded couple from being evicted from their home. Attorneys for the plaintiff said they were satisfied with the verdict and would not appeal.

QUIT LOW-PAY FEDERAL JOBS

Fifty Mechanics in Buildings Tender Conditional Resignations.

Fifty of the 150 engineers and other mechanics employed in public buildings under the supervision of Captain A. B. Fry, Supervising Chief Engineer of United States Government buildings in this district, have tendered their resignations, to take effect Sept. 1 unless a wage increase is granted before that date.

Captain Fry said yesterday that by direction of the Secretary of the Treasury advertisements had been published calling for men to fill the vacancies.

Captain Fry said that although the total sum appropriated for the men in question employed in about 1,000 Government buildings was $3,700,000 for the current fiscal year, he was under the impression that this amount would not allow for the increases asked by the men.

FIRE AUTOS FOR WHOLE CITY

Hope that all horse-drawn fire-fighting apparatus in the city would soon be displaced by motor apparatus was expressed yesterday by Mayor John F. Hylan in a letter to Fire Commissioner Thomas J. Drennan, congratulating the latter upon the complete motorization of the Fire Department's equipment in Manhattan. The Mayor said:

"I am glad to know that the last horse-drawn fire apparatus has been eliminated from the Borough of Manhattan and that motor fire apparatus is being substituted in its place. I know that some progress has been made in the other boroughs by the installation of motor apparatus in place of horse-drawn equipment. As rapidly as possible motor vehicle equipment should be installed throughout the city."

MRS. TILTON ESTATE GROWS

An accounting filed yesterday in the estate of Mrs. Frances Duer Tilton, who was adjudged incompetent some years ago, shows that from 1917 to May 18 last it increased in value from $183,000 to $285,000, and during that time $63,700 was spent for her benefit. Her real estate jumped from $153,000 to $199,000 and her securities from $30,000 to $86,000.

Mrs. Tilton, who at one time lived at Chevy Chase, Md., was declared incompetent in proceedings brought by her sister, Mrs. Alice Bowne. Some years ago she married John T. Tilton, Jr., who was thirty years younger than herself, and after giving him securities valued at $60,000 she sued to get them back. The case was settled out of court.

BLUE DANUBE SELLS BEST

Paul B. Klugh, founder and first President of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce, who spoke at the convention of the National Association of Masters of Dancing at the Hotel Astor yesterday, said that music publishers were eager to produce music that merby the efforts of the dancing masters and asserted that the members of the Chamber of Commerce were stimulated by the efforts of the dancing masters' to encourage better music and dancing.

"The public trend, now, is undoubtedly toward more natural music," said Mr. Klugh. "One of our largest dealers in records told me recently that during the last few months The Blue Danube has been his best seller. He says that people have come to realize that the transitory stuff is much more expensive and they tire of it very readily.

"Better music makes for better dancing and we are most eager to co-operate with the dancing masters in their earnest effort to dignify dances and free them from all objectionable dance attitudes and criticism. This is certainly the right time to take up this matter for the public has had too much jazz and, according to the opinion of many in touch with conditions, will welcome this reform.

"The Music Industries Chamber of Commerce is intent on reforms other than dance music," he continued. "We are also down on suggestive lyrics. The stage and motion pictures have censors but there is no censorship for words in music. I do not know why. Any 'low brow' can put out lyrics and there is never a protest. They should have a rigid censorship.

"You deserve encouragement in your work of fighting for cleaner dancing and for a fair, open-minded opinion by religious factions. The Chamber of Commerce will back you up in this movement, as did the National Association of Music Merchants last Winter."

The business sessions of the convention closed yesterday with the election of officers. A resolution was adopted in which the association denounced the Cat Step and the Camel Walk, two of the dances studied in the earlier sessions.

The officers for the coming year include Roderick C. Grant of New York City, President; First Vice President, Albert C. Tuttle, Baltimore; Second Vice President, C. Harry Miles, Birmingham, Ala.; Third Vice President, Pearl Alden, Lafayette, Ind.; Treasurer, Fred W. Kehl; Trustee, R. E. Jacques, and member of the Normal School Board, Fenton T. Bott, retiring President. It was voted to hold the convention in New York next year during the first week in August.

Last night the dancing masters gave a series of exhibition dances in the Astor ballroom.

ILLINOIS MINERS GET RISE.

Coal Operators Agree to $1.50 a Day Increase to 40,000 Men.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—Illinois coal operators and representatives of the miners agreed today on an increase of $1.50 a day for the 40,000 coal miners in the State. The men asked $2 a day increase, but agreed to compromise.

The new rate applies to day men, hoisting engineers and mule drivers. The old schedule for tonnage men will remain in effect.

Frank Farrington, district President of the United Mine Workers of America, declared "we got everything we asked for and a little more. The workers will accept the increase."

The operators declared that fines imposed for remaining on an unauthorized strike will not be remitted. Many of the day men struck recently without the approval of their national officers.

KEGERREIS SUIT WITHDRAWN

Counsel for Actor Forestalls Dismissal by Judge Sheppard.

The suit of Robert B. Kegerreis, an actor, against twenty-six members of The Players for $100,000 for alleged statements that he was disloyal to this country during the recent war, came to an abrupt end yesterday when Federal Judge Sheppard decided that the charges of conspiracy had not been provided. He said that he was prepared to dismiss the suit, but William Berg, counsel for Kegerreis, withdrew it.

The end came after the prosecution rested and the court had listened to a long argument between counsel on a motion to dismiss. John Drew, Francis Wilson, Otis Skinner and several others of the more famous defendants were in the court room. They were jubilant and warmly congratulated their counsel, W. C. Van Slyke.

YOUR WINTER'S COAL

Have you taken thought of your winter's coal.

It is still under ground awaiting the activities of the men about the mines to bring it to the surface, load it on the cars and start it toward your bin.

The activities of the men at the mines, here and elsewhere, have been suspended by order of the United Mine Workers.

We profess to be nothing more than spectators of what is going on in the coal fields of Illinois and Kansas, but the proceedings there have such bearing upon our condition in the Williamson field, that we are constrained briefly to bring them to notice.

The strikers there are under solemn contract, guaranteed by the officers of the United Mine Workers, to perform certain service at a stated rate of wages for a given term of years. In spite of this contract, to which miners, operators and the government of the United States were parties, the miners under sanction and protection of the United Mine Workers, laid down their tools and quit their work.

So flagrant was the violation of contract in Illinois that the President of the United States when asked to provide a way of settlement, rebuked the United Mine Workers organization for its repeated violations of contract. He said:

"It is with a feeling of profound regret and sorrow that I learned that many of the members of your organization, particularly in the state of Illinois, have engaged in a strike in violation of the award of the bituminous coal commission, and your agreement with the government that the findings of the commission would be accepted by you as final and binding, I am distressed not only because your action in refusing to mine coal upon the terms which you had accepted may result in great suffering in many households during the coming winter and interfere with the continuation of industrial and agricultural activity, which is the basis of the prosperity which you in common with the balance of our people have been enjoying, but also, and what is of far more importance, because the violation of the terms of your solemn obligation impairs your good name, destroys the confidence which is the basis of all mutual agreements and threatens the very foundation of fair industrial relations. No government, no employer, no person having any reputation to protect can afford to enter into contractual relations with any organization which systematically or repeatedly violates its contracts."

In Kansas, the contention has not been for higher wages, as in Illinois, but for the acceptance of a five day week and a six hour day.

The contract in Kansas provides that: "pending a final settlement of any dispute the mine shall continue in operation and all miners, mine laborers and parties involved shall remain at work, except discharged employees."

The interest of the Williamson field operators in these strikes, as well as the 705 other strikes called and maintained by the miners in Kansas during forty-five months is the evidence that the United Mine Workers do not keep their contracts. This fact has been observed by us, just the same as by the President of the United States, who made it the subject of a stinging rebuke.

The cessation of work in the Williamson coal field is due to a contest over the organization of this field by the United Mine Workers.

The Williamson field operators find themselves influenced by many valid objections to the control of the miners of this field by the United Mine Workers. We might, safely and easily, rest our case with the public upon the charge lodged by the President of the United States and justified by a multitude of circumstances that they do not value and enforce the contracts that they make. No business concern will, voluntarily, or under pressure that it can avoid, accept contracts not safeguarded by reliability and good faith.

Permit us, now, to draw this subject to the attention of those depending on bituminous coal for the warmth of their hearths, next winter. We will presume that you are interested. We will presume no difficulty on your part in recalling the hardships when the United Mine Workers closed all the mines under their control in November-December, 1919. We doubt not that you will recall that the Williamson and adjoining non-union fields furnished you your almost total supply of coal during that crucial time. Now, then, for an open secret. The Williamson field has been chosen by the United Mine Workers as the key to the adjoining Pocahontas, Winding Gulf, Raleigh, and Logan fields in West Virginia, and the fields of eastern Kentucky. If they can make their break through this field, their chances are enlarged for subsequent supremacy in the other coal fields mentioned.

Give them supremacy over this territory and they will have control of practically the entire bituminous coal production of the United States. With that control they will have easily within their grasp the power which they sought in 1919, of freezing the country into submission to the program outlined by their National Convention, of

Co-operation instead of competition;
Six hour day and five day week;
The right to bargain with the government.

What would this power to shut off coal production mean to the warming of YOUR hearth and the heating of YOUR kitchen range?

The Williamson field and those immediately contiguous to it as enumerated above have a production capacity of 5,000,000 tons a month or 25,000,000 tons during the five winter months.

Accepting the usual estimate of a ton per month per family, which will likely hold true, the capacity of these fields, if undisturbed, will yield provision for five million families during the winter season.

Assuming again that the ordinary family is correctly estimated by census statistics at five persons, these fields have the capacity of providing 25,000,000 people, or about one-fourth of the total population, with their winter's fuel supply.

These figures and estimates are only suggestive but are worthy of consideration. The railroads must have fuel, to carry fuel to you. The navy and the shipping interests will have demands that must be attended to. And unless industry is supplied, there are but few that will be able to provide their fuel supply.

Is not this statement worthy of studious, conscientious, family-loving consideration?

The United Mine Workers has defied industry. It has defied the American family. It is contemptuous of its contracts with operators. It scorns public necessities.

May we not ask YOU as an independent coal user, whether you wish, in view of your personal convenience and necessity and comfort, to depend upon our efforts and strategy in providing your winter's supply of coal, or upon the good faith of an organization that wantonly breaks its contracts and is lacking in sympathy for the personal, public and industrial demands of all coal users?

This is our second address through the press to the coal users of the country. We desire to acknowledge with appreciation the many responses made by readers of our former address, and their tender of support in the fight we are making. Our sole purpose in going to the public is to advise and warn the people of the possibility of fuel trouble during next winter, that they may lodge the blame therefor where it properly belongs—upon the United Mine Workers of America.

DEALERS PREDICT COAL PRICE DROP

Decrease Will Be Gradual but Noticeable Soon, Says Secretary of Wholesalers.

SHORTAGE NOT EXPECTED

New York City Should Acquire an Ice-Breaking Boat for Emergency, Expert Asserts.

Charles S. Allen, Secretary of the Wholesale Coal Trade Association, and coal dealers who were asked yesterday to discuss the forecast of a tumble in the price of coal, made by the Department of Justice, which has renewed its campaign against profiteers, declared that the price would drop gradually, but noticeably, in the near future. The Department of Justice, Mr. Allen said, was receiving the fullest co-operation from the Wholesale Coal Trade Association in the fight to drive alleged combinations of dealers at coast points out of business.

There will be no shortage here this Winter, one authority on the coal situation said, if the city takes the proper precautionary measures and secures an ice-breaking boat for use when the Hudson freezes over. Navigation in the river, it was pointed out, has consistently been blocked by ice for years during two or three weeks in the Winter, and as consistently the city has promised to purchase an ice-breaker to replace the ancient Florizel, which was wrecked several years ago.

"I don't foresee a shortage of bituminous coal, and I think the price will take a gradual decline very soon," Mr. Allen said. "The market will break, and the coast piers, jammed now, will release all the coal that will be needed in this section. There have been many duplicate orders and the New England demand has been grossly exaggerated. I mean that New England ordered more coal than she needs.

"For example, a man went up to Providence the other day and offered some spot coal. He was told that the dealers of Providence had all they needed for current requirements. Meanwhile the man in Binghamton, Trenton, Batavia and other similar points is unable to get his share. But this situation will clear up."

The shortage of anthracite coal, which is giving the retail dealers here no little worry, was due in a great measure, one observer pointed out, to the fact that the industries of the Great Lakes and other Western regions were able to pay spot cash, due to their unprecedented prosperity, and had trebled and quadrupled their orders instead of ordering the amount actually needed.

The retail situation, although a source of anxiety at present, will not develop into famine, according to a coal dealer, who asked that his name be withheld.

"But there is no indication that the price will drop," he said. "On the contrary, the retail price has got to go up. There will be an advance of 10 cents on Oct. 1, when the last of the sliding scale advances goes into effect. Then, too, it must be considered that there is a rising freight rate. This goes into effect the first of the month. The charges on a coal shipment today will be noticed in the retail trade. The question of supply should not be agitated now. The retailers are busy trying to meet the demand. The less said about the supply the better."

In an editorial entitled "The Priority of Coal Should Be Continued," Coal Age, the weekly journal of the coal and coke industries, issued yesterday, said regarding a possible shortage:

"There will be no shortage if the buying public can be calmed and production maintains its upward trend."

Postpone Underwear Sales.

UTICA, N. Y., Aug. 26.—The lightweight underwear manufacturers who are members of the Knit Goods Manufacturers of America, at a meeting at Hotel Utica today decided that, in view of the unsettled economic conditions and the declining tendency of cotton, to defer naming an opening date for the sale of 1921 goods until a meeting to be held Sept. 16.

Gray Goods Continue Dull.

There was little in the prevailing conditions in the local gray goods market yesterday to distinguish it from those of preceding days. Not much interest was shown by either buyers or sellers, although offers from the latter could have secured very favorable terms. In the printcloths sales of 38½-inch 64-80s were made at 15 cents for spots and at 14½ cents for September delivery. There was some talk of 39-inch 64-104 sateens going at 18 cents. In the sheetings, sales were had of 36-inch 5.50-yard goods at 11½ cents and 5-yard fabrics at 12½ cents for spots. A fair quantity of "distress" voiles were also disposed of at low prices.

Women's Neckwear for Fall.

Neckwear manufacturers are looking for a big trade from the women this coming season in the pretty and becoming things they are offering. High standing ruffs are an innovation in sheer white goods, and these are carried down on two sides of little vestees. The ruffs have rolled or picot edge and come well up under the ears.

Good Market for Walking Dolls.

Walking dolls, retailing at $5 for a doll of moderate size, and twice that for one of double the size, are finding a good market through the East, where they have so far been placed. They have little and simple mechanism and no springs. They are said to be the only walking dolls with normal stuffed bodies and legs. They can be taken by the child by the arms or shoulder and, as she walks, the doll will put one foot before the other and walk beside her.

Resident Buyers Group.

Quite a few replies have been received by the National Garment Retailers' Association to the proposal of organizing a resident buyers' group or division of the organization. The association already has some representative buyers listed in its membership and, with the favorable responses being received from others, a special division will in all probability be formed. At present, several of the larger resident buyers are preparing a bulletin of information on market conditions which is distributed to the members of the association.

Besides getting the benefit of a favorable exchange rate, retail dealers who are placing orders abroad also see another advantage to such orders in these days of Government regulation of profits. It is said to be a little more difficult to establish foreign costs than in the case of domestic prices. An investigation of the cost price of a domestic made article is a simple matter involving merely a request to the manufacturer here for the information. The same investigation applied to the cost of foreign merchandise is not so easily carried out, it is said.

A Comparison of Business.

It is scarcely fair for a retail merchant to make his comparison of business this year with that of last year, in the opinion of a leading garment manufacturer. If any comparison is made at all, he said, it should be with a normal year such as 1913. But there are particular conditions this season which interfere with the accuracy of any comparison. The stores, this manufacturer said, are doing a nice business as a whole, with a somewhat better showing being made in the smaller towns than in the large cities. The latter, he finds, have been rather surfeited with reduction sales.

Increase in Garment Jobbing.

No denial is entered to the statement that many manufacturers in the garment trade have become jobbers, and that jobbing has shown a rather remarkable growth lately. And, in this condition, some profess to see a cause for the unsettled state of the market. It is not natural, they say, for a manufacturer to carry heavy stocks without wishing to cut prices and see if the merchandise cannot be sold. In short, the ex-manufacturers who are now jobbers have not learned to accustom themselves to carrying large stocks.

The Future Supply of Garments.

No difficulties are foreseen by leading buyers in regard to getting merchandise later in the season. They report finding plenty of goods now available, and look for even larger quantities in the market next month. The manufacturers, however, have a different idea. They call attention to the number of holidays next month which will cut down the working schedule to something like thirteen days. Such interference with production, they say, cannot add very substantially to any surplus there may be. A good deal will depend on what progress is made in selling goods at retail. If women prove willing to pay the prices asked for new goods, the manufacturers see a livelier demand in the near future.

British Glass Men Here.

Thirty prominent glass chemists and manufacturers, members of the Society of Glass Technology of England, here to study American methods, have just started on a tour of factories in this country and Canada. They were met by a committee headed by Dr. E. Ward Tillotson of the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research at Pittsburgh. Spurred by the necessity of becoming independent of foreign supplies, the British manufacturers with Government backing have made great progress in modernizing and extending their plants. Robert L. Frink, a well known American glass engineer, has been retained by them to direct research work in the industry. Extensive preparations have been made throughout the glass manufacturing districts in this country to receive and entertain the visitors.

Rail Stocks Rise and Other Issues Close with Rally—Call Rate 9 Per Cent.

Railroad stocks were more consistent performers yesterday on the rising side of quotations than the industrials, although a rally of the latter in the face of 9 per cent. call money brought a rather unusual sort of close. Some of the prominent, dividend-paying rails, including Norfolk & Western, Reading, Southern Pacific and Union Pacific, advanced from 1½ to more than 2 points, while fractional gains were widely scattered through all classes of rail shares. Railroad bonds maintained the firm tone noted in preceding days of the week, although there were some signs of profit-taking sales among those which had risen the furthest. Trading was again inactive, purchases of industrials appearing in fits and starts, which seemed to disclose nothing besides alterations of the professional trading position. Had it not been for the movement of steel, oil and special issues forward in the last half hour, when the call loan rate rose to the highest point of the week, the industrial share activity would have been classed as devoid of interest.

If railroad stocks have not felt the impetus of broad buying in the last three weeks, at least they have been free of selling pressure. This might be thought a natural reflex of restored confidence among stock owners that the new freight and passenger rates would shortly show forth in enhanced profits and enlarged railroad credit. It may be, furthermore, that selling from Europe by Governments possessing American securities and anxious to convert them into dollar balances was largely completed before the rate award was made. The British Treasury was believed in May to be liquidating rail securities here in connection with the Anglo-French loan maturity, and it is understood that sufficient funds have been available to the Treasury to meet Britain's portion of the obligation at any time in the last six weeks or longer. Selling pressure has been absent, whatever the reasons, and there has doubtless been a considerable accumulation of railroad bonds by persons who keep in mind the years which followed the depressed security markets of the '70s and '80s. Ie remains to be seen whether a sustained advance can be recorded by such issues as those which have been attracting the most attention of late. When prices reach levels offering rates of yield lower than 7½ per cent., bonds issued against deposits of collateral or others not directly secured by mortgages collide with the current cost of capital in many lines and something more than straight investment worth must be at hand when to carry prices higher. There have been indications of speculative appeal in dealings of certain low-priced issues, but the draft upon the speculative imagination has not yet been pronounced. It may develop as the roads show what they can do with their enlarged gross incomes.

Cotton fluctuated rather widely yesterday without getting far from Wednesday's results when the net returns were in. Grain was inclined to ease off, but in neither market were there indications of positive influences at work to direct the price lists. The grain harvest is progressing rapidly, reaching up toward the Northwest, and it looked yesterday in the rather unexpected rise of call money as if the week's bank statements would again show forth the withdrawals of interior deposits from New York as well as additional borrowings of Eastern Reserve Banks by Western and Southern Reserve institutions.

The Bank of England improved its reserve position during the week from 12½ to 14¼ per cent. In the first week of August it was as low as 10¼ per cent. The betterment has resulted from large reductions of loans and discounts. Sterling exchange lost a little ground yesterday.

OIL COMPANIES DENY CLASH WITH MEXICO

NO "ULTIMATUM" ISSUED

President Will Grant Request of Producers for Discussion of Export Tax Question.

In substantiation of the statement made two days ago that there was no friction between the de facto Government in Mexico and the Association of Producers of Petroleum in Mexico and in further explanation of the question of taxes, the association yesterday gave out two cablegrams which passed between the Mexican Government and the association. In a prelude to the cablegrams the association states that it will clear up the Mexican export tax question and enumerates the following facts:

1. That member companies paid in May, 1920, the amounts agreed upon as discharge of taxes for March and April.

2. That they paid in July the agreed amounts for provisional discharge of May-June taxes.

3. That in view of recently increased prices of oil, a new valuation was practised by the de la Huerta Government in August as basis for payment of an additional balance on above taxes on Aug. 30.

The Association of Producers on Aug. 23 sent a cablegram to President de la Huerta in which they said in part:

"Although the values expressed in Circuler No. 44 are still much higher than the actual prices of the crude oils and their derivatives for the respective bimesters and should in our opinion be further reduced, we realize that a substantial reduction has already been made from the values expressed in Circular No. 37 and that the final liquidation of the export taxes for the past two bimesters has been postponed by your Government on several occasions to permit of further consideration and of a final determination which you would consider fair and just.

"In view of these considerations and of our desire to meet the possibly urgent needs existing, the oil companies do not feel that they should ask of your Excellency at this time any further postponements of the liquidation of the taxes but respectfully request that at some time entirely convenient to you either before or after the taxes have been liquidated and in accordance with Circular No. 44 they be permitted to present to your Excellency further information respecting the prices that are being obtained for the crude oils and their derivatives and to discuss generally with you the matter of the administration of the export tax law.

"The values expressed in Circular No. 44 are substantially an average of the values specified in the January-February tariff and those specified in Circular No. 37 and their application is particularly high and burdensome for the March-April bimester and in the case of the distillates and Fanuco crude.

"We feel assured because of the consideration already shown by your Excellency that many of the embarrassments that have heretofore sometimes attended the liquidation of our export taxes can in this way be removed and that if the values expressed in Circular No. 44 are then found to be too high an equitable adjustment will be made by your Government on future bimesters."

"Mexican Petroleum Company,
120 Broadway, New York:

"For the Association of Producers of Petroleum in Mexico, New York:

"The President is informed of your courteous message received today. In which you see fit to state in the name of the Association of Producers of Petroleum in Mexico to this Government, that (the companies) are disposed to pay the taxes if they are received and given an audience on proofs they will present for the purpose of fixing a just and equitable price on the export of petroleum. I make haste to tell you that the Government, headed by Sr. de la Huerta, is determined to work always justly and equitably in all its matters, and therefore you may at once cover your taxes, after which you may submit the proofs you consider pertinent on the understanding that they will be taken into consideration. With friendly greetings. The Sub-Secretary,

"M. PADRES."

"It will be apparent," says the association," that no friction such as indicated by recent dispatches exists, and that the President of Mexico and the American companies are co-operating with cordiality.

"The companies are unaware of any 'ultimatum' having been issued, as reported on Aug. 25. Their cablegram of the 23d precludes the likelihood that such action was taken."

NEW HAVEN MERGER APPROVED BY COURT

Dissolution Decree Modified to Permit Execution of Mortgage on Trolley Property.

TO SECURE $10,884,000

Union with Harlem River and Central New England Subject to Federal and State Approval.

Federal Judge Mayer signed an order yesterday modifying the decree of dissolution against the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company, made Oct. 17, 1914, which permits the company, if the necessary consents can be obtained from the Federal and State authorities, to merge with the Harlem River & Port Chester Railroad and the Central New England Railway Companies. The purpose of the merger is to enable the New Haven Company to vote the 400,000 shares of stock of the Connecticut company which controls the Connecticut trolley lines, to the end that the latter company may execute a mortgage of its property so that outstanding debentures of the Consolidated Railway Company, a subsidiary of the New Haven Company, to the amount of $10,-884,000 may be secured.

The Connecticut Company, it was explained, owes the New Haven Company $4,071,038, of which $1,000,000 is upon debentures and the remainder on notes for advances made up to Dec. 31, 1919.

In its application to the court the New Haven Company said that on March 1 last it was indebted to the United States Government for substantially $66,000,000, including its short term indebtedness, amounting to $43,000,000, which was spent for betterments and improvements. The company stated that it was arranging for a new loan from the Government of $13,500,000 with which to buy needed locomotives and to make necessary improvements. It said that it expected to be able to meet all of its financial obligations by taking advantage of the Transportation act of Feb. 28 last until the return of normal conditions, when it hopes to be able to take care of its own financing.

The application says that the Consolidated Railroad Company was merged with the New Haven Company on Feb. 28, 1910. The New Haven Company assured the court that the merger of the New Haven with the Harlem River and Port Chester and Central New England Companies would conserve the interests of all the companies involved.

Strength in Stock Market.

The stock market gave new evidence of strength yesterday, but it was once more brought about by short covering. In a period of decline such as that which has taken place there is always an overplay of the selling movement and covering has eventually to be undertaken. It is buying of this sort which, more than anything else, has served to bring about higher quotations. Call money touched 9 per cent. during the final hour of trading, but little attention was paid to the increase in money rates. Stocks, in fact, were stronger at this period than at any other time during the day. Those who observe caution, however, were a bit disconcerted by the higher money rate, especially since it was accompanied by advancing quotations. There is doubt as to the elasticity of the money market, and this, in the minds of many, precludes any big demonstration on the long side.

Seeking News.

Almost every one who trades in stocks is just at the present time an eager seeker after news. There are many rumors afloat, but they are conflicting, and those who would take commitments one way or the other are endeavoring to sound opinion and glean facts where they can. There was one report yesterday that important developments might be expected from Washington within a few days, but just what these developments might be did not appear to be within the scope of knowledge possessed by those who were discussing the rumors. On the surface it would appear that the rumors were the usual outgrowth of any forward move in the stock market called up by endeavors, on the part of one here and one there, to account for the rise.

Baldwin Directors Meet.

The terse statement that only routine business was transacted at the monthly meeting of the Directors of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, which was flashed from Philadelphia, once more brought disappointment to Baldwin stockholders. Nothing that had been said recently indicated that the much talked about distribution of assets to the stockholders would develop at the meeting, but it is undeniably true that nearly every Baldwin stockholder watches the Directors' meetings with an eye to the possibility that the time is ripe for the announcement, and each time that the words "routine business" appear there is a wave of disappointment.

The Tobacco Monopoly.

Cables from Paris told another version of the much discussed deal with relation to the French tobacco monopoly. This was to the effect that American interests were not endeavoring to buy the monopoly, but were attempting to perfect a working agreement under which the American interests would co-operate in developing the scope of the Government's tobacco business. This sounds reasonable; much more so, in fact, than that the negotiations were for the tobacco monopoly itself. Obstacles are not presented to this plan such as would be encountered in a proposal to make a direct purchase of the monopoly. Furthermore, it is now admitted by George J. Whelan that he went to France on tobacco business, and this might well fit in with the cables from Paris.

A Petroleum War.

Apparently there is to be something in the nature of a petroleum war among various of the American companies operating in Mexico. This is a new turn to the time-worn Mexican oil situation. Heretofore the chief source of friction has been between the Mexican Government and the oil companies. With the advent of a new régime in Mexico the difficulties have been in large part smoothed out, but now the rival American interests are beginning to wage a contest for control. The difficulty, it is asserted, has been precipitated by one small faction of the American interests which never at any time has been in harmony with the big majority of the producers. What the result will be is problematical, but on the surface of things it would look as if the strength lay with the large producers.

Progress of the French Loan.

It was learned in authoritative quarters yesterday that Jean Parmentier, financial envoy of the French Government, who came to this country to float a loan as one of the ways to pay off the French share of the Anglo-French loan which matures in October, has gone to Washington. Mr. Parmentier, it was said, would call formally upon the Treasury Department officials there and would return to New York, when "conversations" about the new loan would be resumed. In authoritative quarters yesterday it was said that there was nothing to report on the loan, although an immediate agreement on terms was not generally expected.

Higher Money Rates.

The last hour advance in the rates for call funds on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday was somewhat of a surprise to some bankers, who believed there would be an easing tendency, instead. In other quarters, however, the advance was attributed to the fact that there are less funds available by reason of withdrawals by out-of-town institutions that are finding need for their funds at this season. Withdrawals were heavy last week, and it is believed that the bank statement at the close of this week will show a similar movement of funds.

On July 1 the gold reserve of the United States available against notes in actual circulation was more than three times that of any of the Western European nations, according to the September number of The Commerce Monthly, published by the National Bank of Commerce. The issue in commenting on gold reserves says: "This country had $2,234,000,000 in gold as against $4,512,-000,000, making the reserve 49.5 per cent. of the paper circulation. The nation most nearly approaching this country's percentage of reserve was Great Britain, whose gold holdings amounted to 31.5 per cent., while France on the same date had only 9.6 per cent. Germany and Austria had reserves of only 1.6 per cent. and .4 per cent., respectively, while Italy, on Sept. 30, 1919, the last available date, possessed a gold reserve of only 7.8 per cent. of her paper currency."

New Rail Rates in Effect.

The new schedule of freight, passenger, milk and excess baggage railroad rates went into effect yesterday. While the situation in regard to the respective powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission and various State Commissions, which have opposed the new tariffs, remains about the same it was the sentiment in many railroad offices yesterday that several of the States would like to have the courts rule against their authority. This, in the opinion of railroad men and railroad lawyers, will probably come in due course, and some of them assert that it would not be a surprise to learn that some of the State Commissions opposed the new tariffs simply because they understood the law to prescribe such action and not because of any desire to cripple the railroads.

Increased Railroad Costs.

How extensive the increase in the cost of operating the railroads of the United States has been since 1915 is shown in the following estimate of 1920 prices based in part on the wage increases recently granted to railroad labor:

	1916.	New 1920 Basis.	Inc. P.C.
Wages	$1,500,000,000	$3,500,000,000	133
Materials	650,000,000	11,050,000,000	60
Coal	380,000,000	700,000,000	185
Taxes	165,000,000	280,000,000	70
Other items	60,000,000	100,000,000	66
Total	$2,635,000,000	$5,630,000,000	113

The foregoing figures are a conservative estimate, but they may have to be altered when the carriers report the number of employes they have at the end of every three months in accordance with the ruling of the Interstate Commerce Commission. At the same time the figures are considered as very close to the actual facts.

New Bonds for Old

Almost every institution and investor has securities which are sound but have depreciated in market value. This situation creates a problem which can be solved best by arranging exchanges for issues of bonds or secured notes recently placed on the market.

TELLS OF NEW ERA OF PEACE IN MEXICO

$75,000,000 IS NEEDED

Money from United States Wanted for Rehabilitation, New York Business Men Are Told.

Mexico under the new régime is making such rapid strides in bringing about normal conditions that there is reason to believe that revolutions are over, at least for the present generation, according to General Salvador Alvarado, Minister of Finance of Mexico, who spoke at a luncheon given yesterday in his honor at the Bankers Club by Lewis L. Clarke, President of the American Exchange National Bank. His address, in which he emphasized the newly awakened national conscience in Mexico, made a deep impression on the more than a hundred representative financial, business and professional men who attended the luncheon.

In introducing General Alvarado, Mr. Clarke caused a laugh when he said he did not feel the embarrassment which was now-a-days experienced in entertaining foreign visitors by virtue of our dry laws, because General Alvarado had the distinction of being the original prohibitionist of Mexico. He explained that General Alvarado, as Governor of Yucatan under the Carranza régime, had made that country dry.

General Alvarado declared $75,000,000 of United States money would be needed to rehabilitate Mexico, "badly in need of help after a decade of revolution and disturbances, but with all of her people now united in a desire for peace, work and prosperity." The new Government, which he said has the support of public opinion, would spend the money in working out its three major problems, which are:

1. Reorganization of the banking system.

2. Reorganization of transportation means, including rehabilitation of both railroads and merchant marine.

3. Giving work to unemployed, especially those who have served under the various revolutionary factions.

Estimating that one-third of the $75,000,000 would be needed for each of these three schemes, General Alvarado deplored the present banking situation in his country, declaring money lenders, profiteers and middlemen are crushing the farmers, who have big crops of cotton, hemp and chicken peas this year.

"The great longing for peace, reorganization, work and prosperity," he said, "is equally strong in the banker as in the farmer, the merchant, or the cattle raiser, the skilled worker or the common laborer; all are ready to settle down and work. This enthusiasm, confidence and optimism are the surest signs that the revolutionary era is over in Mexico, at least so far as the present generation is concerned.

"The new government of Mexico, formed mostly of young and progressive men who joined the revolution only because they thought it was their duty to do so, is conscious of the state of mind of the country, as well as of Mexico's duty, if Mexico wants to be considered as a member of the community of civilized nations.

"This government has drafted a vast plan for the reconstruction and reorganization of the country, covering all national activities.

"You may not believe it, but it is nevertheless true that all our trains are running on schedule, that all public services are in normal operation, and our crops this year will be the largest on record. And as to any anti-foreign sentiment, I can assure you that none exists; on the contrary there is probably on the surface of the earth no other people more hospitable and warm-hearted toward foreigners than the Mexicans. I wish to say that before I came to this country I heard also of an intense anti-Mexican feeling prevailing in the United States, but I wish to state that my two visits have completely convinced me that such sentiment does not exist. The same thing is true about Mexico."

LATE TRADE BUYING AIDS RISE IN COTTON

LIVERPOOL PRICES ADVANCE

This Rally, with Lack of Southern Selling, Steadies Local Trading.

The cotton market passed through wide fluctuations yesterday, as traders shifted their positions about, but extensive trade buying toward the end of the session brought about a sizeable net recovery. October closed 68 points above Wednesday's final quotation, December 43, January 38, March 30, May 30 and July also 30 points up. The Liverpool market closed with a strong rally and this, together with lack of selling pressure at Southern centres and a steady spot price at New York, aided in lining up short covering and speculative purchases for the long account in the late afternoon.

The opening transactions disclosed a rather unsteady price position which was utilized by the bears for a new drive. After quotations had been pressed down 20 to 30 points, there was a noticeable falling off of selling orders. Many of the astute speculators who take advantage of extreme movements were evidently as much convinced as on Monday and Tuesday that the market had been oversold in the swing downward from around 30 to the 25 cent level, and they were ready to send in buying orders as soon as prices showed a stable appearance. The wide swing of quotations from low to high was noted in the fact that some maximum movements reached from 80 to more than 100 points.

Liverpool prices closed around the top as far as futures were concerned, but there was an additional decline of 61 points to 21.97d for spot. Imports at the British centre amounted to the total of 17,000 bales, all from America.

Lawyers Get Consulting Rooms.

A general consulting room for private attorneys having business at the Criminal Courts Building was provided yesterday in the quarters formerly used by the Coroners on the Centre Street side of the first floor. These rooms were recently vacated by a branch of the Charity Organization Society. Heretofore attorneys have had to do their consulting with each other or with their clients in the courtrooms or in the corridors. About twenty attorneys used the rooms soon after they were opened to them yesterday.

TUBE CROWDS PAY 6 CENTS.

Giant Guards Are Stationed at All Jersey Entrances.

The patrons of the Hudson & Manhattan Railway Company had to pay a six cent fare yesterday and the majority of them did it without a fight. A small percentage of the minority sought to rush the guards and get through for a five cent fare. The company had stationed at each of the tube entrances in New Jersey guards from six feet two to six feet five inches tall, and who were built otherwise in proportion.

Like most big men they were good humored and for the greater part of the time they stood at attention and called monotonously, "Not more than six cents," "Not more than six cents," thereby intimating that if they didn't watch out the passengers would pay more. When a passenger tried to force his way through for a nickel the guards would brush him back and keep on brushing him back until he gave up another cent.

Several groups of young men, with nothing much to do organized themselves into committees and faced the guards with a steady cry of "Don't pay more than five cents." If these self-constituted committtees hoped that a row would start which would make for merriment they were disappointed, although there were several arrests on charges of disorderly conduct.

All of the trouble that threatened serious consequences occurred during the rush hours at the Grove Street station. Several policemen were on hand to keep comparative order. They were instructed not to take a deep interest in anything less than assault and battery. The result was that there were a number of complaints of this character.

Assistant Corporation Attorney Myron Ernst went to the Grove Street station in the morning and got into an altercation with Edward Meade, one of the big guards, who insisted upon a six-cent fare. In the wrangling that ensued Meade was accused of assault and was arrested. Others arrested under similar circumstances were Morgan Matthews, Frank J. Sullivan, Martin A. Smith, William L. Robinson and Joseph Brady. All were taken to the police station and directed to appear in the police court today.

Officials of the company patroled the turbulent sections, but only watched to see that the fare did not fall below the 6-cent point and encouraged the guards to stand firm. Last night, Oren Root, President of the company, issued a statement to the effect that the present arrangement was made in the interest of 98 per cent. of the traffic and only 2 per cent. was objecting.

It developed that while the officials of Jersey City were favoring the contingent who wanted to pay only 5 cents and were willing to go the limit in helping them to save the extra cent the police took a neutral attitude.

ASKS OLD RAIL FARE FOR DETAINED ALIENS

RULING BY I.C.C. REQUESTED

About 2,000 immigrants who had arranged for railroad transportation in this country at the time they bought steamship tickets for America waited at Ellis Island yesterday for a ruling by the Interstate Commerce Commission as to whether the increase in passenger rates would be waived in their cases. Commissioner Frederick A. Wallis wired to Washington and advised the immigrants not to buy tickets at the increased rates until the Interstate Commerce Commission had replied.

The immigrants, when they bought their railroad transportation from the steamship companies in Europe, received orders upon the railroads for tickets to their destinations. Most of them arrived in New York several days ago, but were detained at Quarantine and at Ellis Island, so they could not begin their railroad travel before the rate increases went into effect.

When they presented their orders for railroad transportation at the windows of the Trunk Line Association in the Immigration Station yesterday the immigrants were told they must pay the difference between the old and the new fares. Many of them did not have the money to pay the increase. Those who paid the raised fares took receipts for the overcharge above the steamship order, but most of them decided to wait for a reply from the Interstate Commerce Commission, which had not arrived last night.

Commuters living in New York State are exempt from the 20 per cent. passenger fare increase which went into effect at midnight yesterday under the ruling of the Interstate Commerce Commission—at least until the commission overrules the decision of the New York Public Service Commission denying action on passenger rates under statutory limitation. New Jersey and Connecticut commuters now have to pay the new rates, except those who have bought September tickets from the Pennsylvania and New York, New Haven & Hartford at the old rates.

It is cheaper now to go to Buffalo by the New York Central, which runs wholly within the State, than by the Lackawanna or the Lehigh Valley, which cross three States on the way and are allowed to add 20 per cent. to the fare, while the New York Central has to continue at the old rates. But on a continuous trip from New York to Chicago, the passenger cannot go to a point in the State, such as Buffalo, and then buy another ticket to Chicago at the interstate rate.

Ralph Peters, President of the Long Island Railroad, said in a statement yesterday that the Long Island would join other intrastate roads in an appeal to the Interstate Commerce Commission for relief, inasmuch as the State commissions have denied their applications to put the new rates into effect.

Advances on intrastate traffic corresponding to the increases authorized by the Interstate Commerce Commission are now in effect in New Jersey, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Michigan, Virginia, Wyoming, Oregon and California, as the result of the action of Public Service Commissions. Action on the intra-State passenger rates has been denied or postponed in New York, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Montana, Ohio, Iowa, West Virginia, Illinois, Texas and Nebraska.

TO SAFEGUARD U. S. PORTS.

Quarantine Regulations Affecting Plants and Plant Products.

Important new safeguards have gone into effect in all ports of the United States regarding plants and plant products whose introduction into this country is restricted or prohibited by quarantine or other regulations of the United States Department of Agriculture. The new regulations have just been issued by the Secretary of Agriculture and pertain to the arrival of restricted and restricted plants carried on vessels arriving at ports where entry or landing is not intended. The provisions supplement regulations which have been in force for several years. The enforcement of the quarantine has shown the necessity for more adequate safeguards. These safeguards have now been provided, making less likely the escape of insects or plant diseases from vessels temporarily stopping in United States harbors.

The new regulations provide that a report shall be made to the Secretary of Agriculture by the Captain or other person in charge of a vessel arriving at a United States port and containing on board plants or plant products the entry of which is prohibited or restricted. This report must state the nature and quantity of such plants or plant products, the country or locality of origin, the date of sailing from the United States port, together with a statement indicating the steps taken to prevent the escape of insects or plant diseases which they may carry.

It is further provided that the person in charge of such vessels must allow inspection of his craft and must take such measures as are prescribed by the inspector representing the Department of Agriculture, to prevent the landing of any such plants or plant products or the escape of insects or plant diseases which they may carry. The Collector of Customs, in cooperation with the Inspector of the Department of Agriculture, may require such person to destroy the objectionable plants and plant products or to remove them forthwith from the port and the territorial waters of the United States. If necessary, the Inspector of the department may require the disinfection of the vessel in accordance with methods prescribed by the United States Department of Agriculture.

GROWTH IN FRUIT EXPORTS.

Imports Have Decreased Because of Increase in American Production.

Fruit exports from the United States have steadily increased, while imports have decreased during the last ten years, according to figures compiled by the Bureau of Markets of the United States Department of Agriculture. The average yearly exports of dried and fresh fruits for the pre-war period, 1910-1914, were approximately 504,911,000 pounds. With two low years the average for the period, 1915-1919, was 518,259,000 pounds, an increase of 2.6 per cent. The 1910-1914 imports averaged 252,708,000, as compared with 109,321,000 pounds for 1915-1919, showing an annual decrease of 57 per cent. since 1914.

Apples, lemons and oranges chiefly comprise the fresh fruit export trade of the United States, and of dried fruits, apples, apricots, peaches, prunes and raisins. The imports of fresh fruits are of bananas, grapes, lemons and oranges, and of dried fruits, currants, dates, figs, olives and raisins.

American apples are sent to eighty different countries, reaching all parts of the globe. There is a constantly increasing demand for American lemons and oranges, Canada and the United Kingdom being the largest purchasers. The decline in imports of grapes is accounted for by the rapid development of the grape industry in America. The same reasons is given in regard to lemons.

In pre-war days as much as 150,000,000 pounds of lemons were imported annually from Italy, but the imports have declined greatly with the increase in American production. Several million pounds of oranges used to be imported from Jamaica, Mexico and Italy, but very few are now brought into this country.

ADDS TO TAX REGULATIONS.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—The Treasury Department today issued an income tax decision concerning countries which do or do not satisfy the "similar credit" requirement of Section 222 of the Revenue act of 1918. The decision will add to the income tax regulations the following paragraphs:

"The following is an incomplete list of the countries which satisfy the similar credit requirement of Section 222 (A) (3) of the Revenue act of 1918, either by allowing to citizens of the United States residing in such countries a credit for the amount of income, war profits, or excess profits taxes paid to the United States upon incomes derived from sources therein, or in imposing such taxes by exempting from taxation the incomes received from sources within the United States by citizens of the United States residing in such countries: Bulgaria, Canada, Italy, New Foundland, Salvador.

"The following is an incomplete list of the countries which do not satisfy the similar credit requirements of Section 222 (A), (3), of the Revenue Act of 1918, either by allowing any credit to citizens of the United States residing in such countries, for the amount of income, war profits or excess profits taxes paid to the United States upon incomes derived from sources therein, or because such countries do not impose any income, war profits or excess profits taxes: Argentina, Bahama, Belgium, Bermuda, Bolivia, Bosnia, Brazil, Chile, China, Costa Rica, Ecuador, Egypt, Finland, France, Great Britain and Ireland, Guatemala, Herzogovina, India, Jamaica, Japan, Montenegro, Morocco, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Panama, Paraguay, Persia, Peru, Portugal, Rumania, Santo Domingo, Serbia, Siam, Sweden, Switzerland, Venezuela. The former names of certain of these territories are here used for convenience in spite of the actual or possible change in the name or sovereignty.

"A resident of the United States who is a citizen or subject of any country in the list is entitled, for the purpose of the total tax due the United States, for 1918 and subsequent years, to a credit for the amount of any income, war profits and excess profits taxes paid or accrued during the taxable year to such country upon income from sources therein. If he is a citizen or subject of any country in the second list, he is not entitled to such credit. If he is a citizen or subject of a country which is in neither list, then to secure the desired credit, he must prove to the satisfaction of the commissioner that his country satisfies the similar credit requirement of the statute."

PANAMA CANAL ACTIVITIES.

After a two months' trip through the Panama Canal, Jamaica and Cuba, during which he gathered considerable data on Panama achievements, R. H. Whitbeck, professor of geography at the University of Wisconsin, said that few Americans realize the magnitude and multiplicity of the Government's undertakings in the Canal Zone.

"Passing 2,000 to 3,000 ships a year through the canal is a small part of the work which the canal administration is doing," says Professor Whitbeck in the bulletin of the University of Wisconsin.

"The Government is planning to make the Panama route one of the great nodal points in the ocean routes of the world, and so has constructed at each end of the canal enormous coaling stations equipped to coal ships with surprising quickness. These coaling plants have already cost over $5,000,000.

"An ever increasing number of ships burn fuel oil, and at each end of the canal are groups of storage tanks with connecting pipes by means of which 2,650,000 barrels of fuel oil were supplied to ships in 1919.

"A modern ice-making plant has been constructed and ice is always ready for delivery to ships that desire it. The commissary division has cleared over 40,000 acres of jungle and turned it into pastures upon which graze 10,000 cattle brought from Colombia, fattened in the Government pastures, slaughtered in the Government abattoir, the beef chilled and stored in the Government cold storage plant, and held ready for delivery to ships.

"From this same cold storage plant the Government supplies milk, eggs, butter, ice cream, fruit and vegetables. It is also prepared to supply groceries, provisions, and even dry goods, shoes and clothing to ships. A Government laundry with a capacity of 30,000 pieces a day will receive a ship's linen and launder it while the ship is traversing the canal.

"If the ship requires repairs, great or small, the dry docks and shops at Cristobal and Balboa are prepared to make them. One of the largest dry docks in the world is located at Balboa, at the Pacific end of the canal. Between 2,000 and 2,300 men are employed at these shops, and over 1,300 vessels were repaired last year.

"The people of the Canal Zone live under a paternalistic socialism. The State does practically everything for them, not only the usual services such as supplying water, lights, schools, sanitation, &c., but it also supplies them with homes to live in if they are married, or lodgings if they are unmarried. It supplies the furniture, plants trees and shrubs, and cares for them, fills the coal bin and wood box, supplies electric light, water, garbage disposal and all usual forms of public service, conducts the restaurants and clubs, non-profit stores, supplies auto buses and launches for employes, and other benefits.

"The transformation of Panama from the pest hole of the tropics in 1906 where it was dangerous for a white man to stay over night to a zone as healthy as Massachusetts, is an inspiring example of man's conquest of adverse nature," says Professor Whitbeck.

Postal Chauffeur Held as Thief.

Richard J. Hoffman, a substitute chauffeur employed by the Post Office Department, was held in $2,500 bail yesterday by United States Commissioner Hitchcock to answer a charge of stealing $2,130 from a registered package addressed to the Federal Reserve Bank. The package contained $26,000, according to a statement by Postal Inspector John J. Gibney, and all but the $2,130 was faithfully delivered.

EXPECT HARD FIGHT ON PHONE RATE RISE

HEARINGS TO BE HELD HERE

No Date Fixed Yet for Discussions of Proposed Increase of $16,000,000 in This City.

Although no protests were filed yesterday at the New York office of the Second District Public Service Commission, it was anticipated that a strong fight would be waged by civic organizations and business generally against the New York Telephone Company's proposed 33 per cent. increase in phone rates. The company, through James S. McCulloh, Vice President, announced that it had nothing to add to its original statement on the $16,000,000 telephone increase for the city.

At the Public Service Commission's branch office in the Hall of Records it was predicted that an avalanche of protests, chiefly from small telephone users, who are scheduled in the new rates for an extra $20 yearly, would begin to come in today or tomorrow. It was anticipated that public hearings, which, under the law, the commission must hold, would bring a repetition of scenes which characterized the telephone inquiry conducted about a year ago, when witnesses protesting against any grant of higher rates to the telephone company sometimes became more than empnatic in their complaints.

It was said no date had been set for the public hearings on the phone company's application, but a hearing must be held within thirty days of the filing of the new rate schedules. Otherwise, it was pointed out, the proposed new tariff would become effective without the Public Service Commission's approval, as the law provides. It was said yesterday that the hearings would be held here, as the territory affected, instead of at Albany, the commission's headquarters.

Efforts to make a direct comparison in figures between the old rates and the rates sought where unsuccessful because the new rates had been calculated on a different basis, telephone officials said.

"A table comparing the old rates with the new in detail," it was explained, "would take up about four pages of a newspaper. However, we expect to issue rate cards for each zone so that our subscribers can see exactly what the increase amounts to in their respective districts."

WHEAT MARKET LOWER.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—Wheat started ¼c. to 1c. lower today, with a cash house selling a fair amount of December early, which was regarded as hedging against country purchases in the Southwest. There was some buying by a house with seaboard connections, and also some scattered professional buying. The decrease of around 11,500,000 bushels in supplies of passage the last week had some effect on the sentiment. After December had started at $2.32½ to $2.33 and March at $2.29½, a rally quickly set in, with a fairly broad trade, and carried prices upward.

December wheat showed a firm undertone, although the best prices were not maintained because of the weakness in other grains. The March delivery was under pressure, and at the close there was a wide spread between the two deliveries. Prices at the finish were unchanged to 1½c. lower, with December $2.33¼ to $2.33½ and March $2.28.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER—Receipts yesterday, 6,711 packages. The tone of the market is steady on the high grades of creamery at the advance lately quoted. Extras show no increase in the supply, and sold readily at 57c, though the outside figure is quite extreme and only reached for very fancy qualities. Medium and lower grades tending to accumulate and market quieter, though asking prices no lower. EGGS—Receipts yesterday, 10,965 cases. Fresh gathered eggs of fine to fancy qualities continue firm. Some receivers report a little slackening of the demand, but the favored marks are going out readily at sustained prices. Medium and lower grades still irregular, but there are less of them than there were a week ago and the prices average better. Good dirties and checks firmer; some sales at higher prices. Storage eggs in good demand and firm. White eggs in strictly fancy quality are in light supply and firm. Medium and lower grades meeting only a limited demand, and values for these continue irregular. CITY LAND LEASED FOR BIG PROJECT

Projected Theatre on Site in $400,000 Rental—Stores and Showrooms Also Planned.

An interesting building project involving a square block under the Manhattan Bridge has just reported, which will result in one of the most important east side improvements of the year.

The city of New York leased to Henry E. Jacobs the block bounded by East Broadway, Forsyth, Market and Henry Streets, under the Bridge structure, which towers to a considerable height at this point. The lease, for a twenty-year term, calls for a ground rental of $9,500 a year for the first ten years and $10,450 for the second ten-year period, indicating a total rental for the term of $199,500.

Gronenberg & Leuchtag, architects, have filed plans for the improvement of the East Broadway block front with a two-story store and show-room building at a cost of about $60,000. The balance of the plot will be improved with a modern moving picture theatre seating 1,100. The estimated cost of this structure, according to the architects, will be $120,000.

Under the plan, space will be reserved on the East Broadway frontage for a lobby to the theatre. The plot measurements are 133.8 feet on East Broadway, 175 on Market, 208.10 on Henry and 182 on Forsyth. The theatre will occupy a plot 116.4 by 99.2, exclusive of the strip reserved for the entrance.

The theatre has been leased by Mr. Jacobs, through Louis Freidel as broker, to the Florence Theatre Corporation, which will operate it. The term of this lease is also twenty years, at a rental which will aggregate about $400,000 for the entire period.

A PRELIMINARY PLAN.

Data Recorded for Big Standard Oil Company Project.

Preliminary plans for the twenty-four story building to be erected by the Standard Oil Company of New York adjoining the present headquarters of the company were filed yesterday by Carrere & Hastings, architects.

Nothing definite, it was learned, has been decided upon regarding the final construction details which will provide downtown New York with another skyscraper.

The plans were filed for the purpose of placing on record with the Building Department certain data necessary in connection with underground work which will have to be done before the main project is undertaken, it was said at the offices of the architects.

The tentative estimate of the building cost is $3,000,000, concededly low for a structure of such size. It will occupy the plot south of 26 Broadway and will measure 277.7 feet on Broadway, 159 feet on Beaver Street and 203.6 feet on New Street.

The present improvements on the site are the Welles Building at 18 Broadway, the Produce Exchange Bank Building at 8 Broadway, the Lisbon Building at 8 Beaver Street and the two structures at 1 and 3 Beaver Street.

With the purpose, reported on Wednesday, of the Lisbon Building, the Standard Oil Company, including its 26 Broadway property, controls a frontage of 277.7 feet on Broadway, 159 feet on Beaver Street and 203.6 feet on New Street, one of the largest plots under single ownership in the entire downtown district.

Historic Estate at Ardsley Sold.

Mrs. Lorena B. Davis has purchased through Prince & Ripley the estate known as Inanda, in Ardsley Park, at Ardsley-on-Hudson, owned by the Securities Company of New York City. This property was at one time a part of the John Jacob Astor estate, and adjoins the famous Ardsley Towers, which was built by Cyrus W. Fields of transatlantic fame. Inanda was at one time the home of Madame Nordica, and it is an unusual coincidence that the property was at one time owned and occupied by the father of the purchaser, Amzi Barbour. This sale in conjunction with others in the Hudson River country indicate a desire on the part of many buyers to acquire these solid old homesteads and remodel them to suit the needs of modern living. This property was formerly held at $90,000.

Realty Market Notes.

George C. Ponter has placed a loan of $215,000 on the plot at 2,120-2,122 Broadway, running through to 300-302 Amsterdam, for Cecilia P. Wuertz, who recently acquired the property from the Sperb estate.

E. Sharum bought from the P. & R. Construction Co., Inc., a vacant plot, 100 by 99.11, on the south side of 136th Street, 109.4 feet east of Riverside Drive. J. S. Maxwell was the broker.

Pease & Elliman leased for Mme. Umberto Collotti to John Barrymore, the actor, the three-story dwelling at 67 East Ninety-first Street, between Madison and Park Avenues.

Westchester County.

The Robert E. Farley Organization sold for William Mesibov his residence on Fisher Avenue, White Plains, to Edward J. Cheney of New York City; also sold for the Union & New Haven Trust Company a plot in the Nepperhan Heights section of Yonkers to Saverio Stabile of Yonkers, N. Y.

J. Clarence Davies sold to Mrs. Emma M. Schwartz of Yonkers, for the Howard Martin Building Corporation, the stucco house they are constructing in the Oakwood Section of Mount Vernon. This property was held at $15,000.

Buys Park Avenue Home.

The residence of Gordon Knox Bell at 756 Park Avenue, southwest corner of Seventy-second Street, has been sold through the Ruland & Whiting-Benjamin Corporation. It occupies a plot 67 feet on the avenue by 24 feet on Seventy-second Street. The purchaser will occupy the house. Other owners on Park Avenue in the block are George S. Brewster, Theodore Douglas Robinson, William H. Woodin and Henry de Coppet.

The New York Times:

I am more than grateful for the quick result of the advertisement I placed in The New York Times for the camera I lost from the running board of a machine. It was the first time I ventured to advertise for an article which I had lost, never having had any faith in this method. Should the occasion arise again I shall keep The Times in mind for prompt response.

PRINCE CAROL'S LIFE IN WAR DESCRIBED

WORKMEN SEND STATUETTE

The life and popularity of Crown Prince Carol of Rumania among his people were revealed yesterday by Lieutenant Dimitri Dem Dimancesco, a former brother officer in the Prince's regiment, the Vanitori de Munte. Lieutenant Dimancesco, Military Attaché of the Rumanian Consulate at Pittsburgh, was a caller yesterday at the Prince's suite in the Waldorf-Astoria. He said Prince Carol chose an infantry unit in order to set an example to the wealthy and the nobility, who usually served with the cavalry or the artillery. As Colonel of the regiment he became very popular because of his democratic ways and thoughtfulness of their welfare.

Prince Carol also received Sam Blotor, a laborer in the steel mills at Woodlawn, near Pittsburgh. In behalf of eleven other Rumanian workers he presented the Prince with a bronze statuette representing two runnrs in a foot race, to be offered in a Boy Scout competition when the Prince returns home. Prince Carol is a member of the Boy Scout organization in Rumania and is also President of the Associated Athletic Clubs of Rumania.

Yesterday noon the Prince was a guest at a private luncheon at the home of William Nelson Cromwell, 12 West Forty-ninth Street. Mr. Cromwell has been identified with Rumanian relief work and is a member of the Reception Committee to the Prince. Among those who attended the luncheon were Charles H. Sabin, Joseph H. Harriman, Otto H. Kahn, Gates McGarrah, Seward Prosser, Francis L. Hine, T. Tileston Wells, Percy A. Rockefeller and members of the Prince's suite.

In the afternoon the Prince went shopping, eluding newspaper men who attempted to follow him. He returned to the hotel about 4 o'clock, when he received Gaston Liebert, French Consul General, and the Princess Ghika of Rumania. The latter is on a visit to the United States. Last night he was the guest of honor at a dinner given by Colonel Henry Alexander of Richmond, Va., in the Metropolitan Club. Colonel Alexander was a Red Cross Commissioner in Europe during the war.

There was no formal speaking at the dinner, but Col. Anderson offered a toast to the King and Queen of Rumania and to Prince Carol. Prince Carol bespoke the gratitude of his country for the aid extended during the war by the American Red Cross. After dinner the prince and members of his suite attended the performance of the Ziegfeld Follies. The prince seemed to enjoy the show.

Referee Holds Mrs. Lawrence's Share of Mrs. Pinkney's Estate Is Intact.

Cornelius J. Sullivan, referee in an accounting of the estate of Mary G. Pinkney, owner of extensive holdings of unimproved realty in Harlem, reported in the Surrogate's Court yesterday that $850,000 advanced by Miss Pinkney to her niece, Mrs. Julia Watt Lawrence, between 1896 and 1908, was a gift and not part of Mrs. Lawrence's quarter interest in the estate of her aunt.

The referee was appointed to hear objections by the other heirs to payments of income to Mrs. Lawrence on the ground that she had already received a large part of her share. The referee finds that Mrs. Lawrence did not intend to repay the moneys received and her aunt did not expect her to do so.
